LOUISIANA U. HEAD GIVES UP

LEGISLATURE'S TWO YEAR BILL IS $464,000,000

Budget Balance Up to Horner.

BY PERCY WOOD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., July 1.—Among 500 bills passed by the legislature before it adjourned its session today were measures calling for appropriation of about 464 million dollars o operate the government of Illinois in the next two years.

This total, huge though it is, is lower than the 478 millions voted by the session in 1937. Although S. L. Nudelman, director of finance, declared that the 1939 figure throws the budget ut of balance by about 8 millions, it is expected that most of this excess, perhaps all of it, will be vetoed by Gov. Horner.

The governor, whose illness kept him out of the state house during all of the twenty-two week session, now has the task of considering between 250 and 300 measures rushed through in the session's closing days. One hundred and seventy-eight of these bills were passed yesterday during the last minute jam. Old timers could not remember that such a staggering amount of work ever was performed before in one day.

Two Bills at Head of List.

Accomplishments of the session are headed by passage of bills permitting women to serve on juries, and the life saving Cook county superhighway program. Women became eligible for jury service at 12:01 o'clock this morning, ending a long battle by clubs and other organizations for the right. Senator Harold G. Ward [D., Chicago], Mayor Kelly's legislative spokesman, directed the bills to passage and they were signed by the governor several weeks ago.

The $60,000,000 superhighway program was introduced early in the session, lagged for weeks, but rushed to passage in the final period. One of the last acts of the senate yesterday was to concur in house amendments to the program by the almost record vote of 49 to 0.

The bills permit issuance of $60,000,000 in notes retirable in the next twenty years from Chicago's and Cook county's share of the 3 cent gasoline tax. Gov. Horner is expected to submit them to Attorney General Cassidy for an opinion on their constitutionality before he acts on them.

Tax Preadjudication Voted.

Tax preadjudication for the protection of Chicago taxpayers was voted in the closing hours. The bill requires that all levy ordinances be examined for illegal features by the Circuit court before tax bills are sent. Should any illegal provision be found, the reduction it might carry will be corrected into the bill before it is presented to the property owner.

The six major taxing bodies in Cook county are placed under this requirement. They are the city, county, board of education, park district, sanitary district, and forest preserve district. Heretofore, small property owners rarely shared in reductions brought about by court actions. Now they will be assured of such benefits.

Double Features Ban Voted.

Another measure would outlaw double features on motion picture theater programs. If the governor signs the Sandquist bill, the showing of films will be limited to two hours and fifteen minutes. It was put forward as a health measure to conserve eyesight now alleged to be strained by gazing at films for as long as four hours without interruption.

Opponents say the bill is unconstitutional. The limitation, they contend, is comparable to a law preventing grocers from selling more than a dozen cans of tomatoes in a day.

Workmen's compensation was increased by 10 per cent of the weekly wage, and the unemployment compensation law was amended to include employers of six or more persons instead of eight. Both of these actions were taken by agreement among representatives of labor and industry.

Old Age Pension Fight Hottest.

The fight over old age pensions was one of the hottest of the session. It finally was resolved by increasing the maximum pension possible from $30 to $40 monthly, according to the needs of the recipient. Republicans fought hard for a flat $30 minimum

OFFICER FLYING TO CANADA TO GET DR. SMITH

Ready to Face Theft Charge of $100,000.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BROCKVILLE, Ont., July 2 [Sunday].—The country-wide search for Dr. James Monroe Smith, fugitive ex-president of Louisiana State university, charged with embezzling $100,000 of university funds, came to a sudden end here late last night when the educator surrendered to police.

With him was his wife, who is charged with aiding her husband to flee. They were immediately locked up at police headquarters. Dr. Smith was almost cheerful. In contrast his wife was morose and at times hysterical. Both were questioned briefly by Chief Constable W. F. Young and Corporal J. E. Smaridge.

"I am anxious to get back to clear up everything and to vindicate myself," said Dr. Smith. "I didn't even know I was wanted."

Told to Leave for Few Days.

During the taking of statements, the police said, Mrs. Smith declared that "the governor told him [Dr. Smith] to go away for a couple of days." That invitation, she asserted, according to police, was made shortly after Dr. Smith resigned as head of the university a week ago to the then Gov. Richard W. Leche. Leche also resigned the next day.

Dr. Smith said he would waive extradition to Louisiana. Officials at Baton Rouge were notified. An officer left Baton Rouge early today to return Dr. Smith and his wife to Louisiana.

Dr. Smith's surrender, which ended a train and automobile flight of more than 1,500 miles, was arranged by himself. He and his wife, after entering Canada through Detroit, Mich., in a new car purchased at Dearborn, drove to Charleston Lake, a summer resort, eighteen miles northwest of here, frequently visited by Americans. Brockville is forty miles south of Ottawa, 140 miles west of Montreal, and 340 miles from New York City.

Smith Phones Constable.

The educator and Mrs. Smith rented a cottage at the resort, paying a week's rent in advance. Then yesterday, as Dr. Smith related, they read in a Toronto newspaper that they were being sought as fugitives.

Dr. Smith immediately telephoned Chief Constable Young. "I am Dr. Smith of Louisiana," he said. "I understand I am wanted." Over the phone he made arrangements to surrender. He said he would give up in an hour.

Less than an hour later the Smiths drove into Brockville, where they were stopped by Constable Ronald Young, a brother of the chief constable. The constable, it later was explained, recognized Smith "from description and the license of his car." Louisiana authorities had posted a reward of $2,500 for Smith's arrest, but whether the constable's seizure of the educator under the circumstances will entitle him to the bounty is problematical.

No Comment to Interviewer.

The Smiths had six pieces of baggage with them. Dr. Smith showed no strain of his long trip. He had $315 in his pockets. Mrs. Smith cautioned police there "was additional money" in one of the suitcases and demanded assurance it would be safe. The baggage was placed in a vault for safekeeping. During the week it had been reported Smith had gone away with $40,000.

Both Dr. Smith and his wife were standing up in police headquarters when an interviewer approached them. Dr. Smith greeted him affably, but said he had no comment to make. He indicated, however, he had planned to cross the Canadian border to the nearest American town and surrendered to Brockville police so they could facilitate his crossing.

Mrs. Smith Far from Affable.

Mrs. Smith was far from affable. Plainly excited, she screamed at the interviewer, "Are you a newspaper man?" The interviewer said he was. "Go away from here and leave us alone!" cried Mrs. Smith. "We've had nothing but persecution." She was calmed by her husband.

Various personal effects, including a razor, were taken from the Smiths. Also taken were a manuscript of 100 pages written recently by Mrs. Smith,

Swindler Finds World's Small, Cell's Smaller

Two penny matching incidents—one which took place in Washington, D. C., and the other which did not take place in Chicago—became features of the same story yesterday.

The Washington episode occurred as follows:

Just over from Sweden, Folke O. B. Jarl was admiring the Capitol six weeks ago when a Swedish speaking stranger asked him the way to the Swedish embassy.

Happy to meet a countryman, Jarl explained politely that he didn't know, but accepted an invitation to go strolling. Up popped an Englishman. He and the stranger began matching pennies. The Englishman lost $100, because the way he and the stranger matched pennies, it was dollars that were bet.

Pair Fleece, Fight, and Flee!

The Englishman was willing to pay. He wanted some assurance, though, that the stranger could have paid had he lost instead of won. The stranger confided to Jarl that he was broke and, as a countryman, asked Jarl to lend him $100 to show the Englishman and collect.

Jarl did. Then the Englishman and the stranger got into a fight. While Jarl was wondering who'd win, they both ran away, and that was the last he saw of his $100.

Washington police told him he had been swindled by a Swede and an Englishman using one of the older American confidence games.

It's Small World After All.

Jarl is a college trained man of 30, in America as a representative of the Animal Breeding Institute of Sweden. When he came on to Chicago to study the live stock industry, he feared that his experience might be construed by the swindlers as a reflection upon his sagacity. But he took a room at the Y. M. C. A. hotel and went to work.

Yesterday he was walking along the hotel section of South Michigan avenue when he met a stranger who asked him the way to Buckingham fountain.

He's Fountainhead of Wisdom.

Jarl explained politely that he didn't know and declined an invitation to go strolling. Instead, he called Park Policeman Herbert Strobel and had the stranger locked up. The stranger identified himself as William Baring, 51 years old, of 1511 East 60th street, and was indignant, indeed, at Jarl's suspicions.

But Jarl told the police quite firmly that Baring was the Englishman he'd met in Washington, and finger print records showed that Baring had twice been sent to jail on confidence game charges.

75 STATE TROOPERS RAID COUNTY; ONLY 2 SLOT MACHINES FOUND

Illinois state police swept into Cook county, outside Chicago, last night, in a mass search for slot machines. Nearly seventy-five policemen, some from as far away as Springfield, visited 150 taverns and roadhouses. Only two slot machines were found, both in the roadhouse of John Gibbons at 107th street and Oak Park avenue, Worth township. Scores of machines were known to have been in play on Friday.

The bringing in of the state police was ordered by Attorney General John E. Cassidy, who has vowed to clear the state of the slot machines. The raiders were directed from Chicago headquarters by Chief Walter Williams, aided by Mr. Cassidy, and T. P. Sullivan, head of the state bureau of investigation.

MAN WHO MADE FIRST ICE CREAM SUNDAE IS DEAD

Fond du Lac, Wis., July 1.—[Special.]—E. C. Berners, 76 years old, who invented the ice cream sundae in Two Rivers about forty years ago, died at noon here today at the home of his sister, Mrs. Albert Pilon, with whom he had been living for the last two months.

Berner, who has no other close relatives, never capitalized on his invention. He claimed he originated the sundae when George Hallauer, who died recently in Marshall, Ill., came into his ice cream parlor in Two Rivers and asked him to put chocolate flavoring used in sodas directly on a dish of ice cream.

A Manitowoc girl provided the name, sundae, when she asked Berner what flavor ice cream he served on Sunday. A glassware salesman is credited with spreading news of Berner's invention.

Carol Dines Lady Love of His Royal Son

BUCHAREST, Rumania, July 1.—(AP)—A dark, beautiful girl dined at the royal palace today with the father of her best friend. She was slender Lulu Malaxa, daughter of "the Krupp of Rumania." The father was King Carol. The best friend is Crown Prince Michael, who is spending a month in Florence, Italy, visiting his mother.

Crown Prince Michael.
[A. P. Wirephoto.]

Romantic Rumanians smiled, for word already had spread that the handsome Michael, who will be 18 years old in October, had fallen in love with a commoner. Persons who know say that the king fully approves his son's friendship with the lovely Lulu.

First Met at Resort.

The [illegible] prince is seen everywhere with her. Her classic, dark [illegible] features contrast with his fairness. They first met at a Black sea summer resort, where the prince has long been the center of a dashing group of boys and girls.

Her father, of Greek origin, heads Rumania's biggest heavy industries and war material works and is said to be immensely wealthy. Prince Michael and Lulu are often seen playing tennis, swimming, golfing and riding on Bucharest bridle paths. She is a frequent visitor at the royal palace.

Interested in Social Life.

The prince, who was king for three years while his father was in exile, took an early interest in social life as his father wished. He learned to dance at 15, first dancing at a public reception with the daughter of Col. Josef Beck, Poland's foreign minister.

Unlike his sheltered cousin, King Peter of Jugo-Slavia, who is 15 years old, Michael has mingled with all classes of his countrymen. He became a soldier at 15. He has spent his summers in military camps or as a mechanic in Bucharest automobile plants. Only a few weeks a year are allowed for social life at the beach resorts.

French Chief Again Warns Nazis of War

PARIS, July 1.—(AP)—Sources close to the French foreign ministry said tonight that France had told Germany flatly that she would support Poland in case of any aggression against her eastern European ally. Poland fears Nazi seizure of the Free City of Danzig, which would close her outlet to the sea.

Georges Bonnet.
Count von Welczeck.
[A. P. Wirephotos.]

The French caution was given to the German ambassador, Count Johannes von Welczeck this afternoon by Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet during a surprise interview at the foreign ministry, these sources said.

In a quick series of conferences Bonnet talked also with the Polish and British ambassadors, Jules Lukasiewics and Sir Eric Phipps.

Communique Issued.

Almost four hours of official silence followed Bonnet's meeting with Von Welczeck until a semi-official communique said Bonnet had outlined to the German envoy the position of France as it was defined by Premier Edouard Daladier before the chamber of deputies.

In adjourning the chamber Tuesday the premier said he considered that Europe faced the gravest international situation in twenty years, and that France was determined to resist any attempt to dominate Europe by force.

Bonnet, it was stated, emphasized to Count von Welczeck that if Poland felt she was menaced and went to war to defend her rights, then France would be at her side.

MORE RESOLUTE STAND

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, July 1.—All official signs here today pointed toward a more resolute stand by France and Great Britain in the face of the German menace to Poland.

Although semi-official comments on this communique specified that the stronger measures approved by the cabinet are entirely of a diplomatic nature, there are also rumors of further military measures in the next few days.

Staff Chief Cancels Trip.

Gen. Maurice Gustave Gamelin, French chief of staff, who has just finished a tour of the Alpine fortifications, has abandoned a trip to Corsica which he planned and is returning to Paris. In keeping with this significant development is the wording of the communique on the cabinet meeting, which begins:

"Premier Daladier outlined to the cabinet the general situation which remains very serious."

See Pressure On Poland.

Since at the same time the view was expressed in official circles that no immediate crisis in Danzig is to be expected, it seems reasonable to suppose that rumored military measures, the return of Gen. Gamelin and the grave tone of the official communique are intended to show Germany that France means business.

However, a very different interpretation is given to the same facts by some observers. The afternoon newspaper, Ce Soir, asked in a headline: "Does the alarmist campaign in Paris and London presage French-British pressure on Poland?"

DANZIG AWAITS HITLER'S SIGNAL TO SPRING COUP

Nazis Say City Will Decide Own Future.

BERLIN, July 1.—(AP)—High quarters tonight said that the Free City of Danzig probably would return to Germany through a declaration of Danzig citizens on the basis of the right of self-determination.

When this step would be taken remained a mystery. There was a flood of rumors giving conflicting dates.

One man—Reichsfuehrer Hitler—will determine the hour. In the past when he has decided to move he has done so suddenly, without letting the world in on his secret beforehand.

Danzig Arms Self.

Danzig is modestly arming itself for such an eventuality, although its spokesmen say that the free city will not take the initiative. This was believed here to mean merely that Danzig will not hoist the swastika flag until Hitler gives the signal.

Although Danzig is a small part of what the Nazis want from Poland—the port is included in Poland's customs system—the members of the Nazi high command were believed to have decided to start with it because they regard it as the weakest part of the Polish armor.

The Nazis say that Poland's allies, Britain and France, will not fight over Danzig, which, they say, is beyond doubt a German city and wants to return to the reich. Danzig was a part of Germany before the world war.

Expect British-French Aid.

Some Nazi quarters even say they see a great advantage for Germany in the nervousness of Paris and London over a Danzig putsch. They reason that if officials in these two capitals convince themselves that Germany is about to start military action, then they will come forward and offer Danzig to Hitler on a platter.

The foreign office today denied that Hitler or his first aid, Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering, or any other leading Nazi personality planned to go to Danzig. The foreign office said that in any case none of them would go until after the free city formally was annexed by the reich.

Warsaw Gets a Report.

WARSAW, July 1.—(AP)—Foreign Minister Josef Beck received a report on the situation in Danzig today from Marian Chodacki, Polish commissioner-general in the free city. Beck conferred later with Clifford Norton, British chargé d'affaires in Warsaw.

There was official silence on what the commissioner general reported, but some Poles saw indications that Germany would respect the status quo in Danzig at least until the end of August.

The basis for these observations was a formal notice from Berlin that the German cruiser Koenigsberg would visit Danzig Aug. 23-25 to participate in the commemoration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the battle of Tannenberg, in which the Germans defeated Russian forces. Crew men of the German boat Magdenburg, which participated in the battle, are buried in Danzig.

Reports reaching Warsaw tonight said a German plane was forced down yesterday near the Polish town of Czestochowa, 31 miles from the German frontier, and two Nazi pilots were detained. One pilot was said to have been injured and the other was caught by police after attempting to flee with a movie camera and films of Polish military preparations along the border. Czestochowa is opposite German Silesia.

Hitler Guards in Danzig.

FREE CITY OF DANZIG, July 1.—(AP)—A tour of all parts of Danzig today disclose that black uniformed Danzig Hitler guards were in complete charge of one hill and had partial control of another.

Business went on as usual in the city hall, and the radio station was unguarded by either police or Hitler guards. Any one could wander in or out and there were no provisions visible for caring for several hundred men who, according to many reports, are stationed within the radio building.

But on two hills overlooking Danzig the Blackshirts were ready to defend the community in any emergency. Tourists with field glasses and cameras went to the top of the Bischofsberg without molestation, but were not allowed to take certain side paths in the park which crowns the hill. These paths were closed by barricades and signs stated that entrance was forbidden.

The Hitler guards had taken complete charge of the Hadelsberg, on the top of which are the two masts of the Danzig radio station.

Rumors Sweep Free City.

Danzig vibrated with rumors and many citizens were saying they were sure that German soldiers or members of Nazi semi-military formations from outside Danzig were in town.

There were stories that mysterious trucks were bringing in loads of arms, and a Polish moving van was pointed out as being under suspicion. Investigation disclosed that the van was carrying 150 mattresses which were being taken to the Wiehen barracks for use of extra men being called in for augmented police service.

Gossip said that some of these new men were Germans who crossed the border from East Prussia. They wear on their sleeves little bands with the legend "heimwehr." It was explained in official quarters that the band indicated they were Danzig Hitler guard men who had volunteered for police service.

Deny Germans on Duty.

Danzig officials insisted that not a single man from Germany, with or without a uniform, was on duty in the Free City. The men on duty, it was declared, are all Danzigers.

NAZI EMPLOYERS TOLD BEAUTY IS ONLY SKIN DEEP

BERLIN, July 1.—(AP)—Glamorous secretary became an issue among Nazis today with an official warning to employers that "youthful charm by no means always guarantees highest efficiency."

The situation arose as a result of a call upon women to help relieve the serious labor shortage. Nazi labor officials complained that it was very difficult to place women over 35 years old, particularly secretaries and stenographers, because employers maintained they were less efficient and capable than younger women.

The official Korrespondenz of the German Labor front told personnel chiefs that such objections were not honorably intended because "it is exactly older women, unburdened by outside affairs and desires, who are indispensable."

Then it advised: "Don't be guided by outward impressions. Highest objectivity is necessary, especially in hiring women."

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, July 1.—The New Zealand government announced yesterday that it had begun to carry out the new air armaments agreement with Great Britain. The agreement provides that New Zealand will train 220 pilots yearly in peacetime and be prepared to send abroad 1,300 trained pilots and also other air personnel yearly in wartime. New Zealand will create her own system of aircraft production.

DANZIG A CENTER OF TURMOIL FOR MANY CENTURIES

History of City Traced to Year 997.

In the present war scare in Europe, the Free City of Danzig is the king pin. The city's exact legal and political status inevitably will be an important factor in the struggle which now appears to be under way.

Little is known of Danzig before the year 997, when the records mention it as an important town. It was held at various times by Pomerania, Poland, Brandenburg, and Denmark. In 1308 the Knights of the Teutonic Order pillaged the town, bringing in German settlers and considerable prosperity. Danzig became one of the four principal cities of the Hanseatic league.

An idea of its mercantile importance at this period can be gained from the fact that in 1351, during a terrific storm, no less than sixty-one British ships were wrecked in Danzig harbor. In 1392 it is reported that more than 100 British ships were in the harbor at one time.

City Ceded to Poland.

In 1455, after the Teutonic order had become corrupt, Danzig shook off its yoke with Poland's help. The city then was formally ceded to Poland, along with West Prussia, at the peace of Thorn. After this Danzig enjoyed the rights of a free city for about three centuries, governing a sizeable surrounding territory containing thirty villages. But it was nominally subject to Poland and was represented in the Polish diets and at the election of Polish kings.

In 1793, when Poland was partitioned into three pieces by Prussia, Russia, and Austria, Danzig came into the possession of Prussia. The city had a brief liberation in 1807, when Napoleon declared it a free town, but the Prussians recovered it seven years later and from then until the end of the world war it remained the capital of West Prussia, in German hands.

At the time of the treaty of Versailles, 96 per cent of Danzig's population was German. For that reason the treaty makers did not want to hand the city to Poland, as Poland requested.

Given Free Status.

They compromised by giving the city its free status, approximately as it had been before the Prussians took it from the Poles in the 18th century. The formal proclamation of the Free City of Danzig, as decreed in articles 100-108 of the treaty of Versailles, was made on Nov. 15, 1920, by a representative of the league of nations, and the allied troops were withdrawn.

Danzig had become a miniature sovereign state, with some limitations, and it comprised the port and municipality of Danzig with a small hinterland. Its constitution, drafted by a constituent assembly freely elected in May, 1920, was speedily ratified with a few minor amendments by the league of nations and authorized by the league-appointed high commissioner.

For local government, Danzig's constitution guarantees her a popularly elected assembly [Volkstag], which in turn chooses an executive body—the senate—whose president is the premier of the free city. Danzig's foreign affairs are assigned to Poland to handle, and the free city is incorporated in the Polish customs area [which is not quite the same as saying Danzig and Poland have a customs union].

Poles Given Outlet to Sea.

The purpose of the Versailles treaty makers in detaching Danzig from Germany was primarily to provide the newly reconstituted republic of Poland with an outlet to the sea. It was natural, therefore, that they did not object when the free city concluded treaties with Poland giving Poland various special rights in Danzig.

Among the latter are the transportation of people and goods, postal rights, the free use of the harbor and shipyards, the education and general welfare of Poles in the city, and a guarantee that Danzig remain a demilitarized territory without fortifications, armed forces, or any right to import or manufacture munitions.

Despite the disapproval of the league's high commissioner, the city, through elections, has become practically a miniature Third Reich since Hitler came to power in Germany.

Senate Called Rubber Stamp.

The Nazis call it a party district and their local leader controls the local government through the large German majority, most of which is strongly Nazi. The Volkstag, it is charged, has become as meaningless as the German reichstag, and the senate is a rubber stamp cabinet.

Opposition parties, said to represent about one-third of the population, claim they owe their continued existence only to the vigilance of the league high commissioner and Hitler's hesitation to take over complete control.

Germany Launches Fifth New 10,000 Ton Cruiser

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, July 1.—Germany's fifth new heavy cruiser, the Luetzow, was launched today at Bremen in the presence of Grand Admiral Erich H. A. Raeder. The new vessel displaces 10,000 tons and is designed for a speed of thirty-two knots. The cruiser has eight 8 inch guns as main armament. Anti-aircraft artillery consists of twelve 4 inch guns and twelve 1.5 inch guns. There are also twelve torpedo tubes.

ENGLAND CALLS FIRST BATCH OF NEW CONSCRIPTS

34,000 Youths Summoned to War Camps.

LONDON, July 1.—[U.P.]—Great Britain called its first batch of conscripts to the colors today under its new peacetime compulsory service act. Thirty-four thousand youths of 20 years, born as the echoes of the world war died, were ordered to report for army training July 15—the first peacetime conscripts in modern British history. They are among 200,000 20 year olds who have passed their physical examinations.

The conscripts will do their bit in a de luxe manner. The ferocious drill sergeants familiar to recruits of the past have been ordered to treat the new militiamen with special sympathy, and were warned:

"Instructors must avoid parrot like repetitions and must demonstrate that the instructor of the comic papers and films, who relied on rudeness, bullying and sarcasm, has no place in the army of today."

Furious Rearmament Pace.

Calling of the militiamen came as one evidence of the racing pace of British rearmament, the result of the European situation. Another was the assumption today by two of the country's foremost military leaders of new army posts—Gen. Sir Walter Kirke as inspector general of the home forces and Gen. Sir Edmund Ironside as inspector general of overseas forces.

It was made known officially today that on his way to assume his new post Gen. Ironside, who had been serving as governor and commander in chief at Gilbraltar, conferred with Gen. Francisco Franco, Spanish nationalist leader, at Burgos.

King to See Review.

Tomorrow King George VI. in his first big public engagement since his welcome home reception, will review a parade of more than 25,000 men and women in a demonstration of war preparedness. Units of the territorial army, ambulance corps, air raid precautions, organizations and auxiliary bombing raid fire squads will take part.

BRITAIN RECALLS ITS ENVOY TO VIENNA ON ORDER BY GERMANY

VIENNA, July 1.—(AP)—Britain today summoned home her Vienna consul general, Donald St. Clair Gainer, complying with Germany's request of June 21 for his recall, which retaliated for the ousting of German Consul General Walther Reinhardt from Liverpool.

Gainer received orders to report at the London foreign office next week.

Reinhardt left Liverpool last week after Britain had demanded his recall on grounds of his alleged connection with an espionage case. German officials said the move against Gainer also was concerned with espionage. London and Berlin each denied the charges against its official.

HITLER APPOINTS DR. SCHACHT AS HIS OWN ADVISER

Financier Will Guide Economic Policies.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, July 1.—Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, former president of the Reichsbank, is scheduled to take over the post of personal economic adviser to Reichsfuehrer Hitler, with offices in the chancellery and the rank of minister. Dr. Schacht is en route home from a trip to India.

The veteran financier, who is 60 years old, while head of the Reichsbank, disapproved of the Nazi government's spending program and found some of the Nazi financial experiments too daring for his taste. He was superseded by Germany's minister of economics, Walther Funk.

Funk Now Alarmed.

Yesterday Funk made a speech which, experts said, indicated that he was alarmed by the next financial developments in Germany. Hitler himself has assumed the high command over the Reichsbank.

The post of personal economic adviser to Hitler was held heretofore by Wilhelm Keppler, who devoted much of his energy to economic measures in preparation for the incorporation of Austria and Czecho-Slovakia into Germany. Keppler now spends much time in Bohemia and Moravia, where he is adjusting the economic resources of the newly conquered provinces to Germany's requirements.

Schacht's Position Bigger.

Schacht's position is bigger than Keppler's was since, in the meantime, Hitler's financial powers have increased. Schacht will be given a special suite of offices in the chancellery that formerly were held for Baron Konstantin von Neurath, protector for Bohemia and Moravia. Von Neurath spends most of his time in Prague.

POLAND IS CALM; SEES NAZI TRICK IN DANZIG UPROAR

Warsaw Thinks Berlin Is Trying to Rattle Her.

BY ALEX SMALL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WARSAW, July 1.—The eyes of the Polish government are fixed on developments in Danzig and Berlin, where the Poles feel that the destiny of Europe is being decided.

News from Danzig today continued to tell of machine guns and anti-aircraft guns being smuggled into the free city, of a constant influx of so-called tourists from Germany, of the appearance of Hitler guards carrying bayonets, of the Nazis laying up big supplies of foodstuffs, and of a military census being taken of all vehicles, including bicycles.

On the surface all indications are that preparations are being made for an upheaval in the near future.

Poles Hold Different View.

A different view, however, is expressed in Polish political circles here. That view is that very little is happening in Danzig. What is happening, the Poles say, is that German sources are spreading the impression that the Danzig situation is fast becoming critical and that dramatic events are being prepared.

That impression, according to this Polish view, is primarily intended for Poland. Stories from Danzig, it is declared, are another episode in the war of nerves which the Germans are carrying on. The precise object of the present move, as political circles here see it, is to stampede the Polish government into some hasty and panicky action, such as general mobilization.

High official circles here hold the opinion that Germans are much disappointed at the way in which the Poles are supporting the burden of the partial mobilization of the past three months.

Discount Cost of Mobilization.

These Poles—while refusing to cite precise figures—claim that their military expenses at present are only a little more than the regular provision of the budget and that they can easily stand the financial strain of mobilization on the present scale for twenty years if necessary.

Hence the German plan, according to this Polish opinion, is to force the Poles to complete mobilization and compel them to keep more than 3,000,000 men with the colors instead of the approximately 1,000,000 at present. That effort would quickly ruin the Poles financially, according to German calculations, and soften up Polish obstinacy to the point where the government would be willing to accept another Munich arrangement.

General mobilization is, therefore, entirely out of Polish intentions at this moment. The army now in the field, it is felt, is adequate protection against surprises and emergencies. It is considered as sufficient to provide coverage behind which general mobilization could take place.

Test Nerves of Powers.

Another German object in raising a rumpus about Danzig, according to these political circles, is to test the nerve and see the reaction of Great Britain and France. Reports reaching Warsaw are that the Germans have at least partially succeeded in giving London and Paris the jitters. In contrast, both officials and the public here are taking the Danzig affair with almost stupefying nonchalance.

From an unofficial but usually well informed source, the Tribune correspondent has heard another interpretation of the present uproar. It is that the Danzig affair is merely a diversion intended to focus the eyes of the world on one point while a bold stroke is being effected in another region.

Reports reaching THE TRIBUNE are that Hungary and Jugo-Slavia especially—and in general all capitals of southeast Europe—are worth careful attention during the next few weeks.

BRITISHERS WARN NAZIS: ROOSEVELT READY TO MIX IN Cite President's Message to Duce and Hitler.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 1.—The British National Council of Labor, representing trade unions and the Labor party, today warned Germany that the United States of America must be reckoned with if war comes.

A manifesto, titled, "Why kill each other?" cited President Roosevelt's activities in connection with European affairs as evidence that America will be an important factor if Europe goes to war. The manifesto, which was broadcast from secret wireless stations on the continent and distributed through the underground organization of the illegal German Freedom party, said:

"President Roosevelt's recent message to Hitler and Mussolini will have shown you unmistakably that the United States of America, that great and powerful nation of the west, feels she cannot afford to remain disinterested in the disturbing European situation."

Backs Chamberlain Policies.

The manifesto repeated the arguments of Viscount Halifax, British foreign secretary, and Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain that Great Britain is not trying to encircle anybody but merely wants to guard against aggression. It gave full and uncompromising support to Chamberlain's policies, which indicated that the Laborite opposition has virtually collapsed and that Chamberlain is in a position to run the show pretty much to suit himself.

Chamberlain and Halifax called in leaders of the trade unions and Labor party last week for a conference, at which an agreement to follow Chamberlain's lead without further argument apparently was reached.

The labor council's message urged the people of Germany to join other workers of the world in insisting that disputes be settled by reason and not by war. As with all recent officially inspired statements here, there was the usual broad hint that it is still not too late to sit down and talk things over.

Urges Nazi Coöperation.

"As soon as your government is reasonable and as soon as its methods are those of peace and not violence, negotiations on the basis of equality can take place," the manifesto said.

"Far from wishing to encircle your country with a view to crushing it, we invite you to come into the circle yourselves and join with the worldwide combination of nations so the great abilities of the German people may make their contributions to the establishment of a friendly world in which mankind can prosper."

The Germans were told that war is threatening them from within and that if it comes it will be the responsibility of Hitler. They were warned that if warlike preparations, lying propaganda and stimulated disturbances regarding Danzig do not end war will result.

Calls War Madness.

"What sheer madness it would be for us to set about the beastly business of killing each other," the manifesto said. "We beg you to do whatever you can to make known to your government that you want peace, not war."

Sir Howard Kennard, British ambassador to Warsaw, who returned here yesterday, had another talk with Halifax today. Halifax is remaining in town over the week-end.

Chamberlain, however, has gone to the country. He will return tomorrow night for a radio speech, which may refer to the tension over Danzig.

Offer Prayers for Release of Churchmen Held by Nazis

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, July 1.—Services of intercession were held throughout Germany by the Confessional [Evangelical Lutheran] church today, the second anniversary of the imprisonment of the Rev. Martin Niemoeller. The pastor, who was a world war U-boat commander, still is held in the Sachsenhausen concentration camp despite many attempts by his friends, including persons in high office, to obtain his release. Prayers also were offered for seven other ministers held in prison.

THE DUCHESS OF SPOLETO.

[Associated Press Photos.]

THE DUKE OF SPOLETO.

FLORENCE, Italy, July 1.—(AP)—The duke and duchess of Spoleto, whose marriage today joined the royal houses of Italy and Greece, left Florence tonight for Vatican City to receive the papal blessing.

The duke, a cousin of King Victor Emanuel, and his bride, formerly Princess Irene of Greece, will be received by Pope Pius XII. tomorrow in a private audience.

The duke and his princess, sister of King George II. of Greece, were married in one of the most colorful and picturesque gatherings of royalty in many years.

King Victor Emanuel and many of the other high ranking guests left afterward for Siena. The marriage was declared officially to be a love match, but diplomatic circles regarded it as tending to strengthen Italian-Greek ties at a time of uneasiness in Greece over Italy's annexation of Albania, putting Italian soldiers on Greece's borders.

FINLAND REBUKES RUSSIA FOR OFFER OF PROTECTION

HELSINGFORS, Finland, July 1.—(AP)—Prime Minister A. K. Cajander gave formal notice today that Finland wanted no pledges of protection from soviet Russia.

He said in a statement that the soviet's insistence upon guarantees for Finland, along with the Baltic states, as a part of any soviet agreement with Great Britain could not be considered a friendly act. Finland recently rejected Germany's offer of a nonaggression treaty.

"Against our wish to stand neutral we are offered protection, which we have not asked and which we do not accept, and which offer we do not consider a friendly act," the prime minister said. "We will firmly adhere to our policy of strict neutrality, working toward this end in coöperation with the other Scandinavian countries."

REVISION OF WPA BEGINS; MONTHLY HOURS INCREASED

Officials Are Hazy on Some New Provisions.

Reorganization of the WPA under the compromise agreement reached by congress and signed Friday by President Roosevelt began yesterday. Instructions were received here by Charles E. Miner, state WPA director, from Col. F. C. Harrington, national administrator, and were transmitted to WPA deputy officials throughout the state.

One provision of the bill abolishes the prevailing wage scale for WPA workers and requires them to work 130 hours a month for their pay. WPA workers in Illinois previously averaged 108.7 hours a month, Miner said.

The wage for unskilled labor varies from $40 a month in many downstate counties to $55 a month in Cook and Peoria counties. WPA workers previously worked only as many hours as were required to earn their month's pay under their hourly wage rates. Under the new plan they will put in 130 hours to get the pay.

More Material Needed.

"More material will be needed to keep the workers employed in the added hours," said Miner. "Projects will be completed more quickly. More projects will be needed unless the number of workers is reduced."

The federal theater project under the WPA was abolished by congress, but persons employed in this work will be retained on the rolls temporarily at the same pay rate. There are 667 persons in Illinois affected by this ruling.

The final curtain on two federal theater plays in Chicago, "As You Like It" at the Blackstone theater and "Street Scene" at the Great Northern, was rung down Friday night and purchasers of tickets will receive refunds. The swing version of "The Mikado," the only WPA show which met its expenses, was to have been presented last night and tonight at Mandel hall on the University of Chicago campus, but the performances were canceled. Refunds will be made to ticket purchasers.

Hazy on Other Provisions.

WPA and city officials were hazy yesterday as to the immediate effect of several other provisions of the reorganization law, which were discussed in Harrington's message. One is that the government may not spend more than $52,000 on any WPA project. There was some speculation whether this could be circumvented by splitting large projects into smaller ones.

The new program also provides that art projects, other than the federal theater, may continue if local communities put up at least 25 per cent of their cost. It was believed Chicago officials will be unable to continue such projects unless they can be made self sustaining, which is regarded as unlikely.

Another provision of the reorganization law is that WPA workers who have been on the rolls eighteen months must take a thirty day layoff. Those still in need after that period must take their places with other applicants for WPA jobs. This is expected to affect approximately 30,000 WPA workers in Illinois.

Expect Relief Roll Increase.

It was announced Friday that 22,000 WPA workers would be discharged in Chicago over the week-end. It was expected that this would result in a large increase in Chicago's relief load. The discharge of the men, nearly a fourth of all WPA workers in the city, was due to the city's inability to provide funds to sponsor projects on which they had been employed.

Officials of the Chicago Relief Administration said yesterday that the men dismissed will be required to apply and meet eligibility requirements for relief, just as if they had lost private employment. Many of those discharged will have at least two weeks' pay due and will not be able to apply for relief until this is exhausted.

CRA officials were unable to estimate how many of the discharged WPA men will try to get on the relief rolls, but it was believed that they will number nearly all those who cannot get back on WPA or cannot find private jobs.

4 Million a Month Provided.

On Friday night Gov. Horner signed the $72,000,000 biennial relief appropriation which will be expended at the rate of not more than $4,000,000 a month. At present there are 111,000 home relief cases in the city. The added burden of carrying the men discharged from WPA work is expected to cause the reduction of fund allotments in each case in order to keep the expenditures within Chicago's share of the $4,000,000 a month. The city's share is approximately $2,800,000.

Under the measure passed Friday night by the Illinois legislature, but not yet signed by the governor, reliefers must have been residents of their city, village, or township for three years. This requirement is to prevent an influx of reliefers from rural areas to cities where relief standards are higher.

Among WPA workers dismissed in Chicago were those on the airport, demolition, macadam streets, and asphalt street projects. The fourteen automobile inspection lanes, largely manned by WPA help, were closed yesterday, but were expected to reopen Wednesday.

David Kennicott, PWA regional director, said that present PWA projects will not be affected by the action of congress in eliminating $125,000,000 earmarked for the PWA. The PWA is assured of funds until June 30, 1940, under an appropriation made last year, Kennicott said.

Frances Bell Becomes Bride

Wears Gown of 1882

BY JUDITH CASS.

A handsome wedding gown of white brocade that first was worn in 1882 by the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Frederic S. Bell of Winona, Minn., was worn yesterday by Miss Frances Laird Bell for her marriage to Gilbert H. Osgood. The ceremony took place in Christ church chapel, Winnetka, at 4:30 o'clock, with a reception following at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Laird Bell, in the same village.

The bride used a silver bouquet holder in which to carry her bouquet of white flowers, a custom of the same period as the dress. The maid and matron of honor, Miss Margaret Bell and Mrs. Geoffrey de Freitas of London, sisters of the bride, wore buff colored gowns of organdy, small leghorn hats, and carried garden flowers of blue, yellow and white. The bridesmaids, who included another sister, Miss Nathalie Bell, wore similar gowns in blue.

Mr. Osgood, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy C. Osgood, had his younger brother, Alfred, as best man. Mr. Osgood and his bride will be at home in Chicago next fall.

FASCISTS WARN BRITISH, FRENCH OF WAR DANGER

[Copyright: 1939: By the New York Times.]

ROME, July 1.—In the strongest Italian warning thus far issued in respect to Danzig, the weekly Relazioni Internazionale, which is generally considered authoritative, wrote today that an attempt by Great Britain and France to defend the status quo inevitably will lead to a major European war. The alliance with Germany will operate automatically and Italy will take the opportunity to satisfy her claims on French territory and French possessions by force of arms, it added.

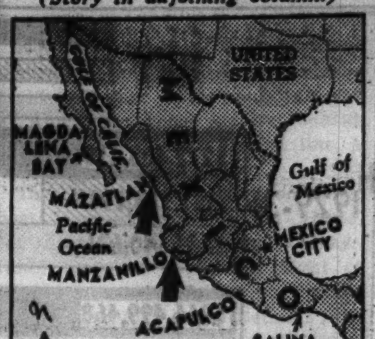
2 PORTS CAPTURE BULK OF MEXICO'S TRADE ON PACIFIC

Mazatlan and Manzanillo Overshadow 3 Others.

Busy Mexican Ports

(Story in adjoining column.)



Mazatlan and Manzanillo (indicated by large arrows) have surpassed three other ports in contest for Mexican trade on the Pacific.

BY CAPT. M. M. CORPENING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEXICO CITY, July 1.—Only two of the five main seaports on Mexico's long Pacific coastline today offer scenes of activity. They are Mazatlan and Manzanillo. The others are Magdalena Bay, Acapulco, and Salina Cruz.

Mazatlan, at the mouth of the Gulf of California, is the commercial and shipping leader of the west coast and the most important port between San Diego, Cal., and Panama. It is the outlet for mining and agricultural products and the receiving point for many imports.

Steamship communication with America and Central America is frequent and the Southern Pacific runs four trains a week in and out of Mazatlan.

Sunken Rocks in Harbor.

The city of 25,000 is situated on a peninsula. Many large sunken rocks in the harbor keep ship pilots on the alert. All cargo and passengers are handled by lighters of which there are twenty-nine in service.

Barges carry fuel, water and supplies to the ships. The harbor has a machine shop equipped for minor repairs. The port is connected with the Mexican National Telegraph system, there is a government radio station, and Pan American Airways planes call three times a week.

With its light colored houses against the background of the coastal range to the east, Mazatlan is picturesque both from the air and the ground. However, the climate is hot and especially oppressive during the rainy season from June to September.

Manzanillo Gaining.

Manzanillo, about 300 miles south of Mazatlan and about the center of Mexico's coastline, is a town of about 7,000 population. It is the port of entry for the rich agricultural state of Colima and is connected by rail with Guadalajara, Mexico's second largest city. Manzanillo's importance as a port is constantly increasing.

Manzanillo's wharf is 425 feet long and 18 feet wide. It is used for general cargo which is handled by ship's gear. The harbor also has thirteen lighters, a ten ton crane and a 250 horse power tug. An oil company has another wharf of about the same proportions as the commercial wharf.

Manzanillo's main business sections consists of two paved streets along the waterfront and it is backed by high hills upon which are built most of the residences. Business buildings are of adobe and brick and the houses are frame. The weather from December to March is pleasant, but the other months are hot and malaria must be guarded against.

One a Winter Resort.

Acapulco, with a population of 10,000, is 300 miles southwest of Mexico City and has the best of the natural harbors, but one which is undeveloped. The town has no railroad, but a good highway runs to Mexico City and steamships call frequently.

The harbor is a bay one by two miles and is shielded from the ocean by a mountain 1,500 feet high. The wharf, with depths of 10 to 28 feet alongside, has berthing space of only 150 feet. Vessels of not more than 2,000 tons can tie up and handle cargo by their own gear.

Acapulco is a popular winter resort with two modern hotels, one air conditioned. The weather is pleasant through the winter months and the fishing and swimming good.

Ghost Town of Isthmus.

The ports serving the northern and southern extremes of the coastline are of only minor importance. Magdalena bay is on the western shore and about 200 miles from the tip of the Lower California peninsula. The bay is about seventeen miles long and twelve miles wide, but sandbars and shoals render it hazardous.

Salina Cruz, on the isthmus of Tehuantepec, the narrow strip of land which separates the Atlantic from the Pacific, is a ghost town. Before the Panama canal was opened, it was a boom town of 30,000 population; today it has less than 5,000 residents.

The harbor is man made between two breakwater jetties set at an angle. One jetty is half a mile long and twenty feet wide; the other is similar, but shorter. There is about half a mile square of protected water.

LIEUT. STANLEY SOARS 190 MILES TO LEAD RACERS

Elmira, N. Y., July 1.—[U. P.]—Lieut. Robert M. Stanley, U. S. N., soared into undisputed leadership in the $1,500 American gliding championship race today by piloting his motorless plane 190 miles to Long Beach airport, New York City. Stanley telegraphed national soaring contest officials here that he would celebrate his feat by looking over the world's fair before returning to the takeoff point at Harris hill.

Lieut. Stanley's flight enabled him to forge ahead of Chester J. Decker of Glen Rock, N. J., who was tied with him in contest points at the takeoff today. Decker, attempting a flight to Philadelphia, landed at Nanticoke, Pa., a distance of eighty-five miles.

Contest officials believed a new American record for distance passenger flight was established by Lewin Baringer of Philadelphia, who piloted his craft 100 miles to Abernberg, N. Y. His passenger was Jack Brookhart, Brooklyn, N. Y.

MILK CONTROL RETURNS IN N. Y.; UP GOES PRICE

Housewives Begin Paying 1c a Quart More.

New York, July 1.—[Special.]—A federal-state milk marketing agreement, similar to the one that has been requested for Chicago, were reinstated today after a lapse of several months. Housewives were at once forced to pay 13 cents a quart for grade B milk, an increase of one cent over yesterday's price. Grade B is the milk used generally here.

The agreement permits the fixing of prices paid to farm producers for their fluid milk. In February it was held illegal in the federal court, but this decision was reversed by the United States Supreme court early in June. Shortly afterward plans were made to restore the control and on June 20 large dairies raised consumer prices from 11½ to 12 cents for grade B milk.

Price Lower Without Control.

Before the federal court decision was rendered, the standard grade B price was 13¾ cents. When the price control was overthrown in March the price fell to 11 cents. It has been predicted that the grade B price under the renewed agreement will go to 14 cents. Grade A, the quality retailed in Chicago, now costs New Yorkers 16 cents a quart.

The control program, set by the secretary of agriculture, is strengthened by the Nunan-Allen state law, which gives the state agricultural director emergency power to fix prices. This law, designed to raise returns to farmers, became effective today.

Mayor Seeks to Avert Strike.

It was announced today that a strike of 20,000 milk wagon drivers, which was called for tomorrow night, has been postponed at least until Wednesday. Mayor Fiorello La Guardia said that drivers union officials had agreed to meet him then to discuss the situation.

The drivers have demanded wage increases that large distributors say would force another two cents a quart increase on the consumer.

IL DUCE'S CODE OF CIVIL LAW TAKES EFFECT

[Copyright: 1939: By the New York Times.]

ROME, July 1.—The first book of Italy's new civil code took effect today, putting an end to the old Italian code of 1865 which, in turn, was based on the Napoleonic code. The new code is the "true Fascist body of laws" which is being prepared under Premier Benito Mussolini's order and is intended to set as deep a stamp on civil justice throughout the world as did Napoleon's in the nineteenth century.

The laws codified in this first book cover chiefly the family, matrimony, inheritance, and the new racial decrees. They embody the primary Fascist concept of subordinating the individual to the state. It has taken twenty years to complete this first book, under the direction of Vittoria Scialoja, a noted jurist.

DEFEAT OF ARMS SALE IN NEW DEAL BILL STIRS HULL

Calls Original Measure Aid to World Peace.

Washington, D. C., July 1.—(AP)—Voicing a new plea for approval of the administration's neutrality program, Secretary of State Cordell Hull pointedly told congress today that it was needed not alone for this country's own interests but to encourage world peace.

The administration program, he said in a statement, "is not only best calculated to keep this nation out of war in the event war comes, but also, what is all important at this time, best calculated to make a far greater contribution than could the present law or its equivalent toward the discouragement of the outbreak of war."

The secretary's statement was made at a press conference, but it was obvious that it was directed as well to Capitol hill, where a coalition of Republicans and Democrats in the house ripped the administration's measure to pieces last night and approved an embargo on arms sales to nations at war.

Here Is Heart of Measure.

The present law includes a mandatory embargo on sales of arms, ammunition and implements of war to belligerents. Repeal of this provision is the heart of the administration's neutrality program, but the house voted to keep an embargo on sales of arms and munitions, merely striking out "implements of war."

In some quarters Hull's statement was interpreted as a warning that failure to repeal the embargo completely would encourage dissatisfied nations to aggression, since the arms factories of this country would be closed to their victims.

Chairman Key Pittman [D., Nev.] of the senate foreign relations committee put this viewpoint in blunt language by asserting that the house members who frustrated the administration's wishes" have really adopted a policy to help Hitler."

Pittman O. K.'s Hull's Views.

Pittman said he endorsed the views expressed by Hull, but at the same time indicated a belief that there would have to be some concessions to the house if any bill was to be enacted. "There is no use in the senate taking any action that will not be confirmed by the house," he said.

It was apparent that the house approved bill would not be acceptable to many of the varying senate schools of thought on neutrality legislation.

Senator William E. Borah [R., Idaho] said he was not satisfied with the modified version of the embargo, as approved by the house. Among some senators there was a disposition to regard the matter as having been settled by the house.

Doubt Any Senate Action.

Senators Bennett C. Clark [D., Mo.] and Gerald P. Nye [R., N. D.] expressed the opinion that there would be nothing done by the senate, since the house had turned down the administration proposal.

Speaker William B. Bankhead told his press conference today that he was "very apprehensive" of possible foreign repercussion to house refusal to remove the embargo.

"I believe this action of the house has been keenly observed by some of the governments abroad which might be classed as trouble makers and I fear they might draw the conclusion that there was a lack of concerted action between the executive and legislative branches of the government on this question of foreign policy," the speaker said.

LOSES WEALTH, SLAYS WIFE AND SON; SURRENDERS

Los Angeles, Cal., July 1.—(AP)—A 65 year old radio accessory salesman, who told of financial reverses and said he was in the coffee business in Chicago twenty years ago and once ran for alderman, surrendered at the sherif's office today while he was being hunted for the fatal shooting of his wife and son at dawn.

The salesman, Albert Singer, who was accompanied by an attorney, was turned over to police. Detective Capt. Dalton R. Patton quoted him as saying "I tried to defend myself."

Mrs. Frances Singer, 65, died in a hospital less than two hours after she had been shot between the eyes as she lay in bed in her Hollywood flat.

Harry Singer, 27, a son, was wounded in the neck and died before he could be removed from his bed. His brother, William, 26, is expected to survive a bullet which glanced from his head.

William Singer's wife and 7 year old son, Billy, hid in a closet when the slayer entered their room.

Detective Lieutenant George Hill quoted Mrs. William Singer as saying her father-in-law had been away from home two weeks following an argument over drinking.

Singer told officers he suffered heavy financial losses in Chicago and St. Paul, including a $30,000 piece of property in the latter city. Capt. Patton said the man related:

"I decided to go back to Chicago. I pleaded with my own flesh and blood to let me get my clothes and go. They came at me and I tried to defend myself."

State's Spending for Ten Years

Appropriations of the Illinois general assembly, which adjourned early yesterday, were 14 million dollars less than those made at the session two years ago, but eight million dollars above the budget estimates. The graph presents a ten year record of state appropriations, expenditures, and income.

but were defeated through a combination of Democratic opposition and word from the social security board that it would not approve any flat sum not based on need and therefore would not contribute federal assistance.

The G. O. P. sponsorship of the $30 minimum was in accordance with the Republican state platform adopted last summer by the state convention in Peoria.

Two Senators Win Praise.

Senator Wilber H. Hickman [D., Paris] was hailed by fellow legislators for his work in digging about 400 obsolete laws from the statutes and presenting bills for their repeal. The Hickman series passed both houses by large majorities.

Another senator singled out for approval was Earl B. Searcy [R., Springfield], who introduced and had passed a so-called Americanization series. These dozen measures require all persons engaged in trades and professions licensed by the state to be citizens or to have applied for naturalization papers.

No tax increases were voted by the sixty-first session, but the 3-cent sales levy and a companion measure continuing the tax on utility services were extended for the next biennium. So was the life of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission, which will continue to allocate funds for the jobless.

Wedding Notice Law Saved.

Also listed as an accomplishment was defeat of a bill to repeal the three-day notice of intention to wed, passed last session to end gin marriages. The repealer went through the house but died on third reading in the senate last night for lack of three votes.

All save one of a series of bills to correct conditions at the St. Charles School for Boys were passed.

Of interest to sports fans was passage of a bill increasing the share racetracks may deduct from the total of daily wagers from 6½ to 7½ per cent. Another bill passed legalizes a lottery to provide funds for low cost housing. This measure is expected to get close examination as to its constitutionality, and many feel that it will be held invalid by the attorney general.

Bandit Wounds Passerby; Captured After Pursuit

John Graf, 707 West 71st street, a milkman, chased a colored bandit who robbed him of $6 yesterday at 45th street and Dearborn street. The bandit fired and one of his bullets inflicted a slight wound on Cuney Shand, colored, 4531 Dearborn street, a passerby. A moment later the thief was captured by a police squad. He gave him name as John Gillespie, 26 years old, 4619 Federal street.

THIRD BROTHER IS EXECUTED BY GANG KILLERS

Philadelphia, Pa., July 1.—(AP)—Gangland executioners today killed the third of the notorious Lanzetti brothers of South Philadelphia. The body of Willie Lanzetti, 38 years old, was found trussed in two burlap potato bags on an estate in an exclusive suburb. A wound in the back of the head apparently was caused by a bullet.

Willie's brother Leo was shot to death in South Philadelphia in August, 1925, and his brother Pius was slain with two bystanders by shots from an automobile on New Year's eve in 1936.

Another brother, Ignatius, was freed last spring from Trenton prison when the new Jersey anti-gangster law was invalidated. Two other brothers have police records.

Danny Day, a paroled slayer, was killed a month ago by gunfire in a downtown street and police are trying to link his death to Willie Lanzetti's.

Alicia Patterson Brooks Is Wed to Harry Guggenheim

Jacksonville, Fla., July 1.—(AP)—Harry F. Guggenheim, former United States ambassador to Cuba, and Mrs. Alicia Patterson Brooks, daughter of the publisher of the New York Daily News, were married here today. The ceremony was performed by County Judge J. Ollie Edmunds in the presence of friends at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Bitter. The couple left on a motor trip for an undisclosed destination. It was the third marriage for each.

and described as a "biography," and a small diary, supposedly written by Dr. Smith to his wife, detailing recent happenings. Police refused to discuss the manuscript and the diary.

Early today the Smiths still were at police headquarters. There are no accommodations there for women, and it was believed the couple would be taken to a hotel and kept under guard pending the arrival of Louisiana police. Police said they would keep a special watch on Mrs. Smith for fear she might try to harm herself. The general attitude of Smith throughout the night was that everything will be explained satisfactorily, and that he was not a fugitive from the law, and he appeared aggrieved.

Leche Announces Resignation.

Dr. Smith resigned as head of the university last Sunday. His resignation was announced by Gov. Leche, who revealed at the same time that Smith had disappeared and that there probably was a shortage of several hundred thousands in university funds. Leche temporarily postponed his announced resignation as governor for 24 hours because of the incident. He was succeeded by Lieut. Gov. Earl K. Long, who now is governor.

Investigations revealed Dr. Smith had speculated in the wheat market, and allegedly had lost $350,000 only recently. Smith finally was charged with embezzling $100,000 in university funds.

Will Fly to Get Dr. Smith.

Baton Rouge, La., July 2.—[Sunday.]—[Special.]—State and parish officials, after a hurried conference today on the surrender of Dr. James Monroe Smith in Brockville, Ont., announced that an officer left early today for Brockville in the Louisiana State university plane.

It is planned to fly Dr. Smith and his wife back here by late tonight. Certain customs formalities probably will have to be complied with before crossing the Canadian-American border. Gen. Louis F. Guerre, superintendent of state police, said only the officer and the pilot were on the plane.

It was reported that a relative of Dr. Smith had received a telegram from him last night from Canada stating, "Just read of indictment. Leaving. On our way home now." The wire was sent before his surrender.

STOP FEES TO OFFICIAL

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Baton Rouge, La., July 1.—A practice of paying to George Caldwell, construction superintendent, 2 per cent on the construction costs of building projects at Louisiana State university has been stopped by the university board, Gov. Earl K. Long disclosed today. Caldwell is among those subpenaed to appear before a parish grand jury.

How much Caldwell's commissions have amounted to in the three years he has held his job during a period of building activity has not been announced. Gov. Long holds that the action giving Caldwell a 2 per cent commission or fee was part of the financial juggling at the university under Dr. James Monroe Smith, ex-president.

Charges Resolution Was Faked.

"It looks as if this was done under a fake resolution that Smith put over on the board," said Gov. Long. "It looks as if the board itself didn't know what happened. This practice is not going on any more."

As the university is one of the agencies in the spending of WPA and PWA funds in Louisiana, the 2 per cent commission is deemed to give a federal phase to the investigation of the university which has resulted in Smith's flight. Smith, the fugitive pedagog, in a recent speech in New Orleans said of the building program at the university that in nine years 13½ million dollars had been spent on construction projects. Of this, Smith said, $1,800,000 was WPA funds and $800,000 PWA money. About thirty buildings were put up during the period.

Paid from University Funds.

It was said at the capitol that the 2 per cent fee on construction costs has been paid out of university funds, not federal funds. But the point is being raised that the 2 per cent commission may have been figured into construction costs, and some of the projects were paid for in part by federal money.

Indications of federal activities in the Louisiana State university scandals was seen today in the arrival in New Orleans of A. D. Burford, special investigator of the treasury department. Burford directed federal agents in the roundup of Huey Long's lieutenants for income tax evasions before Long's death in September, 1935. This roundup led to the indictment of several in the Long machine. Burford was in New Orleans today in advance of a government income tax investigation into the affairs of the fugitive former president of the university.

Speculate on Result.

From sources usually reliable, it was reported that Caldwell was shorn of about $50,000 as an associate of Dr. Smith in the latter's plunge into the wheat market.

Politics began to bubble during the day. Whether the scandals will break up the present machine, and how 1940 may be affected was the talk of politicians. A. P. Tugwell, state treasurer, who announced himself a candidate for governor a few hours before former Gov. Richard W. Leche announced he would resign as governor—because of arthritis—attacked slush funds today. State Senator James A. Noe, former governor, friend of the late Huey and opponent of Gov. Earl Long, Huey's brother, has been campaigning for governor with 5 per cent pay roll deductions as one issue.

Tugwell Sends a Letter.

The assessment on the pay rolls is supposed to bring anywhere from $3,500,000 to $5,000,000 a year into the political war chest.

Tugwell sent a letter today to J. M. Fush, business manager of the board of commissioners of the port of New Orleans. In it Tugwell asks whether Mayor Robert S. Maestri of New Orleans is the custodian of the funds. Maestri is the No. 1 big boy in the state political machine.

Tugwell said he proposed to ask Gov. Long to have the deductions stopped.

The five indictments returned by the parish grand jury yesterday against Dr. Smith; J. M. Brown, Smith's broker, and three members or Smith's family, are only a starter, it was indicated. Dewey Sanchez, district attorney of this parish said today: "A full and complete investigation will be made."

BOWEN REFUSES TO BUILD FENCE AT ST. CHARLES

Scorns Instructions of Legislature.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

A. L. Bowen.

Springfield, Ill., July 1.—With provision made for a new $250,000 security home for young criminals, A. L. Bowen, director of the state department of public welfare, stated today that he will not put a metal fence around the St. Charles School for Boys as ordered by the legislature.

"I don't believe it's necessary," Bowen said. "If all goes well, the new school to house the toughest boys can be completed in a year."

Under bills passed this morning by the house, a commission of fifteen will select a site somewhere in Illinois, probably not at St. Charles, and decide upon architectural plans. Gov. Horner, who has promised to sign the bills, will appoint five members. The ten others are expected to be the house and senate members who investigated the St. Charles school.

Speed Urged by Legislature.

Frequent escapes of inmates led the investigating committee to urge immediate erection of the metal fence around the school. The legislature provided a $40,000 emergency appropriation for the fence, lighting of the fence, and extra guards. Gov. Horner approved this measure May 22.

Bowen said he intends to light the grounds and pointed out that fifteen additional guards have been hired. He revealed that four horses have been purchased for them to use in patroling the 1,500 acres of the institution and to chase runaways.

Senator Thomas P. Gunning [R., Princeton], who introduced the bills, was indignant about Bowen's refusal to fence St. Charles, but said there is nothing to be done about it.

Gunning found satisfaction in passage of the measures permanently to remedy the situation. In addition to providing for the new institution, these permit segregation of young and mild offenders from older youths guilty of felonies.

New Name for Schools.

All commitments will be made to the Illinois Training School for Boys, which becomes the name for both the present and proposed schools. Courts must transmit to the department of public welfare complete case histories of boys. The department is empowered to classify inmates and send them to either institution.

If inmates are incorrigible when they reach the age of 21, they will no longer be automatically discharged as now, but will be taken back to the courts for commitment to the penitentiary. Boys from 10 to 19 years of age may be committed to the Illinois Training school; the age limit for St. Charles commitments is 16. Courts are required to verify ages to end the practice of smart hoodlums in falsifying their years to get milder punishment.

BURNED BY FIRECRACKER.

A lighted firecracker thrown from a group of persons at Division street and Kedzie avenue exploded and burned Robert Clamage, 19 years old, 1754 Humboldt boulevard, on his right hand as he was passing last night. He was given anti-tetanus treatment at the County hospital.

LUTHARDT DEATH RIDDLE STUDIED; NO CLEWS FOUND

Clothes Looted, but Heart Attack Is Indicated.

Police and coroner's investigators were without a clew last night in the mysterious death of William H. Luthardt.

William H. Luthardt.

Luthardt, who had been secretary to five police chiefs and more recently had been police attorney, was found dead early yesterday in the vestibule of an apartment building at 1526 East 67th place.

All indications were that he had died of a heart attack. There was no evidence of violence.

Yet one of his trousers pockets was inside out. His cards and letters were littered about. The gun he had been carrying was gone, as were his watch and wallet. In a secret trousers pocket was found $50, but relatives said he had about $150 when he left his home at 1417 East Marquette road.

Police Mull Over Theories.

Police said he might have gone into the apartment building to summon help when he became ill. But he had gone to the entrance farthest back in the court.

If he went into the vestibule voluntarily, they conjectured, he might have died before he could call help and might then have been robbed by some one who had seen him enter. The police also were looking into the possibility that he might have died of excitement after being forced into the vestibule by a bandit. The building is less than two blocks from his home.

Went for Late Walk.

Luthardt, who was 68 years old, played cards Friday night with his wife and their daughter, Lucy, and her husband, Seth McCormick, in the McCormick apartment above that of the Luthardts. Luthardt took his wife home, got his revolver, and left about 11 p. m. to buy a paper and have his nightly walk, according to Capt. Patrick Collins and Lieut. Redmond Gibbons of the Woodlawn police.

Luthardt left the police department in 1920 after twenty-six years of service. He returned in 1930 to serve two more years as police attorney in charge of the prosecution of hoodlums on vagrancy charges.

DOUBLE FEATURE BAN CALLED BOTH FINE AND RUINOUS

Bar Two Pants Suit Sale Next, Says Balaban.

BY DORIS LOCKERMAN.

The bill passed by the state assembly late Friday banning double feature movies in Illinois is either the most beneficial legislation the state has ever had, or it is an unconstitutional curb on the movie going public. It all depends, it appears, on which movie owner you talk to.

The law, not yet signed by Gov. Horner, would limit films to two hours and fifteen minutes showing time.

One group of motion picture exhibitors hailed it yesterday as a great aid to their industry. Edwin Silverman, president of Essaness Theaters corporation, which controls twenty-nine theaters in Chicago and is associated on a coöperative basis with 180 more, was jubilant at its passage.

"Physicians say long pictures are harmful to eyesight," he said, "they say they shatter nerves. In Hollywood quality producers are against double features because they stimulate production of inferior pictures.

Called Aid to Industry.

"When a theater manager must give his public two, or even three features, he cannot present a balanced program of scientific, scenic and informative reels that are interesting and important. This will mean better pictures for movie goers. It will be an aid to the industry."

"Ridiculous!" said John Balaban, secretary treasurer of the Balaban & Katz corporation. "The next thing we know our state legislature will be telling us we can't sell two pairs of pants for the price of one!"

Balaban represents 124 theaters in Chicagoland, forty-eight of which are operated in the city.

"Many single pictures — the good ones," he declared, "cannot be shown in two hours and fifteen minutes. If they make them shorter, it will ruin the pictures. And more than half the country has gone over to double features. They find them profitable and in demand. With them the American people can see more for their money, and cut their amusement budget in two . . . and why not?"

Calls Bill Unconstitutional.

Jules Rubin, vice president of the Great States theaters, a subsidiary of Balaban & Katz corporation, echoed this disapproval of the measure:

"Downstate," he asserted, "we think such a law is unnecessary, unfair, unconstitutional. In at least sixty theaters throughout Illinois and Indiana people have shown that they want double features. This bill is dictatorship. We can run our own business."

Rubin and Balaban indicated that hundreds of theater owners will use their influence to obtain Gov. Horner's veto of the measure.

SONG CONCERTS SCHEDULED IN 3 FORESTS TODAY

More than 200 men and women will take part in three choral concerts in three forest preserves at 4 p. m. today. The program will be the third of a series of twenty-one under the sponsorship of the Cook County Forest Preserve district and THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

The groups, directors and locations for this afternoon's programs follow: Century Male chorus, Orian A. Galitz, Caldwell Woods in the Emmett Whealan Pool preserve, northwest; Western Railway Choral club, Harry A. Slater, Thatcher Woods in River Forest, west, and the Metropolitan Church choir, J. Wesley Jones, Dan Ryan Woods, southwest. The Clef Barons, a Negro quartet, will be featured on Mr. Jones' concert.

This will be the last of the recitals to begin at 4 o'clock. Beginning next Sunday the programs will start at 5 o'clock. For fuller particulars concerning the programs and how to reach the preserves, turn to your metropolitan section of today's SUNDAY TRIBUNE.

D'ORSAY PALMER WIDOW SUES TO SHARE MILLIONS

Sarasota, Fla., July 1.—(AP)—Mrs. Pluma Louise Palmer, a former waitress, began a legal fight today for a share in a $10,000,000 fortune to which she claims her late husband, Potter D'Orsay Palmer, was entitled under his grandparents' will. Mrs. Palmer, who was the fourth wife of the 35 year old heir, sued in Circuit court for a declaratory decree ordering an accounting of the estate and a settlement.

Before her husband's death on May 15, Mrs. Palmer sued for cancelation of an agreement giving up her widow's share in the estate. She charged she was forced to sign to prevent discontinuance of her husband's allowance by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Honore Palmer.

Today's suit named Palmer's parents and an uncle, Potter Palmer, as defendants.

5,200 JOBLESS IN CHICAGO SEEK STATE BENEFITS

A total of 5,200 unemployed Chicagoans had filed claims for employment compensation yesterday in the offices of the Illinois State Employment service, according to Martin P. Durkin, state director of labor.

Seven suburban offices handled 350 claims, and thirty-seven downstate offices took care of 7,020. The total of claims in the state was 12,570.

Benefits under the state unemployment compensation act are payable only to jobless workers who earned $225 or more during 1938 on insured jobs. The maximum weekly benefit is $16 and the minimum is $7. The maximum duration of the benefits is sixteen weeks.

WOMEN'S GROUPS OPEN GRANT PARK SEASON OF MUSIC

All-Girl Band, Symphony Delight Throng.

BY EDWARD BARRY.

Something for everybody. These three words tell the story of last night's Grant park concert, the opening event in a summer-long series which will bring to the lake front band shell the best orchestras and bands of the Chicago district and several of the most renowned of America's vocal and instrumental soloists.

On this first program were things to tingle to, to laugh at, even to dance to. For the Chicago park district and the Chicago Federation of Musicians, co-sponsors of the Grant park concerts, divided the evening between the Woman's Symphony Orchestra of Chicago and the all-girl band of Phil Spitalny.

It's the Women's Day.

Women, women, everywhere—but what contrasting things they did! The symphony orchestra, under Izler Solomon's direction, played a program of standard music. The Spitalny band kept charm at arm's length for a quarter of an hour with a demented little sequence of jitterbug tunes, then swung into a program of radio transcriptions of the showiest and most effective kind.

Every taste was represented among the tens of thousands of persons who sat and stood and lounged about the great sky-roofed auditorium. There were people to clap enthusiastically when Mr. Solomon and his orchestra turned in an intoxicating performance of the waltz from the Tschaikowsky string serenade. There were others—maybe the same ones, in some cases!—to scream delightedly when Ginger, high chief jitterbug of the Spitalny outfit, leaped about the stage and shouted excited, unintelligible words against the wild tooting of her sisters in the band.

Program Is Spectacular.

For lovers of the spectacular, this was as fine a sight as Grant park had ever seen. Even the moon came from behind the clouds for this part of the show and stared down in round faced wonder.

In the serious first part of the program the woman's orchestra did many things as exciting as that apt and lovely rubato in the Tschiakowsky waltz. The old Schubert "Unfinished" came triumphantly to life during a performance marked by a moving songfulness and by a wonderful sense of direction and continuity. Conductor and orchestra knew where every phrase was going before it started there. The singing of the strings in the subsidiary theme of the first movement restored to this superb tune the dignity which constant abuse and too many so-so performances had almost taken away.

Spitalny Dresses Up Liszt.

Mr. Spitalny and his peppy band did more than play swing music. They took the Liszt second rhapsody, for instance, and put so much showmanship into it that even Liszt would have had difficulty in recognizing some of the music as his. There were terrific accents, sudden violent changes of pace, grandiose treatments of cadenzas, great gobs of tone calculated to shatter an iron man's calm.

So, under made to order summer skies and between the lake and a skyline which together make one of the most impressive backgrounds in the world, the 1939 Grant park concerts went away to an auspicious start. From now till Labor day there will be almost continuous lake front music. Admission is free. The seats are unreserved. Program details for this week will be found in the music section of today's TRIBUNE.

Seek to Cut Toll

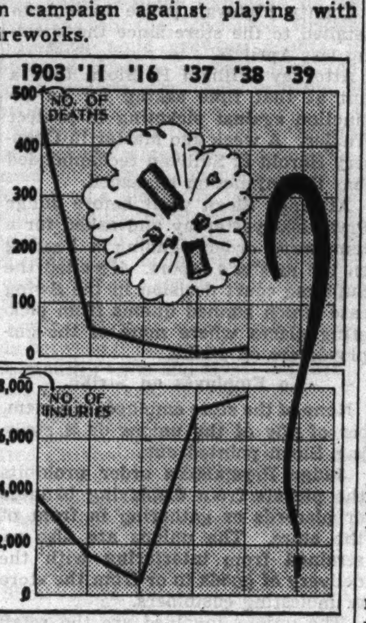
Betty Lowden and her dog join in campaign against playing with fireworks.



Graph shows toll of fireworks accidents in America since 1903. How many will be killed or maimed this year?

Fifty school children paraded yesterday in protest against the illegal and indiscriminate sale of fireworks and other holiday explosives.

The parade, held in the vicinity of Irving Park and Sheridan roads, was held under the auspices of the Illinois Society for the Prevention of Blindness. Each child carried a banner, with such legends as "Fireworks: Death for a Penny!" or "Parents—Save Our Eyes!"

In Chicago last year 176 persons, part of the 7,933 national casualty toll, were injured by Fourth of July fireworks. The nation as a whole will spend more than $4,250,000 on explosives this year, according to the National Consumers Tax commission.

STEPHENSON TO LEAVE CELL FOR NEW TRIAL PLEA

Noblesville, Ind., July 1.—[Special.]—D. C. Stephenson, former Ku Klux Klan grand dragon who has been in state prison since 1925 serving a life sentence for murder of Madge Oberholtzer, will be brought to Hamilton county court here in October to testify at a hearing on his petition for a new trial. Stephenson is seeking a new trial on writ of error.

Judge Cassius M. Gentry today sustained Stephenson counsel's demurrer to the state's objection to issuance of this writ. If the writ is granted it would form the basis for a new trial.

Stephenson's petition charges that he was prevented from testifying in his behalf because of fear for his life.

25 FLEDGLINGS START TRAINING FOR ARMY PILOTS

Open New Flying School at Glenview.

BY GUY MURCHIE JR.

Twenty-five college trained young men met yesterday at Curtiss-Reynolds airport in Glenview to start the Chicago School of Aeronautics. A large crowd was on hand to watch the youths get their initial flying instruction. They composed this city's first group of fledglings to receive three months of elementary flying instruction. Those who show ability will be sent in October to America's West Point of the Air at Randolph and Kelly fields, Texas, for advanced training.

Just as in the eight similar schools which are part of the army's new general rearmament and air corps expansion program, the school at Curtiss-Reynolds airport will be supervised by a captain, two lieutenants, and six sergeants from Randolph field.

35 Hours of Solo Flying.

Every man will be given 225 hours of ground schooling, 65 hours of dual flying instruction, and 35 hours of solo flying in the three month course. At intervals of six weeks new classes of twenty-five more beginner pilots will be admitted to the school. Thus, after Aug. 12, two classes will be in attendance constantly.

Admission requirements for the student pilots are that they pass strict physical examinations and have at least two years of college or university education. They must also be at least 21 years of age, and no more than 26. A large proportion of the men in the first class are from New England. Three are West Point graduates.

One North of Mason-Dixon Line.

This school is the only one of the new army fledgling schools located north of the Mason-Dixon line.

The daily training will run normally from 7:30 a. m. to 5:30 p. m., Mondays through Fridays. If weather prevents flying in those periods, the time will be made up on Saturdays or Sundays. Ground work is to come in the mornings, with flight instruction in the afternoons.

The students will receive $75 a month and equipment as flying cadets by special contract with the war department. After an expected 60 per cent of them finish their training with four months at Randolph field, followed by three at Kelly field, they will be awarded second lieutenants' commissions in the army. Barracks at Curtiss-Reynolds airport are being constructed at a cost of $30,000. The cadets are quartered temporarily at nearby Palwaukee airport.

Court Tells Rep. Buckley to Pay New York $33,633

New York, July 1.—(AP)—A contention by the city that Congressman Charles A. Buckley [D., N. Y.] of the Bronx had invested illegally more than $150,000 when he was city chamberlain was upheld today by Supreme Court Justice Bernard Shientag. The court awarded a judgment of $33,633 to the city. The city charged Buckley, who was chamberlain when James J. Walker was mayor, invested funds in mortgages and real estate that depreciated so much it was impossible to liquidate them at a reasonable figure.

New Air Line Begins Survey Flights for Atlantic Service

New York, July 1.—[Special.]—Completion of the first leg of a survey flight to Europe was announced today by American Export Airlines, subsidiary of the American Export line, a steamship company.

The Export line's fifteen ton flying boat, Transatlantic, reached Horta, the Azores, at 5:25 a. m. [Chicago time] after an uneventful flight of sixteen hours fifty-eight minutes from Jamaica bay, near Floyd Bennett field on Long Island. The ship carried a crew of six.

Capt. Patrick J. Byrne, commander of the Transatlantic, radioed that he landed with 650 gallons of his original 1,750 gallon fuel load, despite some headwinds.

The flying boat will take off from Horta tomorrow morning for Lisbon, Portugal, and will continue on to Biscarrosse and Marseilles, France, proposed eastern terminus of the line.

Have Difficulty Obtaining Permits.

When the American Export Airlines began preparing for trans-Atlantic air service two years ago, it ran into difficulties because, it was charged, the Pan-American Airways and Imperial Airways of England had preëmpted landing rights in European countries.

Export lines then sought the aid of the federal maritime commission and several large airplane manufacturers, notably Glen L. Martin, to enable it to get permits. The right to land in England was outlined first, and through state department intervention, Export lines eventually gained the right to land in Portugal and France.

Yankee Clipper Returns.

Pan-American's Yankee Clipper, carrying fifteen government and air line officials and a crew of eleven, arrived at Port Washington, N. Y., at 7:08 p. m. from Ireland. The flying boat left Foynes at 2:42 p. m. [Chicago time] yesterday. Stops were made at Botwood, Newfoundland, and Shediac, N. B.

Among the passengers were John Cudahy, United States minister to Ireland, who said he made the trip "for fun." Stephen Early, one of the President's secretaries, said of the trip: "I've never experienced anything like it. It was great."

The Civil Aeronautics authority announced tonight that it will pay Pan American Airways $2,454,400 each year for carrying mail in two round trips a week between America and Europe. That figure, lower than the company sought, is $1,112,785 more than the sum the government expects to realize from postal receipts on Clipper carried mail.

New Guinea Scientists Back.

The Archbold-New Guinea expedition of the American Museum of Natural History landed on Jamaica bay at 3:56 p. m. [Chicago time] today after a non-stop flight from the Virgin Islands. The six members of the expedition started the flight in French West Africa and flew the Atlantic to Brazil before making the Virgin Island stop.

Before that venture the plane had participated in scientific explorations in Dutch New Guinea, covering a total of 40,000 miles since it took off from San Diego, Cal., on June 3, 1938.

Heading the party was Richard Archbold, owner of the "flying laboratory" and research associate of the museum. With him were Russell R. Rogers, first pilot; Lewis A. Yancey, who flew the Atlantic to Rome in 1929, navigator; Gerald D. Brown, flight engineer; Stephen Barrinka, assistant flight engineer, and Ray Booth, radio operator.

WHAT'S OUT THERE?

By CALEB

HIS years—let's say they're ten. Freckled, round face, and steady, sky-blue eyes; a smooth, clean, lean body, sunned to shining bronze. Sprawled in the yellow sands, his gaze skims the rollers lazying in from sea, and beyond the circling of the gulls fixes itself on a hazily mysterious horizon. "Dad," he calls, "what's out there?" . . .

Well, son, out there lie the tracks that Columbus's tiny, fifteenth-century ships furrowed across the Atlantic, bearing in their stout holds the destinies of a twentieth-century New World. Out there on the ocean-floor lie the cables with which Cyrus W. Field first linked that world to its parent lands. Out there, too, lie the deep-drowned cargoes and famous treasures of vessels, sailed and winged, that never made port. Out there, beyond every farthest wave-washed shore, lie a thousand unsolved mysteries of catastrophe and romance, already relegated to the eternal past.

And out there, likewise, lie the inscrutable years of your own and the world's future, as well. Perhaps it is fortunate that we cannot know what secrets those years conceal; cannot, even vaguely guess the heights and depths of triumph and defeat, the trials of trust, the ironies of disillusion, they reserve for every gazer into their shadowy immensities. For then, even the hardihood of youth might fail—and Life has wisely seen to it that that shall not occur.

All in good season, however, those revelations will arrive, and, we hope, find us ready. Meantime, enough for you that the gulls weave white magic over blue wave-crests; that the light is warm and golden, the hours long, the heart undaunted, tomorrow only a boy's passing curiosity. One day at a time, and lesson by lesson, the answers will come; and each that seems final will turn out to be merely the thread on which hangs another question.

For that, son, is the beauty and marvel of being alive in a world forever filled with things-to-be-known! Our oldest, wisest, whitest-haired men—men haloed with famous careers and impressive degrees—never look into the horizons and zeniths of Tomorrow that they, too, do not study wistfully some breaking wave or winking star, and ask, as you have now: "What's out there?" . . . Young as you are, lad, you're in distinguished company!

DISAGREE ON USE OF TRANSIT FUND IN SUBWAY JOB

City and Companies Differ on Purchases.

Is the city willing and able to pay $20,000,000 from its traction fund to help finance a modernized transportation system in Chicago? This sum is being asked by the transit lines in their proposal for a unified traction ordinance.

An analysis of the traction fund yesterday disclosed that the city would be financially able to meet the companies' request. Members of the local transportation committee and city engineers declared, however, that they are opposed to using the money for the purposes the companies propose.

The companies have requested that $20,000,000 or more be taken from the traction fund to equip the subways now being built, to build connections between the elevated lines and the subway tunnels, and to improve and extend the transit system.

City's Position Described.

"The city takes the position that the companies should equip the subways and connect them with the present rapid transit lines," said Philip Harrington, commissioner of subways and traction. "Just what use should be made of the money available in the traction fund is a matter of policy for the local transportation committee to decide."

Harrington said that the city already is making available to the transit lines a $40,000,000 subway system and is paying $22,000,000 from the traction fund toward the cost. The remainder is being paid by the federal Public Works administration. The project involves completion of the tunnels but makes no provision for equipping them with tracks, stations, or cars.

Ald. James R. Quinn [50th], chairman of the transportation committee, asserted that the city is opposed to equipping the subways. He said the money in the traction fund should be used to extend the system of subway tunnels and that the companies should equip the tunnels and buy cars to operate in the subways.

Private Capital Sought.

The companies, however, take the position that unless a substantial amount of cash is paid by the city to equip subways and to pay for other modernization of the present transit system, they will not be able to induce private capital to invest in the transit lines. They contend that a payment of $20,000,000 by the city would improve the system to such an extent that they could borrow money. With the money they would buy new cars and extend their service.

Both the city and the companies thus agree that the traction fund should be used for transit improvements, but they disagree on just where it should be spent.

The traction fund has a face value of $64,227,765, after the removal of $3,000,000 for the first instalment on the subway costs. It was created under the 1907 street car ordinance under which compensation paid by the surface lines to the city was placed in a special fund to be used for traction purposes. The lines paid $47,168,192 into the fund. The balance represents interest.

ICKES EXTENDS CITY'S TRACTION PLAN DEADLINE

Secretary of the Interior Ickes informed Mayor Kelly yesterday that the city may have until Aug. 1 to draft a unified traction ordinance, show satisfactory evidence of the termination of reorganization proceedings of traction companies and submit to him a comprehensive plan for the extension of the subway system.

Ickes, head of the Public Works administration which is contributing $18,000,000 of the $40,000,000 subway cost, originally set July 1 as the deadline. Mayor Kelly went to Washington recently to request an extension of time.

Ralph M. Burke, deputy subway commissioner, said yesterday engineers are now completing plans for the extension of the subway. He said they will be ready by Aug. 1.

5 INDICTED FOR RAPE AFTER GIRLS TELL OF MEETINGS IN FOREST

Stories told by three young girls of parties in the forest preserve brought the indictment yesterday of five young men they accuse. The young men were charged with rape and contributing to the delinquency of minors.

The indictments, obtained by Assistant State's Attorney Edwin Spiro, resulted from an investigation by Lieut. George Stava of the Berwyn police.

Those indicted are Edward Thuresson, 18 years old, 4 Drexel avenue, La Grange; Edgar Muscat, 19, of 5146 Cermak road, Cicero; Frank Mikes, 20, of Roselle; Leonard W. Miara, 22, of 2100 South 48th court, Cicero, and John Hoffman, 22, of 1928 South 49th avenue, Chicago. All are to be arraigned Wednesday before Chief Justice Michael L. McKinley of the Criminal court.

Big Crop of Illinois Rats Is Blamed on Weather

Urbana, Ill., July 1.—[Special.]—Favorable weather conditions are responsible for the large number of rats infesting farms and other Illinois premises, according to a report made to the college of agriculture at the University of Illinois by M. C. Oderkirk. He is rodent specialist of the bureau of biological survey of the United States department of agriculture. Powdered red squill in foods is the most effective poison for destroying rats on farms, said Okerkirk. It is comparatively harmless to domestic animals and humans.

COURT BANS FOOD STORE PICKETING AFTER 4 MONTHS

Injunction Ends Violent Labor Siege.

Judge John Prystalski in the Circuit court yesterday issued a temporary injunction restraining four unions from picketing the Farm and Food Store, Inc., at 6520 South Cicero avenue. The restraining order is based on the recent Illinois Supreme court decision barring stranger picketing.

The store, which is owned by Herman Wadler, has been picketed for four months. There have been several instances of violence. Wadler was assaulted on one occasion and an employé, Herman Brandt, who went to his aid, shot and wounded a union official, Harry Thieme. Brandt was sentenced to a year in jail for the shooting.

Police on Guard Since April.

County highway police have been detailed to the store since the shooting last April 16.

Attorney William H. Sloan filed a suit at that time asking for an injunction against picketing to protect Wadler. A week ago Master in Chancery Harold E. Sullivan recommended that the injunction be issued.

Attorney Sloan went before Judge Prystalski yesterday and asked for a temporary order pending a hearing on the master's report. He cited the Supreme court decision in the Swing case which banned unions from picketing places where none of the employés are on strike.

No Employés on Strike.

None of the store employés is a member of any of the unions or is striking, Sloan pointed out.

Judge Prystalski's order prohibits the pickets from displaying banners or placards or gathering in front of the store. The unions are also restrained from interfering with the delivery of goods to or from the store or molesting customers.

The unions involved are the retail grocery clerks, egg handlers, meat cutters, and grocery drivers.

In Elgin City Judge Charles D. Page issued an injunction restraining Culinary Workers' and Bartender's Union, Local 433, from "stranger picketing" at the confectionery of Robert H. Colwell, 156 East Chicago street. The writ ended a three-month siege.

PROTEST ACTION IN UNDERTAKER TERRORISM CASE

Trade Group Criticizes Freeing of Suspect.

Organized undertakers yesterday protested the manner in which the state's attorney's office handled the case of Fiore Buccieri, a suspected union terrorist whose police record began in 1925.

Buccieri was arrested after undertakers complained that their windows had been smashed during attempts to force employés into an embalmers' union. One charge of carrying concealed weapons and two charges of disorderly conduct were signed against him.

After three continuances his case was set for trial in the Municipal Jury court on July 14 at the request of the state's attorney. However, last Friday—two weeks before the date set for the trial—Buccieri was freed of all charges except one of disorderly conduct, placed by the arresting policeman. He was fined $5 on this charge upon the recommendation of Irwin Clorfene, assistant state's attorney.

Trade Group Plans Action.

"This was a great surprise to us," said Thomas Crane, secretary of Funeral Services Associated, the undertakers' trade group. "Neither the police nor any of us were notified that the trial had been advanced. We shall protest to State's Attorney Courtney."

The facts concerning Buccieri's arrest, as described by Crane, were these:

Sergt. Marshall Pidgeon arrested Buccieri June 9 at Polk street and Ashland avenue after an undertaker obtained the license of Buccieri's car. Buccieri, who is 32 years old and lives at 810 South Paulina street, said he was employed by the embalmers union. A slingshot was found in the rear trunk of his car. Buccieri denied any vandalism and said the slingshot belonged to his nephew.

Embalmer Charges Threats.

Levis said Buccieri had threatened him in an effort to force him to join the Embalmers, Funeral Directors, Morticians, and Assistants union, local 21303, of which Joseph E. Kavanaugh, 209 North Leamington avenue, is president.

Sergt. Pidgeon also was surprised by the disposition of the case. He said he had not been notified of a change in the trial date.

Prosecutor Clorfene said the decision to advance the trial and allow Buccieri his freedom after paying a nominal fine was made at a conference with First Assistant State's Attorney Wilbert F. Crowley and Capt. Daniel Gilbert of the prosecutor's police.

"We decided there was no evidence to sustain the charge of carrying a concealed weapon," said Clorfene. He had no comment to make when asked why Levis, Sergt. Pidgeon, and the undertakers' association had not been notified.

44 WEDDINGS A DAY! A MARRYING JUSTICE DISCOVERS BIG BOOM

St. Louis, July 1.—(AP)—Marriage business in June was booming, George R. Hart, a marrying justice, reported today. His average was forty-four a day, almost two an hour day and night, and set a record for him.

Hart performed 1,320 ceremonies during the month, 417 in the final week. That made 52,000 in five and a half years.

Justice Hart said he turned away three couples in June with the instruction, "Sober up, then see if you want to come back."

Thirty-five percent of his business, he stated, comes from Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin and Illinois.

SNITE RETURNS, CHEERED AFTER VISIT TO SHRINE

The French liner Normandie tilted its 80,000 tons for him to board and disembark in comfort; Pope Pius XII. blessed him; a longshoreman gave him a gift of rosary beads, and 1,000 invalids forgot their suffering and prayed for his recovery at the Shrine of Miracles at Lourdes, France.

Yesterday, at his home in River Forest, Frederick B. Snite Jr. lay in the sun in his small chest respirator, Junior, and declared his six weeks' pilgrimage to France had been a great success. With his party of fourteen he returned here yesterday morning aboard the General, a special car of the Pennsylvania railroad.

Young Snite, handsome, curly haired and 28 years old, was stricken three years ago with infantile paralysis while on a trip to China.

No tests have been made lately of his ability to breathe outside the respirator, and none will be made until he is entirely rested from his trip. His longest period of breathing unaided thus far has been sixty-three minutes.

2 National Guard Units Leave for Summer Camps

Two Chicago units of the Illinois National Guard left yesterday for a two week encampment in Wisconsin. The 122d field artillery regiment went to Camp McCoy, at Sparta, Wis., and Troop E, 106th cavalry, the Black Horse troop, to Camp Williams near Tomah, Wis.

NEW DEAL SENATE STALWART RAPS THIRD TERM HOPE

Would Defeat Party, Says Johnson of Colorado.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 1.—President Roosevelt's third term ambitions were dealt a serious blow today when Senator Edwin C. Johnson [D., Colo.] issued a statement declaring the Democratic party could not win the election in 1940 with Mr. Roosevelt as its candidate.

Sen. Edwin Johnson.

Senator Johnson is known as an ardent New Dealer. He has supported the President consistently. His declaration therefore came as a shock and a disappointment to the Ickes-Hopkins group of White House radicals who are striving to promote a "draft Roosevelt" campaign.

The Colorado senator suggested Senator Burton K. Wheeler [D., Mont.] as the logical candidate of liberal Democrats.

Expects President to Step Aside.

"In another year President Roosevelt's second term will have reached an end," Senator Johnson said. "In my opinion, the President, at the proper time, will firmly and irrevocably refuse to accept the office again, regardless of whatever pressure may be brought to bear upon him to accept the nomination for a third term.

"The Democratic party cannot win the election in 1940 with President Roosevelt, or any one else, if the present serious internal disruption continues. The party is split wide open at the present time and no one can deny it.

"Jeffersonian Democrats will not support a candidate with liberal tendencies, unless he also is soundly realistic and devoted beyond question to American institutions. Liberals in and out of the party will not support a Democrat who would take a single step backward.

Pushes Wheeler for Post.

"Burton K. Wheeler is a real liberal whose record for liberalism was made long before 1933 and who is so honest and trustworthy that he holds the respect and confidence of the most conservative Democrat in the land.

"Progressive, learned, experienced —Senator Wheeler has been a loyal supporter of President Roosevelt except upon a very few occasions, and then it was a difference as to methods rather than objectives. His whole public career has been a tremendous record of public service. He has a keen, alert mind coupled with a vigorous and determined aggressiveness which is so necessary in the presidency.

"Senator Wheeler, teamed with a Democrat from the Mississippi valley or the east, running upon a forward looking platform, can win the election in 1940 because he is the American who can unite the Democratic party."

BOY, 6, RIDING IN CAR, KILLED BY STRAY BULLET

Roger Dawson, 6 years old, 2300 West 111th street, was fatally wounded yesterday by a bullet fired into his father's car at 138th street and Racine avenue, Calumet township.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Dawson, and his two brothers were returning from an outing in Indiana. Roger was standing behind the driver's seat when the bullet struck him in the head.

County highway police at Homewood learned that a group of young men had been shooting at targets in a field near the scene of the accident. They took Edward Strand, 25 years old, and his brother Raymond, 23, of 11023 Vernon avenue, into custody for questioning. The two said they had used a .22 caliber target pistol, but arrived at the pistol range after the Dawson boy was shot. They were released and several others who were shooting on the range are being sought.

2 GROUPS ATTACK YOUTH CONGRESS AS COMMUNISTIC

Wife of President Will Address Delegates.

New York, July 1.—[Special.]—The fourth annual convention of the American Youth congress opened here today with 2,500 delegates in attendance. Addresses by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and Mayor Fiorello La Guardia are on the program.

The opening session was marked by two attacks on the congress as a communist organization. One was made by six men prominent in sports, business, and civic affairs, including Gene Tunney, former heavyweight champion.

Councilmen Demands Stand.

In the other attack, sixteen of the twenty-six members of the city council demanded that the congress go on record against communism and repudiate communistic domination of its officers and policies.

"Some of the leaders who have obtained control of the American Youth congress are 'fellow-travelers' of the communist group," says the statement signed by Tunney and his group. "Thus we find resolutions strongly opposing Fascism, with blatant demands for 'the freedom of all imprisoned in Fascist countries for their opposition to Fascism,' but there never is a word in these resolutions against communism." The statement was drafted by Murray Plavner, a former member of the congress.

Others on Committee.

Members of the committee, besides Tunney, are Victor Ridder, newspaper publisher; Michael Schaap, president of Bloomingdale's department store; David Hinshaw, director of the Roosevelt Memorial association; Homer Chaillaux, director of the national Americanism commission of the American Legion, and John M. Schiff, president of the Henry Street settlement and a director of the Boy Scouts.

Although the communist issue was not raised from the floor as the convention got under way, Joseph Camden, executive secretary of the congress, in the keynote speech attacked a "small group of un-American oppositions" as aiming to destroy "everything progressive, everything constructive."

ARMY'S POLICY NOT TO CHANGE, NEW CHIEF SAYS

Washington, D. C., July 1.—[Special.]—Brig. Gen. George C. Marshall took over the duties of chief of staff of the army today with the announcement that he was not making any changes in policy. He will devote his energies, he said, to carrying out the program already authorized by congress which yesterday passed the supplemental army appropriation bill carrying funds for further development of the air corps.

Gen. Marshall succeeds Gen. Malin Craig, who left yesterday on a leave of absence that will continue to his retirement on Sept. 1.

In speaking of the program that he will direct, Gen. Marshall said it was the biggest in the peacetime history of the army, and was developed under Gen. Craig. This summer, Gen. Marshall said, will be devoted to increasing the personnel of the air corps and training the recruits.

Former King Zog Leaves Turkey for British Haven

[Copyright: 1939: By the New York Times.]

ISTANBUL, Turkey, July 1.—Former King Zog of Albania and his family left here tonight on the first stage of their journey to England. They sailed on a Rumanian ship bound for the Black sea port of Constanza. From there they will go overland. Zog intended to leave for Greece en route to Paris yesterday, but it is understood he was advised that crossing the Mediterranean in the present international situation might be dangerous.

Search in Vain

Robert Kohler, 12 years old, disappeared yesterday from the 48 foot power boat Kenbob while it was cruising thirty miles offshore in the lake. The boy apparently fell overboard and drowned.

The $15,000 boat is owned by C. C. Kohler, 1455 Tower road, Winnetka, Robert's father. He and his wife; another son, Kenneth, 14 years old, and a Filipino cabin boy were aboard. All except Mrs. Kohler, who was piloting the yacht, were below deck when Robert disappeared.

When they returned to shore the Kohlers said Robert vanished after telling his brother he was hungry and was going on deck for a box of crackers. The party searched the boat and cruised for an hour in a futile effort to find the boy.

ROOSEVELT GOES FOR HOLIDAY TO HYDE PARK HOME

Washington, D. C., July 1.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt boarded his special train a few minutes before midnight tonight to return to his family home at Hyde Park, N. Y., which he left Wednesday to be on hand for the passage of the relief bill and to take personal charge of his unsuccessful battle to retain control over dollar devaluation.

Mr. Roosevelt returned to Hyde Park to spend a few days with his 85 year old mother before she leaves for Europe on July 6.

Mr. Roosevelt plans to spend the week-end quietly. He will celebrate Independence day at a picnic at his Dutchess Hill cottage and reboard his special for Washington that night.

Marriage License Record Shows Gain in Lake County

A 20 per cent increase in the issuance of marriage licenses in Lake county for the year ended Friday was reported yesterday by County Clerk Jay B. Morse. A total of 993 licenses were issued between July 1, 1938, and June 30, 1939, against 826 for the preceding twelve months.

BRITISH PARLEY DOOMED TO FAIL, JAPS FORECAST

Declare Tokio Will Make No Concessions.

TOKIO, July 1.—(AP)—Sotomatsu Kato, who will head the Japanese negotiators in discussion with Great Britain to end the Tientsin dispute, said today he was extremely doubtful that an agreement could be reached

"Unless the British authorities abandon their usual trickery we cannot expect much from the Tokio conference," Kato said on his arrival in Japan from Tientsin en route to the capital.

With unanimity suggesting the possibility of official inspiration, newspapers echoed the pessimism of Kato, newly slated as Japan's minister at large in China. Japan, the press said, will concede nothing and merely will make demands.

Japs Tighten Blockade.

TIENTSIN, July 1.—(AP)—The Japanese military today tightened its restrictions on the blockaded British concession amid growing doubts in informed foreign sources that the Tokio negotiations could achieve a settlement.

The new regulations for enforcing the blockade, which the Japanese imposed on June 14, included a reduction in the hours in which trafic might pass the barriers and the closing of several entrances to the British concession, including the international bridge connecting British, French, and Japanese areas.

Long delays of three British vessels between Tientsin and Tangku, at the mouth of the Hai river, indicated more severe Japanese control also of riv trafic.

The office of the Japanese dominated Chinese mayor of Tientsin distributed warnings to Chinese merchants within the British concession to leave lest it become "your common grave."

New Dispute at Amoy.

SHANGHAI, July 1.—(AP)—Domei [Japanese news agency] said today that Japanese officials on Kulangsu Island, international settlement of Amoy, were incensed by what was called the arrogant attitude of British officials and were considering independent action.

Domei said Japanese authorities at Amoy accused the British of stubbornly resisting just Japanese demands and of ignoring the conciliatory attitude of other foreigners in the international settlement.

It quoted them as citing, as an example of British arrogance, Britain's alleged failure to answer a Japanese note Thursday suggesting resumption of negotiations on Japan's demands.

The demands, Domei said, have been greatly revised and compliance with them no longer would give Japanese full control of Kulangsu. It listed Japan's demands now as only for the immediate appointment of an assistant police commissioner and of three additional Japanese policemen.

Even Mikado Gives Gold Watch in Jap Drive to Finance War

BY KIMPEI SHEBA.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, July 1.—With the war in China dragging into its third year, the Japanese people are surrendering their hoarded treasures of gold, literally by the truckloads, to enable the government to replenish its rapidly dwindling gold reserves.

The articles include ancient coins a quarter of an inch thick and considerably larger than a silver dollar, tea kettles and cups, vases, trays, and jewelry.

Japan was known as long ago as at the time of Marco Polo's travels as a land fabulously rich in gold. This is only now being borne out by the large quantities of golden articles which have been brought to light. The vast amount of such articles which had been hoarded has amazed most people here.

Weakness for Gold.

The Japanese always have had a weakness for gold. They use more gold in their teeth than possibly any other people. A tremendous amount of gold is also used in their paintings, carvings, clothing and lacquer-ware but this, of course, cannot be recovered. One thing from which they can recover a lot of gold is a golden dolphin eight feet high, the scales of which are said to be of solid gold and which adorns the gabled roof of the castle at Nagoya.

Most of the hoarded treasures will be kept by the government until one year after the termination of the war in China. The government is encouraging the people to sell their gold holdings. The minister of finance has intimated that the government may make the sale of gold compulsory if the people are unwilling to part with their hoarded treasures.

Persons failing to report their gold holdings, outside of gold teeth, will be severely punished, the police warn.

Emperor Sets Example.

Emperor Hirohito is understood to have given up his gold rimmed spectacles and gold encased wrist watch to set an example to the people. He also has turned over most of his possessions of gold or those containing gold to the Bank of Japan and is living extremely frugally. He uses a $3 chrome watch, cotton towels, underwear and socks. Very few of these articles it is said, have not been mended.

Efforts of the government to have married women voluntarily give up their gold wedding rings have not met with much success. A delegation of leading feminists recently informed the government that all women are willing to give up gold ornaments and trinkets but are less willing to surrender their wedding rings.

"Wedding rings are symbols of chastity," their spokesman said. "Removing a wedding ring signifies abandonment of chastity. Suppose such things are abused for propaganda purposes, how would Japan appear in the eyes of the world?" she asked.

Turns to Manchukuo.

Japan, including Corea, which is rich in gold resources, produces on an average slightly less than a million fine ounces of gold each year, or about one-sixth the average annual production of the United States. Janpan's gold mines already have been worked long and hard and it is difficult to expect any great increase in production. The government, therefore, is turning its attention more and more to Manchukuo.

FORMER CHICAGO BANKER ADMITS $126,000 FRAUD

Detroit, Mich., July 1.—(AP)—Walter P. Jacobs, 42 years old, who resigned today as president of the National Bank of Adrian, Mich., confessed embezzling $126,000 of the bank's funds, according to John S. Bugas, head of the Detroit office of the federal bureau of investigation.

Jacobs signed a confession after he was arrested on a warant charging that he made a false entry of $10,000 in the Adrian bank ledger. He was lodged in the Wayne county jail here to await arraignment before United States Commissioner J. Stanley Hurd.

Jacobs, who held executive positions in Chicago and Detroit banks before he went to Adrian in 1933 to head the newly organized bank, was arrested a few hours after he submitted his resignation to the bank's board of directors.

NEW DEAL SPENT $9,268,338,030 IN LAST 12 MONTHS

Washington, D. C., July 1.—(AP)—The treasury closed its books last night on the fiscal year 1939 and reported the government had spent $9,268,338,030, the largest peacetime outlay in the history of the nation.

The final statement also showed the national debt had climbed $3,274,792,096 in the last twelve months to $40,039,532,411, a peak never before touched in time of peace or war.

The expenditure of $9,268,338,030 was $3,600,514,404 more than the treasury collected. In the previous fiscal year $7,691,287,108 was spent.

FOR AN AMERICAN FOREIGN POLICY.

Europe went into another uneasy week-end as reports spread that Hitler was ready at last to begin maneuvers for the taking over of Danzig and a German transept across the Polish corridor. And the American government at Washington goes into the Fourth of July holiday with the neutrality bill up in the air, congress refusing to give Mr. Roosevelt authority to pick sides by declaring one or several nations the aggressor.

Americans are afraid that the next European war will be made their own. That should be a wholly unreasonable and unnatural fear. It exists simply because Americans are not at all sure the foreign policy of their government will protect the United States as it should. If they were sure of that their neutrality would take care of itself without legislation. A sound foreign policy accepted as a continuing program would guarantee American immunity from other peoples' conflicts. No such utterly remote affair as the incorporation of the German city of Danzig within the territory of the German state could cause a flurry here. People would not be wondering what Mr. Roosevelt proposed to do to them if Great Britain and France went to war for Poland.

A prudent foreign policy is quite as essential to national security as a prudent budget. In recognition of that fact THE TRIBUNE carries in its Platform for America the plank, "Adopt an American foreign policy." Without one an administration will be extemporizing measures as questions arise without having a well defined objective in view. A long term program containing the best interests of the country does not present a difficulty. Some world events may seem to be spontaneous and precipitant but most of them are developments rather than spasmodic episodes. When they concern the United States they should be considered, for any action required, as they relate to the broad policy previously determined.

With some such exceptions as, for instance, the Monroe Doctrine, the United States governments have never reasoned their course through to logical conclusions dealing with permanent American interests. A foreign policy is a national purpose kept constantly in mind and advanced as opportunity offers. The Monroe Doctrine, as an isolated instance of this foresight, proves the value of a more comprehensive program. The doctrine has been adhered to. It is understood by other nations and undoubtedly as a recognized policy has prevented a great deal of trouble.

The first object of our foreign policy should be to strengthen our national defense. The United States would then make treaties with that in view. It would not become a party to agreements inconsistent with this guiding principle. It would not undertake to defend where the interests involved were not recognizable as American interests. It would not neglect opportunities which, if used, would promote the national policy.

A sound foreign policy would procure appropriate treaties with countries from which the Panama canal could be attacked. Brazil and Ecuador naturally would be included in such an arrangement. An American foreign policy would contemplate the retirement of foreign sovereignties from this hemisphere. There has been a semblance of intent in the process by which the United States from time to time has extinguished European claims by war or purchase.

In this there has been more instinct than reason. The country has not proceeded by deliberation, but by expedient. Its reluctance to use the leverage it has now to obtain the French and English bases off the American coasts is proof that the government has no defined program. The debts are a leverage but nothing is done with them. It would be acceptable if the English islands were transferred to Canada. French and Dutch territories should come to us. The mainland possessions should be annexed to their neighboring Latin-American nations.

A sound foreign policy which would consolidate the possessions the United States should have for its defense would also dictate the abandonment of lands which are a liability. That, of course, includes the Philippines. It is significant that our government in deciding to give the Filipinos full freedom was apparently influenced by every consideration except the most important one. The military liability in the Philippines was not the given reason for getting out. Economic and sentimental reasons prevailed, which may be satisfactory if the good result is obtained, but still there is the illustration of failure to base action upon sound thinking and a long view. A good foreign policy would impel the country to withdraw garrisons which cannot be reinforced, such as are maintained in China. We should abrogate dangerous treaties which commit the United States to responsibilities it should not and probably cannot meet.

Recent years have given many lessons to teach the folly of undertaking commitments which may gratify the idealism but do not conform to the realities. The signatures on the Kellogg peace treaty were never anything but a reproach and embarrassment to the nations which signed up. The Pacific treaties represented nothing but vain promises which were dissolved into nothing on the first test. Americans should have learned by this time that they cannot trust illusions and they should not build foreign policy on them.

An enlightened self-interest is as valuable in the conduct of national affairs as it is in individual life. An enlightened self-interest is not of necessity restricted to events as they arise from day to day, and, indeed, it cannot be applied in that fashion. The future of the United States is in part calculable. Things the country should not do are as perceivable now as they will be later as occasion for decision arises. It is of value to a nation that other countries should know what is to be logically expected of it. Our own governments and our diplomats would serve their own country better and other governments less if they knew that their conduct must square with certain accepted principles upon which the people insist.

An administration then could not so easily break away from the line of intelligent self-interest. If an administration plainly violated an American formula it would be immediately brought to account. Again, the Monroe Doctrine may be taken as an illustration. It isn't within probability that any American government would consent to the nullification of that principle. It is a permanent guide to American action and it transcends whatever might possibly be the wish of an administration.

LOUISIANA ET AL.

The corruption in Louisiana now being exposed is by no means unique. The same kind of thing, differing only in detail, has been happening under New Deal auspices in many states, including Dear Alben Barkley's Kentucky, Guffey's Pennsylvania, Chavez's New Mexico, Hines' New York, Slattery's Illinois, etc., etc. The circumstances vary, but the basic plot is always the same. Corruption flourishes in association with and under the protection of the New Dealers in Washington.

Huey Long was a red hot Roosevelt man in 1932. His delegation was seated in the convention and the contesting delegation was thrown out precisely because Huey was for Roosevelt. As long as he supported the Roosevelt régime Huey could and did outrage every canon of democracy and Democracy without alienating the White House. Mr. Roosevelt recognized Huey's sovereignty in Louisiana, and Huey had the spending of New Deal money there.

They got along famously until for reasons of his own Huey broke with the President. Then, and only then, the national administration discovered that the Kingfish and his friends were very bad boys indeed, and indicted them. The Louisiana boodlers had been great fellows before and they became great fellows again after Huey was assassinated and they agreed to return to Mr. Roosevelt's political fold. The indictments were forgotten and the prosecutions were dropped in a deal which has been well named the second Louisiana purchase.

Since then the Louisiana gang has been given its full quota of WPA money to spend and patronage to distribute. When there was a federal court vacancy to be filled in Louisiana recently, the judgeship went to Gaston L. Porterie, who had been Huey's attorney general and had continued to serve in that capacity until his elevation to the federal bench a few months ago. In the Long régime Porterie had been disbarred. In retaliation, Huey put through a law dissolving the bar association. Needless to say, Judge Porterie was sponsored by the Louisiana machine.

The same machine had placed James Monroe Smith in the president's chair at Louisiana State university. When it came to distributing easy money from Washington, Louisiana State got its share and more, with the blessing of Honest Harold Ickes. Even after the WPA scandal in Louisiana had been exposed and Gov. Leche had announced he would resign under fire, Attorney General Murphy said that Leche was still under consideration for a second federal judgeship in Louisiana. A month ago Mr. Murphy was delivering the baccalaureate address at Louisiana State, telling Dr. Smith all about the New Deal's fight on corruption.

There is nothing at all unusual about this association of New Dealers and corruptionists. There has never been any doubt about the use of WPA money in Kentucky to reëlect Senator Alben Barkley, but Dear Alben was Mr. Roosevelt's own hand picked candidate for the majority leadership in the senate and he was elected to that office only because Mr. Roosevelt lined up the votes for him.

The New Deal's political agent in New York was Jimmy Hines. He was intrusted with the distribution of the New Deal's patronage in that politically important spot. A New Deal judge, Pecora, declared a mistrial and thus prevented Hines from being convicted before the November election. Hines is now under sentence as a grafter and a protector of racketeers, but he has never been repudiated by his allies in Washington.

The New Dealers have heard the charges against Senator Slattery of Illinois, but have not investigated them and have thus deprived Mr. Slattery of an opportunity to explain. The administration continues to maintain the friendliest of relations with the Pennsylvania machine despite repeated revelations of its crookedness. And so it goes. The New Dealers, with Roosevelt, Ickes, and Murphy in the lead, will orate on the slightest pretext and frequently without any pretext about the evils of political corruption, but wherever corruptionists are exposed the New Deal is found sponsoring them or protecting them.

Editorial of the Day

BRINGING ECONOMY HOME.

[New York Sun.]

Attorney General Frank Murphy's recent remarks about economizing by reducing the public pay roll fell rather flat, but produced one response which Mr. Murphy may not have been expecting. Representative Woodruff of Michigan, the attorney general's own state, invited attention to some details not mentioned in the economy speech. The department of justice pay roll in April, 1939, had 280 more names on it than in June, 1933; the number of employés on the state pay roll in Michigan grew from 13,585 when Mr. Murphy became governor of the state to 17,558 two years later.

Those who talk in general terms about economies sometimes don't like to get down to details. In the case of the attorney general it may be assumed that he is familiar with his own record as governor and with the state of the pay roll of the department of which he is the head.

STALIN PURGES PEASANTS

BY DONALD DAY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia.—The Kolhozi [collective farms] in soviet Russia are being purged again by Dictator Stalin.

In 1918 there were 1,600 Kolhozi in Russia. In 1929 there were 57,000. In 1937, the latest available soviet figure, their number had increased to 243,700. Ninety-three per cent of all the peasants in Russia work on the Kolhozi. They till 99 per cent of all cultivated land. The government depends upon the Kolhozi to supply Russia's rapidly growing urban population with food. These are official figures.

Until a year ago the Kolhozniki [collective peasants] were producing a sizable surplus of foodstuffs. Stalin permitted them to have their own garden plots, some as large as five acres. Individual families could keep goats, sheep, poultry, and bees. Later they were allowed to own a cow. The peasants began to enlarge their plots. A little graft to the Kolhoz chief and he winked when they added another field or two to their holdings.

Individual farms began to produce better and larger crops than the Kolhozi. Production and cultivation on the Kolhozi lands began to show a sharp decrease. Investigation disclosed that individual farming methods had been resumed over wide areas in Russia.

The first two five year plans had made Russia an industrialized country. More than one-third of the population now is engaged in lines other than agriculture. Food became more and more scarce.

The harvest last year was first announced as being well above medium. The careful check which the Baltic bureau of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE keeps upon crop conditions in Russia revealed a poor harvest and a crop failure over large areas. Since January three different commissars—those of agriculture, food supply, and trade—have confirmed the earlier reports of THE TRIBUNE. Many districts are now suffering from acute famine conditions. In Turkestan and other autonomous republics where the soviet government is attempting to force peasants to grow cotton by forbidding them to grow grain, tens of thousands are dying from hunger.

In a decree formulated by the central committee of the communist party and the council of people's commissars, the peasants who had been enlarging their farms at the expense of the Kolhozi were termed plunderers. The decree appeared on the first pages of all newspapers published in Russia. It was signed by Stalin as general secretary of the party and Molotov as president of the council.

The decree declared that peasants had been using the Kolhozi to make private profits. It reported that peasants, by obtaining additional pieces of land for their families and even leasing land from the property of the Kolhozi, were all so busy cultivating their own land that they had no time to work on the Kolhozi. They disobeyed Moscow's orders as to when and how they should plow and reap and what crops they should cultivate.

As a result, all of Moscow's careful estimates as to crop production proved wrong. Distribution of foodstuffs throughout the soviet union according to plan became impossible. Districts supposed to produce wheat cultivated watermelons and cucumbers. Others supposed to furnish large surpluses of potatoes and cabbages cultivated rye. Chaos in crop cultivation continued to develop and the result was the new decree, which was a wide swing to the left in the Kremlin policy towards the peasants.

Each time Moscow has attempted to dictate a new mode of life to the peasant, Russia has suffered from famine. The new decree foreshadows that the present famine will become worse instead of better.

The decree, after declaring that the revival of individual farming had demoralized those peasants wishing to remain true to Kolhoz principles, alleged that in reality the Kolhozi contains a large supply of surplus labor which the soviet government intends to use for various forced labor enterprises, such as canal construction, extending railroads, and building new industrial centers. Extensive colonization work also is to be carried out in Trans-Volga districts, where cultivation is possible only through irrigation, and in the Omsk, Novosibirsk, Tcheliabinsk, and Tchkalov provinces, in the Altai district, and in Kazakstan.

Life in the Kolhozi, the decree continued, failed to stifle the desire of the peasants to acquire private property. Other bourgeois tendencies developed, it said, especially the inclination to pass the buck and let some one else do the hard work.

The decree provided:

The action of communist party officials and soviet government organizations in permitting violations of the land law to enlarge private holdings of peasants is to be considered hereafter as an anti-party and anti-government practice.

The area of the Kolhozi lands cannot be decreased without special permission of the government. All attempts to give peasants land from the common fund will be considered as criminal trespass and the guilty will be brought to court.

Executives who have permitted peasants to acquire more land than was allowed by previous decrees are to be dismissed from their posts, expelled from the party, and brought before court.

Kolhozi members who have illegally acquired land will be dismissed from the Kolhozi. Kolhozi chiefs who have allowed peasants to harvest hay on Kolhozi lands will be expelled from the Kolhozi and brought before court.

A survey and measurement of all lands now in private use, especially those plots amidst the fields of the Kolhozi, must be completed before Aug. 15, 1939. The norm of land held by Kolhozniki must not exceed ¼ to ½ hectare and in certain regions 1 hectare [a hectare is 2.771 acres]. All land exceeding these amounts must be confiscated and returned to the common land fund.

In cotton growing regions peasant grazing plots shall not exceed one-tenth of a hectare, except in irrigated regions, where up to ⅛ hectare is allowed. In truck gardening and beet growing districts grazing plots must not exceed ⅛ hectare. In all remaining regions they may amount to one hectare.

Each Kolhoz shall maintain a special book in which must be registered all allotted plots. Periodic investigation of the actual amount of communally exploited land and the size of privately exploited garden plots must be made by surveying committees, which operate under the national commissariat of agriculture.

Hereafter each Kolhoznik and Kolhoznita [man and woman] must labor a minimum number of working days each year. In cotton growing regions they must labor 100 working days each year. In the Moscow, Leningrad, Ivanovski, Yaroslavski, Gorkovski, Kalininski, Vologda, Tula, Riazan, Smolensk, Archangelsk, Kirovsk, Perm, Sverdlovsk, Tchitin provinces; in the Habarovsk and Primorski regions, and in the Karelian, Komi, Mariam, and Yakut autonomous districts, and in all mountainous and cattle growing regions the minimum is sixty working days annually. In all other districts eighty working days. All members of Kolhozi failing to attain these minimums will be expelled and lose all privileges.

[In bolshevik terminology a working day constitutes the amount of work accomplished over a stretch ranging from fourteen to eighteen hours by a healthy young communist. This is established as a work norm and it frequently takes peasant men and women two or three days to complete the amount of farm labor which is termed by Moscow a working day.]

Since it is now forbidden to reduce the size of the Kolhozi, it has become necessary to resettle a portion of the peasants living in overcrowded Kolhozi to other regions where there is available land. The soviet government, therefore, ordered the creation of a settlement commission which will arrange colonization of lands in Trans-Volga, Omsk, Cheliabinsk, Altai, Kazakstan, in the far east, and in other sparsely populated regions.

HOLD YOURSELF ALOOF FROM POISON IVY.

NATURE in the raw may be unfriendly. After a trip through the woods we may become incapacitated for a week or two because we have associated too intimately with certain plants. Poison ivy, poison oak, and sumac—members of the Rhus family—exude an oily substance [toxicodendrol], which is related chemically to carbolic acid. If the skin comes into close contact with this sap—particularly if hangnails or abrasions are present—distressing symptoms may ensue. These include stinging and smarting sensations, redness, swelling, and blistering.

If the face is involved, the eyelids may puff up so that they cannot be opened. Small blebs are a common accompaniment and, when these burst, a watery discharge is observed—the underlying cuticle appearing angry and raw. As the reaction recedes, dry fine crusts form, which may remain for some time. As a rule, trouble will be experienced within a few hours, though in some cases it may be delayed. This is because clothing [including shoes] impregnated with the poison may rub against the epidermis when one is dressing or undressing.

The inner sides of the fingers are usually affected first and contaminated hands may disseminate the toxin to other areas. Some authors believe that the volatile irritant absorbed from the surface of the body may be transported via the circulation to remote parts. This would account for blemishes on well covered portions. Again, highly sensitive persons may be disturbed if within twenty feet of the weed, as air currents may convey the offending element.

This noxious growth flourishes as a vine, a trailing shrub, or a bush. The leaflets occur in groups of three [in contrast to five in harmless varieties] and are broad, ending in a point. At first they are reddish in shade, later turning to green. In the autumn they burst into scarlet and orange hues. The foliage should not be handled even after frost.

There are many methods of treatment, but every one seems to agree that the first step is to cleanse all exposed sites thoroughly with hot water and a generous lather. Soap is necessary because we are dealing with an oil which is not soluble in water. The washing and rinsing process should be repeated several times. No great force should be employed, as it is important not to injure the surface cells. A hand or bath brush is not advised. Lime water, boric acid, or an alkali may be mixed with the suds.

Potassium permanganate is helpful, as is ferric chloride. This latter preparation has the disadvantage of leaving stains which may persist for weeks or months. The discoloration due to the permanganate may be removed by swabbing with a weak solution of hyposulfite of soda. Cold compresses soaked in strong magnesium sulfate decrease congestion and alleviate pain. The standard calamine lotion is of value in allaying itching.

Occasionally the lesions are treated as severe burns and the affected regions are dried and painted with melted paraffin to exclude air. In the moist stage, talc powder containing boric acid, starch, and magnesium carbonate is comforting, as it forms a protective coating.

Vaccine therapy is becoming increasingly popular, although there is considerable variation not only in the results but in the manner of treatment. Some physicians advise the procedure only in severe cases and prefer to give the irritant by mouth. When injected beneath the skin many patients develop a rash around the needle puncture.

As with other maladies, prevention is the better part of cure. Learn to recognize the vine. When on a hike in a suspected locality, wear leggings and gloves. After a day in the country, as a precautionary measure, take a hot bath, use soap freely, and wash every part of the body, including the scalp. This may be followed by a rubdown with dilute alcohol [20 per cent] and a shower with fresh water. Footgear, particularly, should be aired thoroughly. Infested shoes or gloves that have been put away after a day in the open have been known to inaugurate an attack when worn months later.

If an individual is disabled for a short period each year because of extreme susceptibility, an attempt should be made to desensitize him by the oral administration of the tincture of poison ivy. This plan covers one week and starts with a single drop of a diluted mixture after breakfast. This is increased one drop with each succeeding meal until at supper on the seventh day twenty-one drops will be the maximum.

STOMACH CATARRH.

Mrs. E. M. writes: What is catarrh of the stomach? Is it curable? What are the symptoms?

REPLY.

This refers to a chronic form of irritation [termed gastritis] which is often accompanied by a generous outpouring of mucus from the glands. At the hands of a skilled physician relief may be obtained. Treatment may vary in each individual case. The first essential is to avoid hot or ice cold foods and all condiments, including alcohol. The dietary régime is too involved to explain here. The symptoms may be nausea, vomiting, or distress after meals.

MAY BE GOITER.

B. E. M. writes: My 13 year old daughter has a definite Adam's apple in the front part of her throat. Is this a serious condition? What can be done about it?

REPLY.

One should suspect an enlargement of the thyroid [goiter] whenever a tumorlike growth appears in the front of the throat. In girls of her age this is rarely a serious matter. The use of iodized salt at the table may be all that is needed. Your physician should be consulted if the swelling persists.

MILK AND ORANGE JUICE.

E. A. writes: I have heard that drinking milk following a glass of orange juice will curdle it.

REPLY.

You are quite right, but this is a natural process. The freshest milk will turn to clabber promptly on reaching the stomach—whether you have taken fruit juice or not. This is the first step in digestion. The gastric juices contain a clotting enzyme, as well as acid.

GRILLED OR BROILED?

L. B. writes: Is broiling meat on the top of the stove on a grill the same as broiling it in an oven?

REPLY.

There is a difference between pan and grill broiling. In the former grease accumulates. In the latter it drops away.

NOTES A TAXI MONOPOLY.

Chicago, June 27.—Why are the taxi rates higher in Chicago than in any other large city? Why have the Yellow cabs and the Checkers such a strangle hold on this city? The answer to one of these questions probably answers both.

There are half a dozen taxi services on the north side of Howard street that give as good service at half the cost, but it is being made increasingly difficult to get them. They used to stop at the L station, but now one must walk a block to get them, while the Yellows are lined up six deep.

A few nights ago coming out from a local movie and finding it raining we phoned for a nickel cab. One came, but instead of stopping in front of the theater it turned the corner. We had to run for it. "Why didn't you stop at the theater?" I asked. "Lady," said the driver, "I dassent. Don't you see what's opposite? That's the Rogers Park police station."

He went on to tell us of an incident that happened a few nights before. He was signaled from the sidewalk by two men in civilian clothes. When they got in he asked, "Where to?" They replied, "The Rogers Park police station." The poor devil had been pinched. Now with all the murderers, kidnapers, and rapists running around loose in this community, is it not rather silly to be making sissies out of our policemen by ordering them to arrest taxi drivers who are making an honest living and giving the people the service that they want?

MARY ONAHAN GALLERY.

SHE'S EMPLOYED; DOESN'T LIKE IT.

Peoria, Ill., June 25.—I am not one of the army of the unemployed, but I would like to be. If some reader will give me some really good suggestions, I'll give up my position to some one who probably needs it just as much as I do, and wants it more, and that'll be at least a little help in relieving unemployment.

Here's the situation—I'm a stenographer—good one, too—but I don't like it any more. I had to give up the good job I had in my home town because the machine age backed the horse collar business off the map. Now I work all day in a big office where there's more confusion and noise than in the boiler factory that used to do business in my neighborhood. And in the evening I come to one room in a cooped-up apartment, with heavy trafic—and hot tamale men—going by until midnight, and I don't like it.

My mother owns two acres of land on the edge of a small town, and I have $500 and a car; and I'm a good cook and an enthusiastic gardener; 35 years old, strong and healthy. The point is—can I do something with $500 and two acres that will earn me a living? Not a sumptuous living, just a comfortable one.

I mean it. If you're public spirited, and want to help some needy girl get my job, start advising.

PADDLES AND POTATO BUGS.

Chicago, June 29.—C. M. C.'s criticism of McCutcheon's cartoon on potato bug killing would seem to indicate that he was but a "gentleman farmer," of small experience.

When I was a boy down in Maine I killed potato bugs on my father's farm in the manner shown in McCutcheon's cartoon. To smash them we used two small paddles with ends whittled down for handles and were careful not to get bug juice on our hands as it was supposed to be poison. Later we used the pan and brush method with a little kerosene in the bottom of the pan to keep the bugs from crawling out. This was much faster than the paddles. Still later we mixed Paris Green in water and used a regular hand sprinkling can, which was much faster than the pan. Anyway, C. M. C. is a helluva brave man to challenge McCutcheon to fight him with an outdated muzzle loader against his repeater.

This cartoon is so true to life that I cut it out and took it home to show my wife how I used to do when I was a boy, as she is city bred and thinks a farmer's life is all fun and eats.

CITES THE BOOK OF EXODUS.

Chicago, June 25.—The Chicago school teachers are not asking for a raise. They merely want a restoration of salary.

Your reader, Mrs. John Marshall, forgets the months when the teachers received no salaries at all and their money was used to keep the schools open so that people like Mrs. Marshall didn't need to be bothered with their children at home. She forgets that holiday pay was taken away from the teachers one year and was never repaid. This was illegal and restitution was made to other civic employés, but never to the teachers.

Mrs. Marshall should read the 20th chapter of Exodus, 16th verse.

NO HELP FROM THE POLICE.

Chicago, June 26.—I have just read that the city code prohibits bicycle riding on sidewalks, so I am at a loss to understand why reporting to the police is of no help to the average citizen.

I have complained to the parents to no avail after their children ran down my child. I have reported it to the police twice while the children were riding but have seen no evidence of their coöperation in helping to protect small children. Will some one tell me what steps are necessary to protect ourselves from people who have no regard for others?

RAZZED ABOUT CHICAGO.

Chicago, June 25.—Just back from a four month business trip, touching all major American cities. Razzed everywhere with: "What's wrong with Chicago? You seem to be the only city still yelping 'Depression'!"

Most burgs have got down to business with resultant cause to forget singing the blues.

Definitions of our "Keep Chicago Ahead" slogan and variants thereof have become a national gag. Trick question: "Ahead of what" So far, the answer seems to be. Parking lots!

USED CAR DISPLAY.

Chicago, June 12.—[Friend of the People.]—A certain party in our neighborhood is making a public nuisance of himself by selling dilapidated cars. He has six or seven cars parked about the curb, sidewalk, and an empty lot next to his house. In addition, he has old cars parked about in the alley and his own yard, making the place look like a junk yard. Besides the noise and gas coming from these cars, they are operating their business without a dealer's license. It is a menace to public safety to have these cars running about. Isn't there some zoning or other law that would enjoin the continuance of such a business?

E. H.

Officers interviewed the used car operator in question and she showed them that she has the proper license for this kind of business. She also keeps the proper record books of her business and permitted officers to examine them. She also rents the lot in question where she keeps the cars and drives them onto the lot from the rear. We found no violations of cars parked either in the street or alley. However, if any violations are found upon subsequent visits, proper action will be taken.

RIGHTS IN ESTATE.

Chicago, June 23.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. My husband died some time ago leaving a will giving everything to me. He has a brother and his mother living. In case of my death can they claim any of the estate? There are no children.

2. My sister recently passed away. Could her husband claim the part of estate left her in my will if I do not have the will changed? Does he come in for any part of the estate as her heir?

3. She made a will, signed before witnesses. Can she change or amend it or put an addition to it without going to a lawyer? Will it be legal? Is a will written and signed by one's self a legal will?

W. O.

1. No.
2. Not as we understand the facts, but we cannot give advice of much value without having the wording of the will before us.
3. She could make no changes on the face of the will. Changes could be made by a codicil executed in the same manner as a will. The law imposes specific requirements as to the method of execution before witnesses but does not expressly require that the will be executed before a lawyer.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

WORDING CONTROLS.

Chicago, June 23.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Part of an estate of a party who died a number of years ago is still awaiting distribution. Since the death of this party several of the original heirs also have passed away. These [original] heirs are survived by a number of sons and daughters. Are the issue of the original heirs entitled to that part of the inheritance which would have come into possession of the deceased heirs? Would the share of these deceased heirs come into possession of the surviving original heirs?

L. C.

If the original estate involved no will, then the interests of the heirs in that estate would, on the death of the heirs, descend to their respective heirs. If there was a will, the question whether the interest of the beneficiaries would be similarly inheritable would depend upon the wording of that will.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

MUST WAIT ONE YEAR.

Chicago, June 24.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My aunt died five months ago leaving a house and a sum of money to four heirs. There was a will. One of the heirs now lives in the house. Another is in destitute circumstances and could use some of the money due her, but my uncle, who is administrator, says she must wait a year to get any of the money. What steps can she take to obtain part of her share? All bills have been paid.

P. A.

Ordinarily there is no distribution until the expiration of the year for filing claims.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

INVENTORY OF ESTATE.

Chicago, June 23.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Where can I obtain a copy of inventory of an estate, death having occurred several years ago, but estate not settled as yet? I am a member of the family concerned.

2. Can I obtain this copy without the others knowing about it?

3. Is there a time limit as to when one can obtain same?

4. What is the charge?

5. Where shall I obtain it?

S. J.

1. From the clerk of the court, assuming that an inventory has been filed.
2. If you order the copy through the clerk's office, then your order stub will be technically open to inspection, but as a practical matter it does not seem likely that it would be noticed.
3. No.
4. Depends on the number of pages.

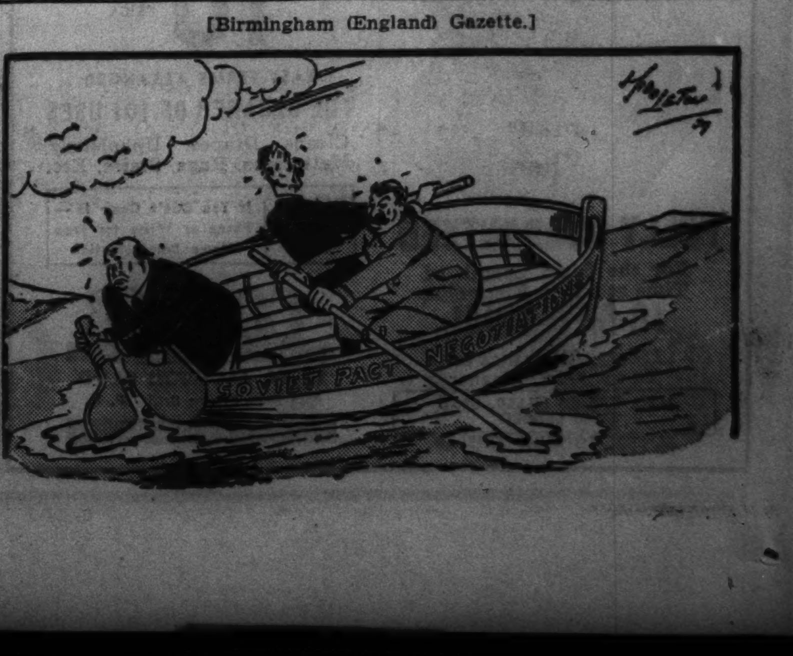
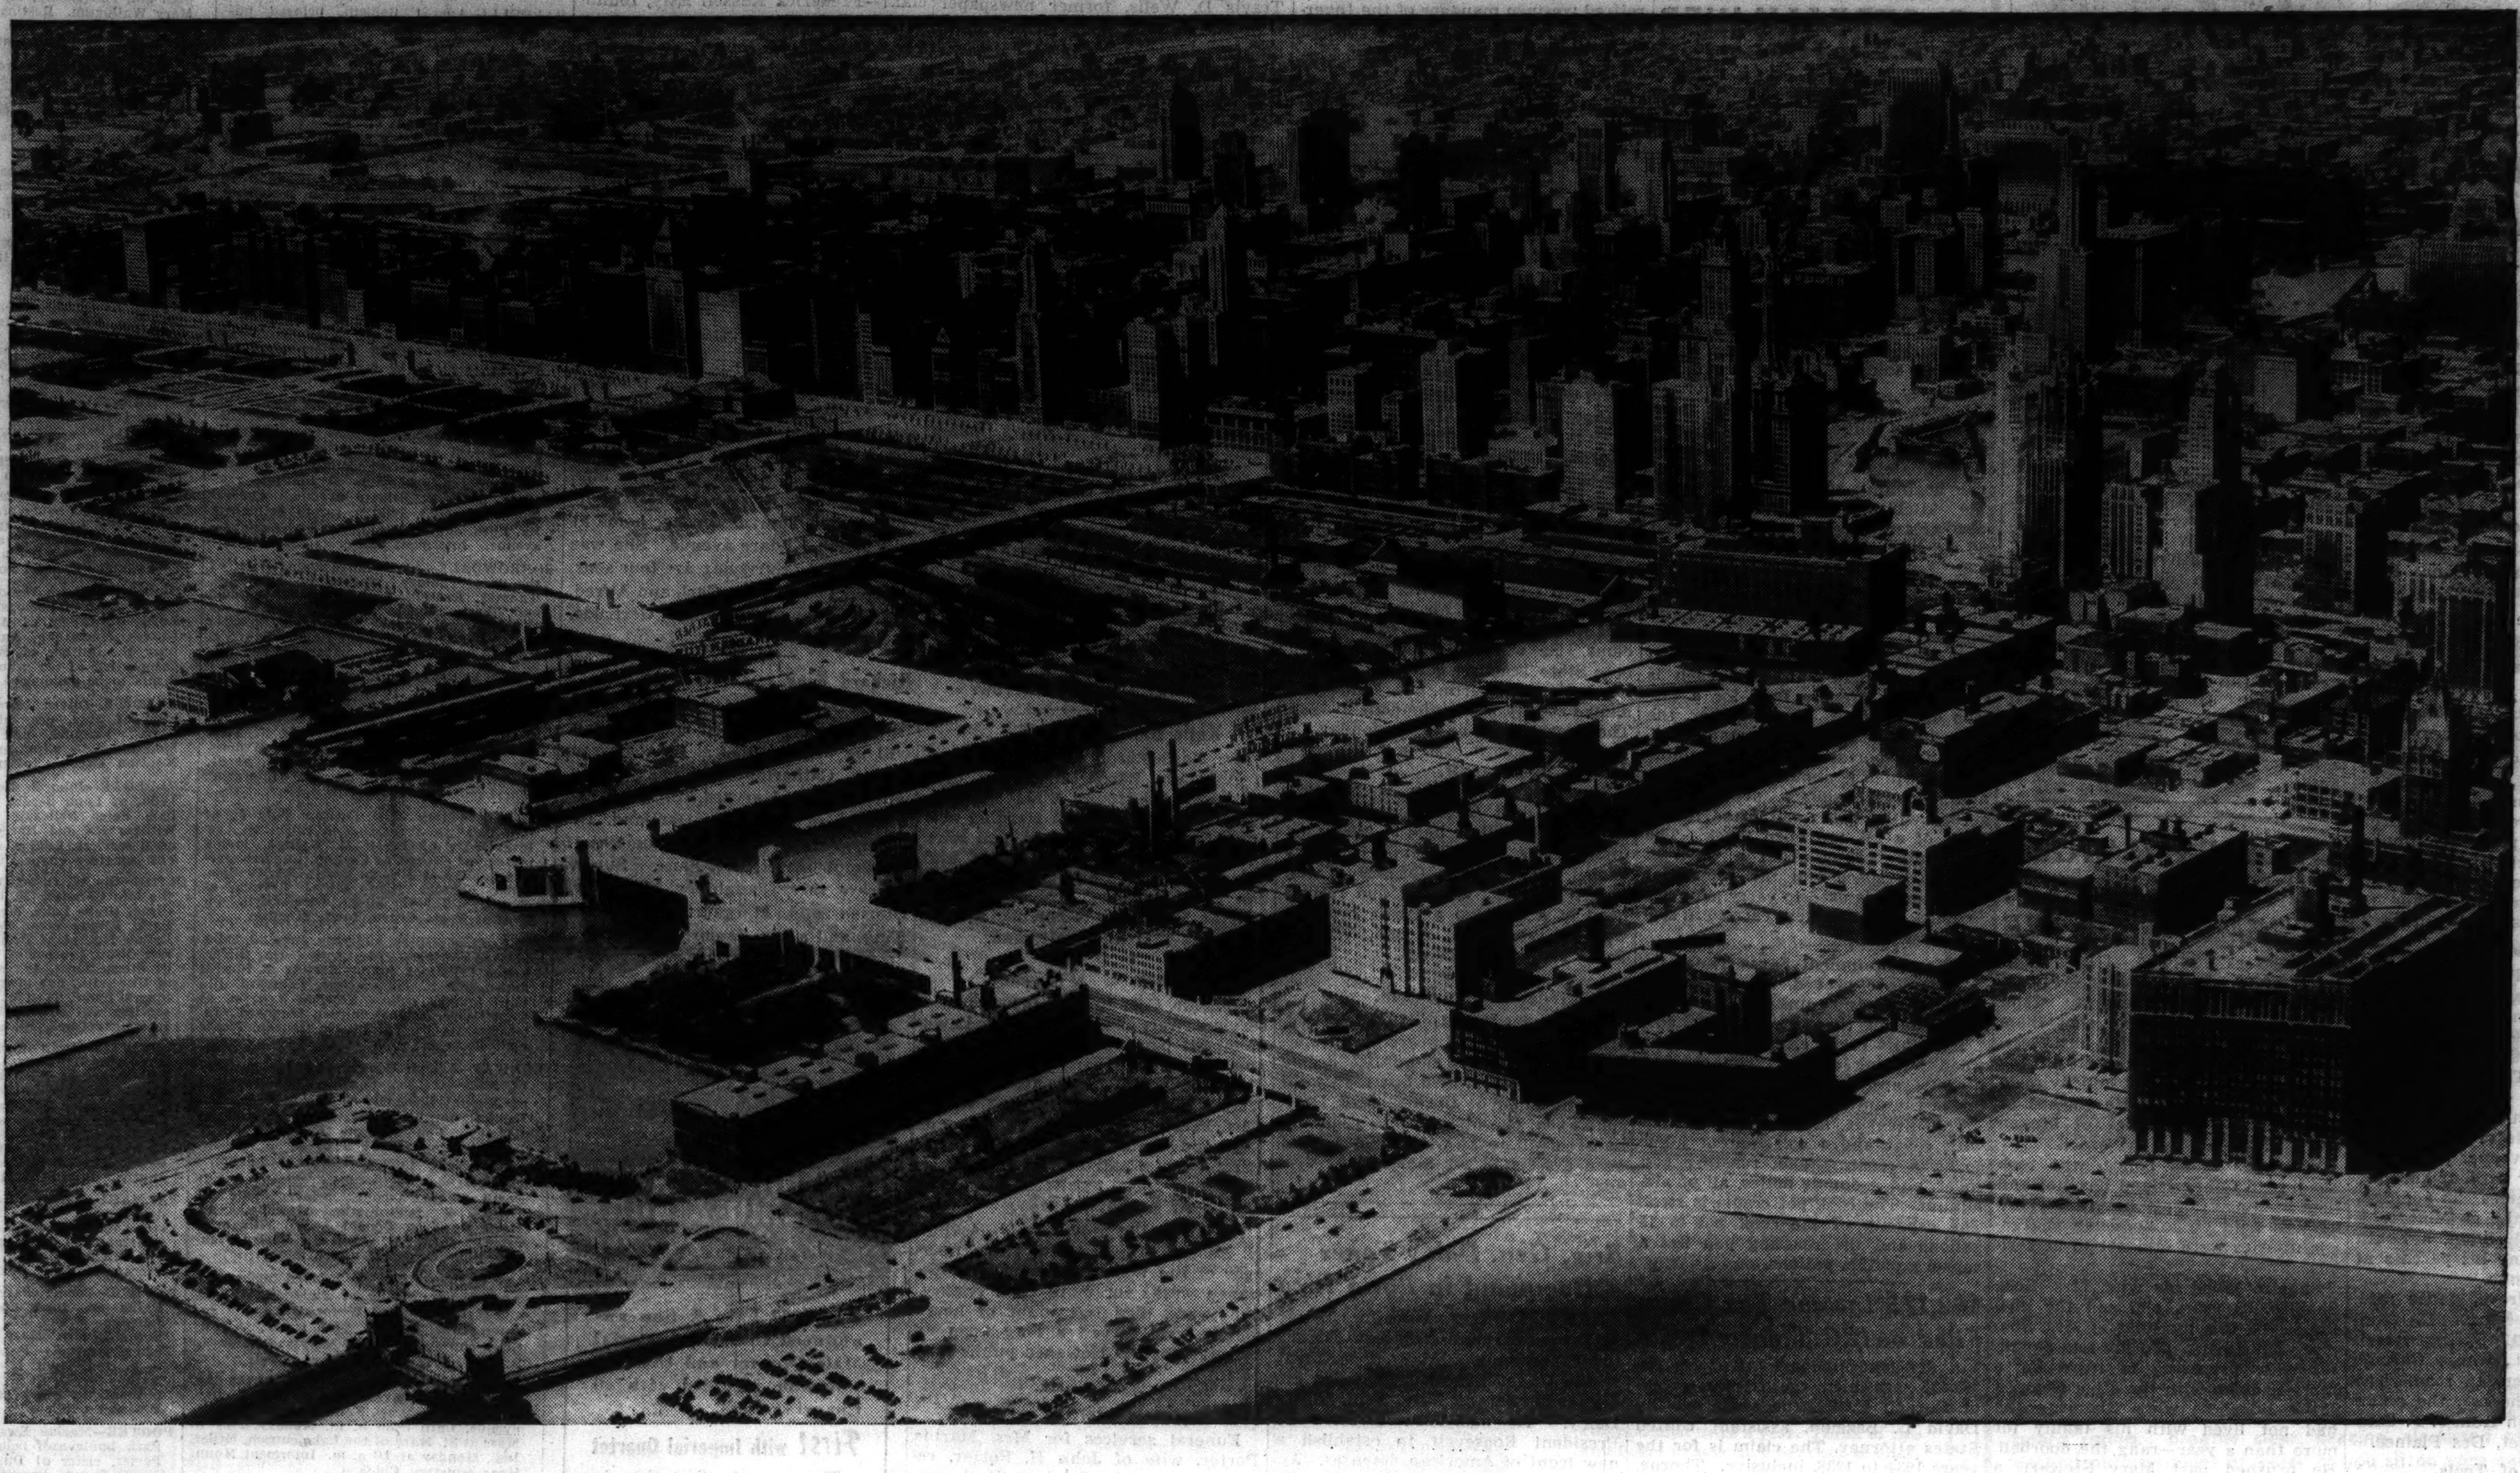
THREE MEN IN A BOAT

[Birmingham (England) Gazette.]





I WILL

"Within the magic circle struck with the radius of one night's railway ride from Chicago, there are now over fifty million people. Within that ring lies the largest area of continuously fertile land on this or any other continent . . .

"Within it also are the richest producing iron fields in the world at present being worked. Within it is a coal field with a reserve greater than that of all France, Belgium, Russia and Japan combined . . .

"Add to all this . . . a land served with a better network of railways and highways than any other area on earth; and better still, a land with provision already made for inland water transportation to the Mississippi and the Gulf, and inland seas at hand soon to be made part and parcel of the outer ocean in service. It is no wonder that we have grown rapidly in population and wealth. But greater things are in store.

" . . . so far as any one present can see, Chicago may well become the greatest city the world has ever known. We have brains enough and energy enough, and wealth enough . . . there is not a shadow of a doubt but that when we put our shoulders to the wheel, we will accomplish marvels also in civic, social, aesthetic and spiritual ways. We need only invoke the 'I WILL' spirit of Chicago to accomplish our hearts' desire . . . "

. . . "the greatest city the world has ever known."

Who spoke those words? A professional "booster"? A politician coaxing the people's votes? A humbug trying to sell Chicago a pig-in-a-poke?

No. The man who made that prophecy was a scientist, one of the most eminent scientists of his time. And the science in which he excelled is the science of lands and waters and cities—geography.

When Professor J. Paul Goode of the University of Chicago made that prophecy in 1926, he was neither trying to "boost" his city, nor win its votes, nor sell it anything. He spoke as a scientist: objectively, impartially—scientifically.

The scientist is slow to predict, hesitant to prophesy. But after thirty years of travel and research, Professor Goode knew the great cities of earth as few men have known them. The centers of our own civilization he knew first-hand; the cities of antiquity he knew as a scholar.

He believed in Chicago because he knew it. He loved Chicago because he understood it. He understood its shortcomings . . . and its possibilities.

. . . "the greatest city the world has ever known."

Thus the scientist, analyzing, weighing, measuring the cities of today and yesterday, assayed Chicago's destiny. Thus the expert, scientifically, unsentimentally, captured the historic splendor of Chicago's vision.

The men and women who built Chicago, built their city upon that splendid vision. To men and women like John Wentworth, Potter Palmer, Jane Addams, Marshall Field, Cyrus McCormick, Ella Flagg Young, Daniel Burnham, Charles Wacker, Andrew MacLeish, Julius Rosenwald—to men and women like these the vision of the greatest city the world has ever known was foundation enough for their building.

Stone and steel, in themselves, are meaningless. Material riches, natural advantages—these too, in themselves, are meaningless. It is men and women who make a city, and they make it with a vision.

Men and women unafraid and undismayed made Chicago—in less than a century—the fourth city in the world. They made it rich in trade and produce—yes. But they made it rich in a deeper sense. They made it rich in beauty and aspiration, in the goods of the human spirit. They made a city that millions of people looked at and said, "I want to live here and work here. This is a great city."

The lives of Chicago's builders challenge Chicago today. Chicago can ignore that challenge and die, as Carthage and Rome, Athens and Alexandria died. The great cities of antiquity fell because they would not carry the burden of greatness bequeathed them by their builders. Prosperous and powerful they fell nevertheless, and they fell because they lost the vision that made them great.

Chicago can accept the challenge of its builders and clothe that vision with reality. Chicago can "put its shoulder to the wheel," in Professor Goode's words, and realize its destiny. Not all can create great projects. Not all can lead. But all can participate, all can share the labors and the fruits of Chicago's destiny.

The Chicago of today is built. But cities never stay the same. They grow better (and great) or worse (and wretched). They grow worse by themselves. They grow great by the vision of the men and women who dwell in them.

Chicago's future is neither bright nor dark. Chicago's future is its own to make. The city of tomorrow will be made by the citizens of today As it is an axiom of mathematics that a whole can be no greater than the sum of its parts, so it is an axiom of society that a city can be no greater than all its inhabitants. The people of Chicago hold its destiny in their hands. They can make it the greatest city the world has ever known.

THEY CAN IF THEY WILL.

NABS EX-CONVICT AFTER TEN MILE FIGHT WITH GUNS

Policeman Empties Pistol, Fells Man with Fist.

After exhausting his ammunition in a ten mile running gun battle with a former convict in a stolen automobile Park Policeman Matthew Boland knocked his man down with a blow of his fist and took him in custody early today. The fugitive held a loaded rifle in his hands when Boland struck him. The prisoner, arrested when his automobile crashed into a tree at 52d street and Kenwood avenue, identified himself as Tom Jones, 48 years old, 1524 Main street, Indiana Harbor, Ind. His criminal record dates from 1905. He was held at the Hyde Park police station.

The chase started at 37th street and Leif Ericson drive, where, Boland said, he found Jones threatening a motorist with a shotgun because of a trafic quarrel. Jones sped northward to 16th street, swung over to Columbus drive, and headed back south, eventually returning to Ericson drive. Then the pursuit continued in 49th street, Blackstone avenue, Dorchester avenue, Hyde Park boulevard, 53d street, and Kenwood avenue to the place of the crash and capture.

Car Riddled with Bullets.

During the chase Policeman Boland fired eighteen shots and seventeen bullet holes were found afterward in Jones' car. Jones had emptied his shotgun with the exception of two shells when it jammed. Then he began to fire a rifle.

Six bullets fired in the chase perforated the automobile of Michael Bosak, 10733 Forest avenue, who drove up beside Jones' car without knowing a battle was in progress. In addition, one bullet entered the gasoline tank of the Rev. Donald Dillon, a South Dakota priest visiting his parents at 4401 Greenwood avenue.

The car Jones drove, police said, had been stolen March 18 from H. A. Mustaine, 212 Spring street, Michigan City, Ind., whose Chicago address is 4423 Sheridan road. The license plates on the car, the police said, had been stolen from J. F. Calabrese, 690 Lee street, Des Plaines.

Find Kit of Tools.

Also in the car was a handbag containing thirty-five articles, including pliers, coils of wire, wrenches, soap, drills, a hammer, and a bottle containing a green liquid which police said would be analyzed.

According to the records of the police bureau of identification, Jones has served at least four penitentiary terms. His record:

July 7, 1905—Sentenced to a year in the House of Correction for robbery.

July 19, 1906—Sentenced to four years in the Wisconsin penitentiary at Waupun for assault to rob.

Oct. 8, 1909—Sentenced to two years at Waupun for possession of burglar tools at Stevens Point, Wis.

July 10, 1912—Fined $1 and costs for assault to rape.

March 11, 1913—Sentenced to five years at Fort Leavenworth, Kas.; offense not recorded.

March 28, 1918—Sentenced to Joliet penitentiary for assault to rob; later transferred to the hospital of Chester penitentiary; escaped June 9, 1923; returned.

Oct. 25, 1929—Arrested at Bismarck, N. D., on charge of burglary and bank robbery; disposition of case not recorded.

The motorist whom Jones had threatened gave his license number to Policeman Boland and was directed to appear later at the police station. The license number was issued to M. J. Richmond, Coulterville, Ill.

KILLS ESTRANGED WIFE, DAUGHTER; ATTEMPTS TO DIE

New York, July 1.—[U. P.]—Ten hours after he forced his estranged wife and their daughter to stand against a wall and then shot them dead, Joseph Shapiro tried unsuccessfully tonight to kill himself in the presence of hundreds of holiday makers at Coney Island. He slashed at his wrists with a piece of broken bottle picked up on the beach.

Witnesses called police, who took Shapiro to Coney Island hospital and then to Kings County hospital, where he was held on a homicide charge. His injuries were said not to be serious.

Shapiro killed his wife, Mrs. Rose Shapiro, 35 years old, and the girl, Rhoda, 14, this morning in Mrs. Shapiro's apartment. Mother and daughter were preparing to leave for a summer camp with the other Shapiro child, Jules, 12, when Shapiro—who had not lived with his family for more than a year—rang the doorbell. He brushed past Mary Stewart, a Negro maid, and entered the living room, where Mrs. Shapiro and the children were packing. The maid and Jules ran into the next room. Shapiro fired six shots, all of which found their mark, and then fled.

ARMY TO COME AND GET IT FROM A STREAMLINER

New Kitchens, in 3 Units, Will Ride Trucks.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 1.—Gone are the days of that cherished vehicle of the army—the rolling kitchen, comforter to soldiers hungry from the march.

It was learned today that new streamlined units will soon replace the kitchens. The army will spend approximately $300,000 in the fiscal year beginning today for new portable kitchens more adaptable to speedier army movements. More than 650 old kitchens will be replaced.

New Units Will Ride.

The old kitchen was mounted on wheels and pulled behind supply trucks. It was large enough to feed a whole company. The new kitchen consists of three units and each is adequate to prepare food for a platoon of fifty men. Put together, the three units can feed a company.

For transportation, the three units, each of which is about four feet high and two feet square, are tied together with chains and lifted to the front of a 1½ ton open truck. The box units occupy about a third of the truck space and the remainder of the space is used to carry supplies. Supplies formerly were carried in separate trucks.

New Equipment Saves Time.

Tests have proved, say army officials, that the new units can be transported faster than the old kitchens.

The units carry either gasoline or wood burning stoves. The cooking utensils are designed to be nested inside the units when in transit.

The utensils include a cook pot with cover and a splash-proof inner cover, a roasting pan, roasting pan cover, and a double boiler, all of aluminum. The cook pot cradle is steel. The capacity of the cook pot is 15 gallons and the roasting pan has a capacity of 10¾ gallons.

IMPERIAL QUARTET AT LAIN & SON Exclusively

● In 1932 Lain & Son announced that the Imperial Male Quartet and Organist would be included with all Chapel services.

First with Imperial Quartet

This was the first time in Chicago that any funeral director included music as a part of the service, for previously a quartet had cost $30 to $50 additional.

When the new Chapel of Lain & Son at 5501 N. Ashland was opened in April, 1937, the same policy of making available a quartet was continued.

Two Quartets . . Two Chapels

Now there are two Imperial Quartets—and two Lain & Son chapels—and with every service, regardless of cost, the IMPERIAL MALE QUARTET is included without extra charge — as well as organ and organist.

First in Chapel Services

Chicago's preference for Lain & Son funerals is now greater than for any other concern.

NEW N. Y. CANCER HOSPITAL HIT BY LABOR DEMANDS

Director Flays Building Unions at Dedication.

BY WILLIAM FULTON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 1.—The new Memorial hospital for the treatment of cancer in New York City is 20 feet shorter than the original plans called for and its quarters are correspondingly cramped as a result of unfair, exorbitant demands of certain labor unions, according to the director of the institution.

The director, Dr. James Ewing, noted medical scientist in the cancer field, declared at the dedication program two weeks ago that the building program was "marred from the beginning to the end by the extravagant demands and arbitrary practices of the labor unions." Because of this, he declared, the hospital costs were increased 20 per cent and its facilities curtailed.

Free Clinic Is Overflowing.

Today the results of the curtailment are to be found on every floor of the new twelve story structure. There is a waiting list in each of the nine departments treating cancer and allied diseases. The free clinic, where many laboring folk are cared for, is filled and overflowing. About one third of the hospital's work is free to patients who cannot afford to pay.

Originally the new hospital was planned to cost $3,500,000. Instead, nearly $4,000,000 was expended. The building of 3,500,000 cubic feet on the drawing boards shrank to 3,325,000 cubic feet in construction.

The general education board, Rockefeller endowed, contributed $3,000,000 toward the new Memorial hospital and Edward S. Harkness, the philanthropist, put up an additional $500,000. John D. Rockefeller donated the land on which the hospital was built near the East river and adjoining the Rockefeller institute, New York hospital and Cornell University Medical college. There are 169 beds in the new institution, 17 of them for children.

Contract on "Cost Plus" Basis.

Part of the mounting charges for the construction was attributed to the fact that the contract was let on a "cost plus" basis. Periodic increases in the wages of the building trades workers had to be borne by the hospital. But there were other factors, outrageous in the eyes of the hospital people, which entered in to boost expenses. A few of these will serve to illustrate.

Prime example was the installation of intricate equipment such as the new million volt X-ray unit which has the power of eight and a half pounds of radium or twelve times the supply of that element in this country. General Electric, which built the new machine, sent along its skilled experts to install it. The electrical workers' union demanded that its members take over the job although the local electricians knew nothing about the equipment.

Work was delayed for two weeks while the union remained adamant, threatening to call a general strike if the General Electric experts did the job. Finally, the hospital surrendered. The union men installed the equipment while the General Electric staff stood by and directed them down to the last nut and bolt.

The cost of moving equipment from the old hospital to the new skyrocketed as a result of demands of union movers. Hospital porters and orderlies were forced to stand by while union movers carried pieces to the rooms. The regular hospital staff was not even allowed to put down the casters for the beds or sweep out accumulated trash.

Wage Scales Boosted.

The final plan for the hospital was approved in March of 1937 but by November the general contractors and sub contractors were asking an additional total increase of $360,000, which they received. Wage scales were rising. A table showing the union rates per hour for the building trades here in New York City during the last three years follows:

	1936.	1937.	1938.
Electricians	$1.60	$1.70	$2.00
Plumbers	1.50	1.75	2.00
Steamfitters	1.40	1.75	2.00
Carpenters	1.40	1.75	1.75
Plasterers	1.50	2.00	2.00
Painters	1.28	1.28	1.50
Bricklayers	1.50	1.88	1.88

Many union workers say the increased wages were coupled with shortened hours of work and their individual annual incomes have not been raised appreciably. On the other hand, union officials have rejected the idea of an annual wage in the building industries.

Gang of Young Robbers Captured

WPA CLERK TURNS BANDIT; BLAMES IT ON COURT JOB

Identify Gang of Five in Holdups.

Since last February James Shorter, 20 years old, has worked as a WPA clerk in the vaults of the Criminal court building, indexing old court records. He had many opportunities to scan the records of men sent to prison for robbery, and to visit half a dozen courtrooms to see men being tried for robbery.

Last night Shorter stood before twenty men and women in the Shakespeare avenue station. He saw five of them point him out as a robber.

Held with Four Others.

Held with Shorter are two other young men and two young married women. They are James Basile, 22 years old, 2719 Polk street; Wilbur Sotola, 20, of 1630 North Tripp avenue; Mrs. Grace Greenwald, 20, of 4626 North St. Louis avenue, and Mrs. Bessie Fastre, 20, of 2674 Madison street. Each was identified in at least one holdup. Each, police said, confessed at least one. Mrs. Greenwald's husband, police said, is now serving a burglary sentence in the Nebraska state prison at Lincoln.

Trap Two in Courtroom.

Shorter, who lives at 4405 Armitage avenue, and the others were rounded up Thursday and Friday by Detectives James Lynch and Walter Till through Basile's violation of a gangland axiom—"keep away from your pals while they're in custody of the authorities."

Basile and Mrs. Greenwald visited the Criminal court Thursday as spectators at the trial of two pals, Alex Giese and George Pocheki, charged with robbery. The two were convicted. Another spectator was Jacob Meyer, 4740 North Western avenue, one of their victims. He saw Basile and pointed him out to Detectives Till and Lynch as one of the men who were with Giese and Pocheki when they robbed him.

Names Two Others as Bandits.

The policemen seized Basile and Mrs. Greenwald. He denied the Meyer holdup, but exposed Shorter and Sotola as bandits. They were seized next, along with Mrs. Fastre.

Robbery victims were invited to the station last night. Those who made identifications were Meyer; B. L. Barnes-el, 3229 Indiana avenue, colored; Roy Walters, 1945 Chicago avenue; Felix Bonk, 3601 North Cicero avenue; Harry Ahstron, 3233 Palmer street, and Mrs. Florence Hedlund, 1114 Roscoe street. Barnes-el, Walters, Bonk, Ahlstron, and Mrs. Hedlund identified Shorter.

"I saw some of those crime records," Shorter told detectives, "and I saw how easy the jobs were pulled. Maybe I got my ideas there."

SECOND CRASH IN A FEW HOURS FATAL TO WIFE

Maquoketa, Ia., July 1.—[Special.]—Mrs. Z. G. Wait, 58 years old, wife of an Erie, Ill., shoe merchant, died in a hospital here today from injuries and shock in two automobile accidents. Her husband is in the hospital with severe injuries.

The two were returning yesterday from a vacation trip to Minneapolis when a tire on their car blew out north of Dubuque on highway 52. Their auto rolled into a ditch but they escaped with slight injuries. They bought a new car and seven hours later crashed with a car driven by Fred Durkop of Maquoketa on highway 61, south of here.

Dr. Benes to Leave July 12 to Give Lectures in London

Dr. Eduard Benes, former president of Czecho-Slovakia, said yesterday he plans to leave July 12 for England, where he will give a series of lectures at the University of London. Dr. Benes has been lecturing at the University of Chicago as a visiting professor. It is expected he will return to the university in the fall and become a member of the teaching staff.

BANDIT ROBS RESTAURANT.

The restaurant at 1169 North State street was robbed of $175 yesterday by a bandit who threatened the cashier, Miss Helen Harmon.

SPEED TRAP STORIES UPSET NEGRO JUSTICE'S HOT DOG STAND COURT

Magistrate Tenola E. Graves, colored, promised yesterday to abandon his highway court behind a hot dog stand at the intersection of U. S. highways 12 and 212 outside Michigan City, Ind. Motorists had complained to the Chicago Motor club that an alleged speed trap was operated on the site.

Yesterday, the Michigan City chamber of commerce entered their complaint, also, against operation of the lunch stand courtroom. President E. R. Westphal was asked by local business men to take action. He thereupon conferred with A. C. Conde, chamber of commerce secretary, and the latter elicited from Graves the promise to discontinue the use of the impromptu courtroom.

He added, however, that if the Indiana state police ask him to hold court on their arrests, he will do so. Chamber of commerce officials said they had no objections inasmuch as state police receive no fee for each arrest as did Constable James Muckway when he brought alleged trafic violators before Magistrate Graves.

WRITER LOSES HER SUIT AGAINST WGN OVER SERIAL

Judge Donald S. McKinlay, of the Superior court yesterday denied the claim of Miss Irna Phillips, radio script writer, that she is the independent owner of "Painted Dreams," one of radio's first serial dramas. He held that this program is the property of W. G. N., Inc., and The Tribune company.

Judge McKinlay ruled in sustaining the report of Master in Chancery Louis J. Behan. Miss Phillips, who was employed in the radio station from 1930 until April, 1932, sued for an injunction and accounting, alleging that she was the independent owner and creator of the drama and owned it by copyright.

Master Behan found that Miss Phillips began work on the "Painted Dreams" script in September, 1930, following a general outline of the studio manager. She continued to do script writing and acting on the serial, as an employé of W-G-N, his report stated, but never at any time could she claim it for her own as independent author, producer, or owner. The defendants were represented by the law firm of Kirkland, Fleming, Green, Martin & Ellis.

THOUSANDS QUIT CITY IN JULY 4 HOLIDAY EXODUS

Thousands of Chicagoans trooped out of the city yesterday for a four day celebration of the Fourth of July holiday.

Air lines reported the heaviest reservations in recent years, with many extra flights scheduled for eastern points. Many railroads added extra cars, and the Chicago Motor club reported the distribution of more maps to motorists than ever before in its history.

For those remaining in Chicago, beaches, parks, zoos and museums will be open. The fourteen beaches and forty-four pools operated by the Chicago Park district were opened for the season yesterday, as were the three forest preserve swimming pools. The twenty-three beaches and three pools operated by the city bureau of recreation were opened last week.

J. R. Lloyd, weather forecaster, predicted that today will be generally fair, with local showers tomorrow. The general forecast for the Great Lakes region is for showers Tuesday and Wednesday.

SPORT HERRMANN AND FRIEND HURT AS AUTOS CRASH

Yachtsman's Face Cut in Wisconsin Accident.

Urbine J. [Sport] Herrmann, 66 years old, well known yachtsman, sportsman, theater magnate, and capitalist, and Walter C. Wagner, 49, chief engineer of the Chicago Public library, were injured yesterday in an automobile accident four miles from Sturgeon Bay, Wis.

The two men left Chicago Friday night, planning to take a lake trip aboard Mr. Herrmann's yacht, the Swastika, which he keeps at Sturgeon Bay. They were traveling by taxi from Green Bay, when another motorist missed a turn in the road and struck the cab.

Yachtsman's Face Cut.

Mr. Herrmann's face was badly injured. Mr. Wagner, who lives at 5048 North Keeler avenue, was less seriously hurt. They were taken to the Egeland hospital in Sturgeon Bay. Mr. Herrmann, who lives at the Medinah club, is a member and former president of the library board.

Two Chicagoans were killed yesterday in a collision in Ohio with a motor truck also driven by a Chicagoan. The dead were Daniel Cahill and Edward McCauley. The truck driver is Glen Ferguson. Only Cahill's address, 6941 South Elizabeth street, was learned. The accident occurred near Edinburg, O., twenty-five miles east of Akron.

Hit by Auto; Dies in Six Hours.

John McMahan, 23 years old, 7150 Normal boulevard, died yesterday in the Jackson Park hospital, six hours after he was struck by an automobile at South Chicago and Keefe avenues. The driver was Charles Tolson, 46, colored, 6050 South Michigan avenue.

Evelyn Klass, 6 years old, 3702 Polk street, was fatally injured yesterday when she was struck by an automobile while roller skating in front of her home. She died last night in the Garfield Park hospital. Jacob Gershberg, 62, of 502 South Kedzie avenue, driver of the car, was not held. The girl's father, Samuel, is an insurance man with an office at 1 South La Salle street.

Up to 2 p. m. yesterday 402 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these 312 were killed in Chicago where 10,244 were injured in the same period.

Three Auto Bandits Rob Laundry Owner of $418

He was en route to a neighborhood bank. He is a partner in the Independent Linen Supply and Laundry company, 4308 Armitage avenue.

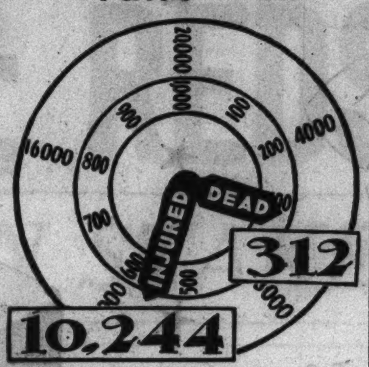
Chicago's 1939 Trafic Toll



More than 98% of the city's automobile fatalities are of a nature physically impossible on an elevated highway.

ONLY 3,286 TAVERN LICENSES ISSUED; DEADLINE PASSES

Although Friday was the deadline for making tavern license applications, only 3,286 had been issued or applied for last night. City Collector Louis Rixmann said 9,330 were issued in the first six months of the year.

The licenses for the second half of the year permit the taverns to remain open one hour later than the old ones—until 2 a. m. weekdays and 3 a. m. Sundays. The new ones cost $400, which is $100 more than the old ones. It was indicated that tavern owners would be given a short period of grace to get their licenses.

Receipts of the collector's office for the first half of 1939 totaled $4,944,017, compared with $4,939,049 in the same period of 1938.

DRUNK-O-METER TESTS LEGALIZED BY INDIANA LAW

Indiana's new trafic code which went into effect yesterday embraces two additions to the statutes of vital importance to motorists. One legalizes the use of the drunk-o-meter and the other adds a new offense—reckless homicide.

Although courts generally have held that drunk-o-meter tests are admissable in evidence, Indiana thus becomes the first state to legalize its use. The alcoholic content of the blood as determined by the drunk-o-meter hereafter will determine whether or not a driver is drunk.

The charge of involuntary manslaughter governs the killing of a person during the commission of an unlawful act, the penalty for which is one to ten years. Reckless homicide was written into the statutes to provide for prosecution of drivers who kill while violating no law other than trafic codes.

The new law provides for a maximum penalty of from one to five years in the penitentiary and a fine of $1,000 or both or a penal farm sentence of from sixty days to six months and a fine of $100 or both.

$20,000 BONDS SET FOR EACH OF FOUR ROBBER SUSPECTS

Four young men who were seized as alleged robbers by Glencoe police early Thursday were held in bonds of $20,000 each yesterday by Justice of the Peace Harry Hoyt in Waukegan.

The four are Don Thomas, 17 years old, and Frank Franchi, 22, both of Glenview; Albert Zeivey, 18, of 30 Locust road, Wilmette, and William Goodwin, 18, of 1830 Larabee street, Chicago.

They are charged with robbing Wilson Gee Jr., owner of a roadhouse on U. S. Highway 41, six miles northwest of Waukegan. The four were turned over to Lake county authorities yesterday by Glencoe police.

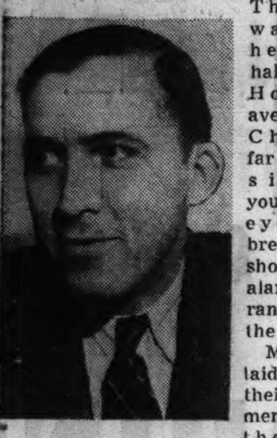
POLICEMAN WINS HERO AWARD FOR 3 FIRE RESCUES

Keeps Head, Risks Life in Emergency.

BY WILLIAM STRAND.

"Fire! Around the corner!"

The cry interrupted a gay wedding party early in the morning of May 7. The party was being held in a hall at 13259 Houston avenue, on Chicago's far south side. A youth, wide eyed and breathless, shouted the alarm as he ran in from the street.



William Sass.

Musicians laid aside their instruments and the guests poured into the street. Among them was Policeman William Sass of the East Side station, 36 years old, married, and the father of two children. He had gone to the party in uniform after work.

Leads Throng to Blaze.

He led the way as the throng from the party hurried to the burning building, about half a block away. It was a two story frame structure at 3110 East 133d street. The lower floor was an unused store with the windows boarded up.

The second story was a flat, occupied by Mrs. Julia Drossel, 50 years old; her son Edwin, 10, and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Mroczek, ages 80 and 77.

When Policeman Sass arrived he found there were no fire alarm boxes in the vicinity. Flames had burned the only telephone wire. A passerby had set out afoot to the nearest fire station five blocks away.

Finds Stairway in Flames.

Sass was told attempts to rouse those in the flat had been unavailing. The rear stairway, the only way up to the flat, was wrapped in flames. The policeman helped onlookers to lean a ladder against the front wall of the building. He clambered to the second floor windows. With him was a spectator, Frank Culich, 27, of 13236 Burley avenue, who gave him heroic aid in the next few minutes.

Inside the flat Sass found Edwin on the floor, his clothing and hair aflame. He wrapped his uniform about the hysterical child and carried him to the window. Edwin, sobbing wildly, refused to jump. Sass feared he might be hurt if pushed off the window ledge. He ran down the ladder, on the chance the sight of policemen below would encourage the child. It did; Edwin leaped to safety.

Then back up the ladder and into the flat went the intrepid policeman. He soon found the aged Mrs. Mroczek. He carried her out to the ledge and lowered her to the crowd. A third time Sass plunged into the smoke and flames. He stumbled over Mrs. Drossel, who was lying on the living room floor. She weighed 290 pounds, and Sass and Culich dragged her with difficulty to the window. Firemen, just arriving, helped drop her into a life net below.

Grandfather Overlooked.

In the excitement of the blaze no one realized that the aged Andrew Mroczek had been asleep in a back bedroom. His charred body was found several hours after the fire was extinguished. Mrs. Drossel died of her burns the next day. Only Mrs. Mroczek and the grandson survived.

Policeman Sass has been a member of the police department for ten years. His friends and neighbors have praised his heroism in letters to THE TRIBUNE.

It is because Policeman Sass was able to rise and meet the emergency which confronted him and to acquit himself bravely in the face of great odds that THE TRIBUNE awarded him its Hero award for May.

Each month THE TRIBUNE awards $100 to the city or park district policeman or the fireman who in the course of his work performs the deed of the most extraordinary courage.

VATICAN FIGHTS SMUGGLING OF WHISKY TO ROME

VATICAN CITY, July 1.—(AP)—Vatican authorities today restricted the sale of tobacco and liquors in Vatican City to the 1,025 residents of the city and also increased prices in a further attempt to prevent smuggling to Italian territory.

A special border guard of Vatican detectives was created recently to prevent visitors to Vatican City—an area of 108.7 acres in the heart of Rome—from smuggling tobacco and liquors through the gates into Italian territory, where prices are much higher.

The new regulations deprive hundreds of Vatican officials and employés who live in Rome of daily supplies of smoking materials which they have been accustomed to carry out for personal use. The price of American cigarets was raised from 18 to 26 cents a package and whisky from 68 cents to $1.26 a bottle. In Rome American cigarets cost 42 cents and whisky $4.73.

Britain Guards Coronation Chair with Electric Eye

LONDON, July 1.—[U. P.]—Authorities of Westminster Abbey today installed a photoelectric type of burglar alarm in the chapel of Edward the Confessor to protect the famous coronation chair containing the stone of Scone, on which every British monarch has been crowned since Edward I. Any one approaching the chair after the abbey is closed breaks a ray of light which rings a powerful bell in the north doorway.

REPORTS PRESIDENT COULD BE ELECTED LEGALLY BY FRAUD

St. Louis, July 1.—(AP)—A national conspiracy for the fraudulent election of the president of the United States could be carried out without violating any federal law, Arthur J. Freund of St. Louis said today. He is chairman of the American Bar association's committee on federal election laws.

Freund said a plot to steal the presidency was possible because the only federal statute on the subject of election frauds does not cover voting for presidential electors.

Freund will submit his report, compiled as an individual, to the bar association's convention in San Francisco July 10-12.

GEN. MOTORS ASKING NLRB TO PICK BARGAINER

Detroit, July 1.—(AP)—General Motors corporation announced today it would ask the National Labor Relations board to determine which of two rival unions of automobile workers should represent its employes in collective bargaining.

The C. I. O. United Automobile Workers union has threatened to call a strike by skilled workers if a supplementary agreement covering these workers is not signed. The C. I. O.'s U. A. W. claims the right to negotiate with the corporation but this had been disputed by a branch of the union affiliated with the American Federation of Labor and led by Homer Martin.

The corporation stated it is willing to negotiate grievances but will not take sides with one faction to the exclusion of the other by negotiating changes in the existing contract.

PARIS UNVEILS BALZAC STATUE 41 YEARS LATE

[Copyright: 1939: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, July 1.—A statue of Honoré de Balzac by Auguste Rodin, which caused much discussion and argument when it was rejected by Paris officials forty-one years ago, was unveiled today in the heart of Montparnasse. Government officials and descendants of Emile Zola, who had ordered the statue, took part in the ceremonies.

The thirteen foot statue, which stands on a granite pedestal, was accepted from a committee of 300 French artists and writers.

When first exhibited in 1898 the statue caused a storm of opposition from persons who found it unconventional.

Houston, Tex., July 1.—(AP)—William F. Main, 80 years old, wealthy Cedar Rapids, Ia., manufacturer, and four others persons were found guilty today on all counts of a mail fraud indictment growing out of the sale of coin operated vending machines. Others found guilty were Miss Jane E. Slavata, Main's secretary; E. L. Weidner, J. H. Arnold, and Frank E. Machen, executives of companies Main heads. The government charged that salesmen had sold machines, guaranteeing a 120 per cent profit in eighteen months.

He was cut on the right foot when he waded into shallow water of a quarry at 31st street and Kenton avenue to get some cattails to use as punk for lighting firecrackers.

327 CENTERS TO NAME COLLEGE ALL-STAR TEAM

Voting Will Start on Saturday.

BY ARCH WARD.

The greatest voting contest sport has known will open next Saturday when football fans throughout the nation start balloting for a team of All-America players to meet the New York Giants in Chicago's sixth annual All-Star game on Soldiers' field the night of Aug. 30.

Three hundred and twenty-six newspapers and radio stations from Boston to San Francisco and from New Orleans to Minneapolis, representing forty-seven states and the District of Columbia, will coöperate with THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE in conducting the poll.

The purpose of the voting is to pick a starting lineup for the collegians. The eleven players who receive the greatest number of votes at their respective positions must start the game, provided they accept the invitation to join the squad and survive the training period in good physical condition.

Poll Continues Two Weeks.

THE TRIBUNE last year had 138 newspaper and radio associates in the All-Star poll. The increase to 326 this summer is an indication of the interest the promotion has developed. The poll which opens Saturday will continue for two weeks.

The player poll will be followed immediately by a similar contest for a staff of coaches to lead the All-Stars. Due to the amazing increase in the number of votes from the central states, a change in the system of electing coaches has been made to guarantee wider distribution of talent. The midwest representation will be limited to two, the Big Ten coach who receives the greatest number of votes, and the coach outside the Big Ten who gets the biggest total. The eastern coach who polls more votes than any other candidate from that section automatically will represent that area. The same policy will be observed in the south and far west.

Squad Assembles Aug. 12.

The coach who is given the largest total vote will be in charge of the staff regardless of the section from which he comes. The next four qualifiers will serve as his assistants.

The squad will assemble at Northwestern university Aug. 12. The players will be quartered at the Hinman house on the campus and will work out in Dyche stadium.

Ticket sale for the year's greatest sports spectacle opens today. Orders will be accepted by mail only. Applications should be directed to the All-Star Football Ticket Manager, Tribune Tower, Chicago.

Profits to Three Charities.

Seats between the ten yard lines have been increased in price from $3.30 to $4.40. All other locations will remain the same as in other years, $3.30, $2.20 and $1.10. All profits, as usual, will be divided equally among the United Charities, Catholic Charities and Jewish Charities of Chicago.

There are two reasons for placing a premium on the choice seats. First, to increase the revenue that will accrue to charity and secondly, to guarantee location to fans who demand seats within certain limits and are willing to pay the price. The fans who want to spend $2.20 or $1.10 will find those seats in the same sections as in other years.

Tim Moynihan to Take Assistant's Post at Denver

Denver, Colo., July 1.—(AP)—Tim Moynihan, former Notre Dame athlete, accepted appointment today as assistant football coach at Denver university. In 1932 and 1933 he coached the line and played center for the Chicago Cardinals of the National Professional league. Recently he has been assistant coach at George Washington university, while working on a master's degree.

20,000 Watch Weekend Card at Arlington

BY HOWARD BARRY.

C. H. Cleary's Fiying Lill and two Woolford farm horses, Technician and Sherron Ann, galloped away with the honors on yesterday's program at Arlington Park. Perfect racing weather, a fast track, and a series of successful efforts by well backed choices made it a brilliant day for the heavy betting crowd of 20,000.

Flying Lill earned her laurels in the $6,220 Matron stakes, beating a field of eight rivals which included some of the fastest mares and older fillies in training. Technician and Sherron Ann swept both divisions of the Joliet purse for the Woolford farm stable. By the margin of a neck, this establishment missed a clean sweep of all three of these events for another of its horses, Unerring, just failed to catch Flying Lill before the finish.

Lady Maryland Third.

These two were favorites in the Matron stakes, each at a little less than 2 to 1, Gustav Ring's Lady Maryland being next in the betting at 7 to 1. She finished in third place.

As Starter Roy Dickerson sent the field away on the mile gallop Garrett Watts' Silverette went to the front with Rude Awakening and Unerring close up. Going down the back stretch these three continued to cut out the pace, Flying Lill coming up from fifth to fourth. As they hit the turn Silverette was a little more than a length in front. Then Johnny Longden began to move with Flying Lill and at the same time Warren Yarberry called on Unerring.

Flying Lill Hangs On.

Half way around the turn Flying Lill found an opening on the rail and Longden drove her into it. Simultaneously Unerring came up on the outside of Silverette. Saving ground, Flying Lill led the way into the stretch, but as soon as they were straightened out Unerring came on with a determined challenge. Then Flying Lill showed her courage. From the eighth pole home she withstood a hard drive and held on to win by a neck, though Unerring was getting to her in the closing strides. Lady Maryland was four lengths farther back.

Flying Lill covered the mile in the good time of 1:36 3-5. In the mutuels she returned $5.80, $3.20, and $2.60.

Technician Beats Easy Mon.

Technician, making his first start since the Kentucky Derby, beat the Calumet farm's Easy Mon by a neck in the first division of the Joliet purse, which was run as the fourth race on the program. The Walmac farm's Olney was third.

Easy Mon was established as the 6 to 5 favorite. Technician was held at 3 to 1 because many in the crowd doubted that his first start after a layoff would find him sharp enough to outrun so fit a horse as the Calumet color bearer. Trainer Ben Jones had him all ready, however, for one of those typical Woolford farm victories in this 6 furlong event.

While Lightspur and Olney were running head and head during the dash down the back stretch, Easy Mon was moving along in fourth place and Technician in fifth.

Easy Mon Moves Up.

Easy Mon moved up on the turn and took the lead in the stretch. At the eighth pole he was in front of Lightspur by the margin of a head. Then Technician, finding plenty of racing room on the outside, came up powerfully to wear down the Calumet color bearer and get to the front several yards from the finish.

Technician ran the six furlongs in the sharp time of 1:11. He returned his backers $8.60, $3.60, and $3.00.

Sherron Ann had no trouble at all in winning her half of the Joliet purse, which was run as the sixth race. Yarberry sent her out fast from the gate and rushed her into a commanding lead during the gallop down the back stretch. The Milky Way farm's Up the Creek was in second position and Detector third.

In the stretch Sherron Ann responded to mild urging to hold her margin of three lengths all the way. Up the Creek was five lengths ahead of Sun Plume, which took third.

Sherron Ann was the even money favorite, returning $4.00, $3.00, and $2.20. Her time for the six furlongs was 1:11 3-5.

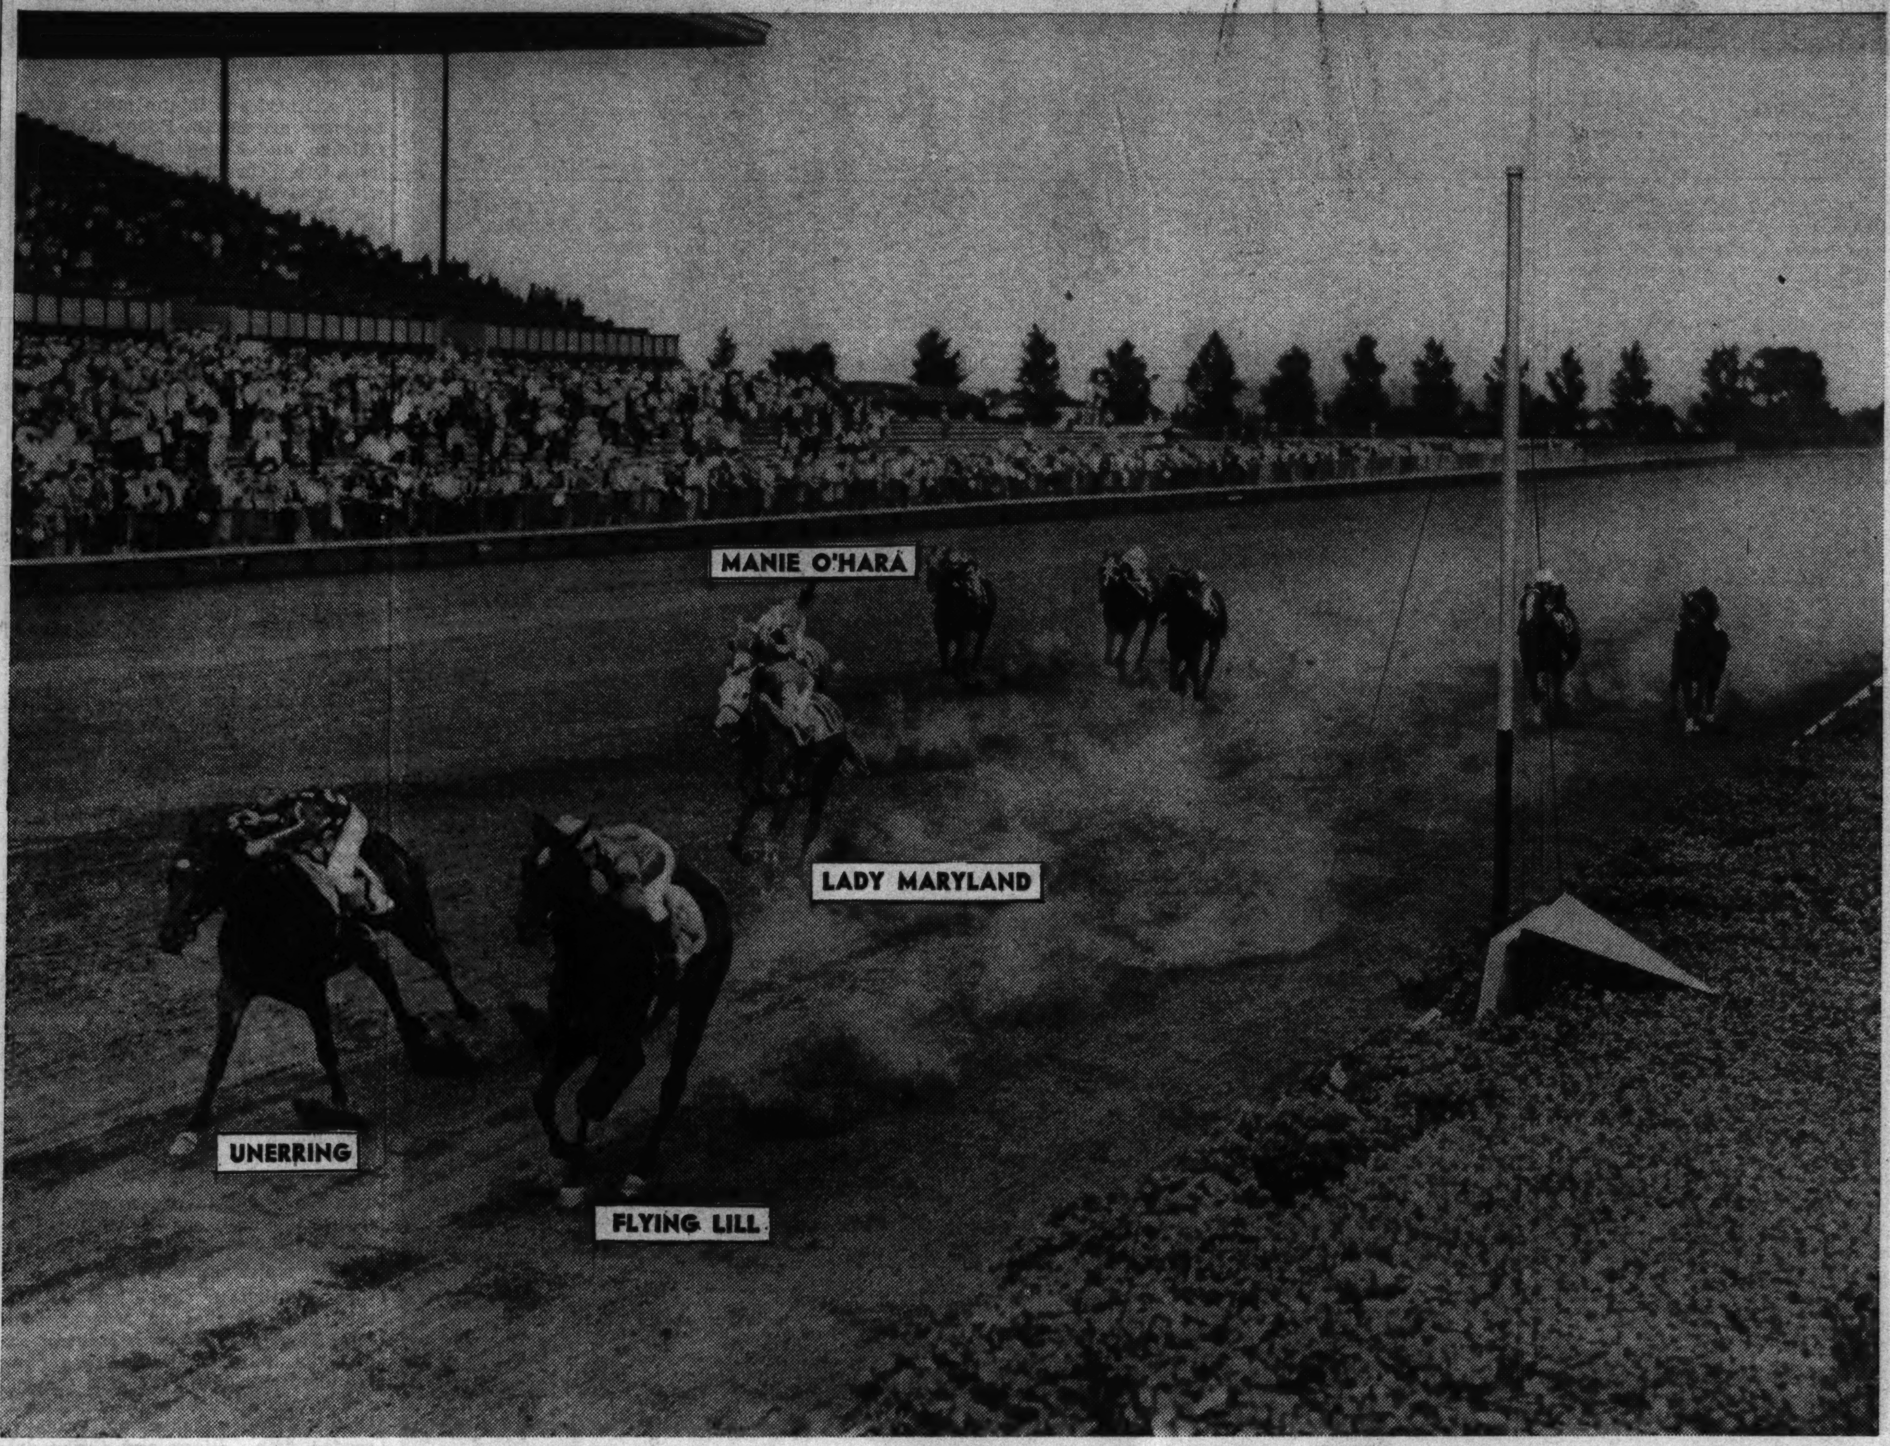
FLYING LILL BY A NECK—IT'S THE MATRON



Flying Lill beats Unerring by a neck in the $6,220 Matron stakes at Arlington yesterday. Lady Maryland was third. Flying Lill came through on the inside at the head of the stretch to bring her owner, C. H. Cleary, or Chicago, the big share of the purse. It was a mile race and a thriller. Manie O'Hara was fourth. Connie Mack, Seriously Ill, Starts Home; Quits All-Stars

Boston, Mass., July 1.—(AP)—Described by his physician as being "very seriously ill," Connie Mack, 76 year old manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, was taken aboard a train tonight bound for his home in Philadelphia. Mack, who was stricken last Thursday by what physicians described as an acute attack of indigestion, was accompanied by his wife and his daughter Mary.

He was carried in a stretcher down the service elevator of the hotel, where he has been confined for three days, transported in an ambulance to South station, and placed aboard a train which reaches Philadelphia tomorrow morning.

The whole maneuver was carried out in secrecy, and railroad police kept away the curious.

May Be Heart Attack.

Dr. Eddie O'Brien, club physician of the Boston Red Sox, who has been treating the veteran baseball leader, described him as being "seriously ill."

"I am unable to discuss the case further," he said, "except to say that he went back to Philadelphia at his own request."

Dr. O'Brien declined to divulge the nature of the manager's illness, but it was recalled that Mack two years ago was stricken by what was reported to be a heart attack and recovered only after a long illness.

Mrs. Mack, who came here last night from Germantown, Pa., to occupy a room next to her husband's, said Mack had spent the day in bed resting and conserving his strength for the homeward trip.

Son Handles Team.

All day, telephone queries concerning the manager's condition were refused, but Mrs. Mack said tonight her husband had shown improvement.

"We'll take a train for Philadelphia as soon as Mr. Mack feels like traveling," she said.

Earlier, the manager, who will be 77 years old next December, had wired to President Will Harridge of the American league, his resignation as manager of his circuit's team in the All-Star game at Yankee stadium July 11.

During Mack's illness, the Athletics have been handled by his son, Earl.

The illness and injury jinx hit the American league all-star team again yesterday as Connie Mack—suffering from a stomach ailment—resigned as manager of the squad which will meet the National league all-stars July 11 at New York.

Joe McCarthy, manager of the New York Yankees, will take over in place of the 76 year old pilot of the Philadelphia Athletics. Mack, a member of baseball's hall of fame, was honored this year—the sport's centennial—by being named pilot of the all-league team even though the post usually has gone to the manager of the circuit champion of the preceding year.

Mack asked President William Harridge today that he be relieved of the job because of the strain it might entail. He has been confined to his Boston hotel since Thursday. McCarthy filled in for Mickey Cochrane in 1936 and also managed the American leaguers in 1937 and 1938.

Casualty List is Long.

Harridge also announced that Lou Gehrig, former Yank star now out of active competition because of illness, will be on the squad—as captain. Gehrig played and starred in all six previous interleague games, as did Detroit's Charley Gehringer, who will not play because of a leg injury. In addition, Jimmy Foxx, the league's leading hitter, is ill and may not be in top shape for the contest and George Case, Washington outfielder, is nursing an injured knee and ankle.

Ted Lyons, White Sox star pitcher for several baseball generations, was named on the squad for the first time.

JACK DEMPSEY IS REPORTED ON WAY TO RECOVERY

New York, July 1.—(AP)—Encouraged by optimistic hospital bulletins and two messages from the patient, Jack Dempsey's many friends tonight had cause to believe the former heavyweight champion will recover from an emergency appendectomy.

At 8:30 p. m. [Chicago daylight time] Ned Brown, his secretary, reported that Dempsey's temperature had declined from 100.8 to 100 degrees and that his pulse and respiration were unchanged from an afternoon report made by Dr. Robert Emery Brennan, his surgeon, which gave his pulse as 70 and respiration, 22.

The former champion still complained that he "felt hungry."

Cheered by Good Wishes.

"I'm sorry to cause folks so much worry about my bellyache, but I am greatly cheered and pleased by all the good wishes," Dempsey said in his second personal message of the day. "Please thank everybody for me. Excuse the shortness of this message, because I don't feel so hot."

A previous message from Dempsey through Brown said: "Tell 'em all hello. How could a guy lose with so many seconds in his corner? It's just a cakewalk."

Although the crisis in his case was not expected until tonight or tomorrow, the 44 year old former champion appeared to be making rapid strides all day. Early this morning he was clamoring for food and complaining that the drinking water was too warm. At 9 a. m. the hospital said he had spent a "very good night." Later, he telephoned his home and talked to his two little daughters, Joan Hannah and Barbara Judith, and then called his restaurant.

Shave Perks Him Up.

Before Dr. Brennan's afternoon examination, which showed Dempsey's temperature, pulse and respiration had dropped, he had a shave. That appeared to perk him up considerably, as did a gift of flowers from the little bootblacks who ply their trade around Madison Square Garden, just across the street from the hospital and Dempsey's restaurant.

Meanwhile messages poured into Polyclinic hospital. A dozen persons offered their blood if he should need a transfusion. Herbert Bayard Swope, chairman of the New York racing commission; Adolph Spreckels, California sugar magnate, and Jack Kearns, Dempsey's manager when he won the title in 1919, all wired.

Sox Toss Opener Away, 6 to 5; Then Beat Tigers, 4 to 3, in 9th

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Detroit, Mich., July 1.—Joe Kuhel, who seems to be a sort of harmless fellow, acquired a homer as well as four other hits, pulled a fielding boner, and was punched lightly on the jaw today by Hank Greenberg. Additional excitement was tossed into Kuhel's life by a couple of hurtling pop bottles. These were just a few of the feature acts of a double-header, the first half of which the Tigers undeservedly captured, 6 to 5, and the second portion of which the White Sox appropriated, 4 to 3, despite the booing of 26,879 spectators.

Kuhel's blunder, politely known as an error of omission, was a heartbreaker for Doctor Clint Brown, the rescue specialist, who got into the first game because of difficulties encountered in the sixth by Jack Knott. The good doctor, who was rendering his services for the twenty-fifth time this season, cleaned up that situation and a moment later his pals jumped into the lead by slapping Al Benton for three runs.

Then Things Begin to Happen.

Brown protected a one run lead by giving up only one hit in the seventh and eighth and approached closer to victory when he retired Beau Bell, a pinch batter, to open the ninth. Roy Cullenbine, batting for Luther Thomas who had relieved Benton, beat out a drive which Brown knocked down. Barney McCosky forced Cullenbine and then came the big mistake.

Pete Fox hit a fairly high bounder midway between first base and the mound. Brown went over to get it, not being able to see that Kuhel had similar intentions. The ball descended into Brownie's hands not more than fifteen feet from the bag and he turned to throw to first base for what should have been the final putout of a Sox victory. The base was unguarded so Brownie held the ball. Kuhel looked at Jack Hayes, apparently thinking he should have covered the bag and Brown glowered at Kuhel, thinking the latter should have remained at his station. And in another moment Earl Averill tripled to left center, two runs scored and the game was over.

But No One Was Hurt.

Trouble didn't pop into the second struggle until the sixth inning at which point Eddie [Lefty] Smith was having a swell 2 to 2 duel with Paul Trout. Kuhel opened the sixth with a single and Trout tried to nip Kuhel off first base, but Joe slid back safely into the bag.

Greenberg, after tagging him, straightened up but suddenly bent over and planted his fist lightly on the right cheek of Kuhel, who was still stretched out on the ground. Not appreciating that Greenberg was angry, Kuhel didn't arise quickly and by the time he regained his feet the spot was alive with peace loving athletes and Umpire Hubbard had pushed Greenberg toward the entrance to the clubhouse.

After Greenberg had been banished, excusing his act by saying that Kuhel had tried to spike him, the show was resumed, but bottles began to fly from the grandstand. The first landed close to Kuhel on first base. Another broke on the concrete roof of the Sox dugout and Luke Appling spotted the tosser, who police ejected. Kuhel finally scored to put the Sox in the lead temporarily and another bottle floated toward him. Altogether five missiles were counted and a few more suspicious looking characters were collared by police. After this Kuhel had to be content with nothing more serious than the raspberry assault.

Bunts Win for Sox.

Kuhel's run which put the Sox in front in the sixth was matched by the Tigers in the eighth when Smith surrendered two doubles. But the Sox came back in the ninth with a barrage of bunts against Floyd Giebell. The latter walked Appling and then failed to handle McNair's bunt in time to keep it from becoming a base hit. Tresh bunted and Giebell's throw to third was too late to force Appling.

Rosenthal batted for Smith, but

Passeau, J. Russell Are Routed.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Bucky Walters, the National league's winningest pitcher, yesterday whipped the Cubs with arm and bat, Cincinnati taking the second game of the series, 8 to 6, with Walters driving in the victory margin in the tenth. He previously had scored a tying run in the fifth and another tying run in the sixth. It was Bucky's eleventh triumph of the season.

The Cubs made only seven hits, but they were timely. The 1938 champs made three runs in the fourth inning for a 3 to 2 lead and Walters tied it at 3 all when he scored in the fifth. Augie Galan's double and a homer by Carl Reynolds gave the Cubs a 5 to 3 lead in the sixth. The Cubs' defense cracked wide open in the seventh and the Reds scored three runs on their ninth, tenth, eleventh, and twelfth hits and a walk off Claude Passeau.

Rookie's Error Costly.

Passeau swooned after a boyish blunder by Rookie G. Russell on what should have been the third out with no runs home. Jack Russell went in with the bases full and struck out Wally Berger.

The Cubs then tied the score at 6 to 6 on Herman's walk, Galan's sacrifice, and a single by Hartnett in the eighth.

Russell pitched hitless ball in the eighth and ninth innings, but bogged down with one out in the tenth, after Berger, who had fanned three previous times at bat, bounced a single past Dick Bartell. Myers followed with a single to left, putting Berger on third, and took second while the relay was being messed up.

Walters then delivered his third hit, a single to center which scored Bordagaray, who had gone to third to run for Berger and Myers. The Cubs were wandering around the infield quite dazed, but aside from the laughs afforded by the failure of a cut-off play and excitement of a double by Lonnie Frey later in the inning, the game to all purposes was over when Walters smacked that tenth inning single.

Reds Make Sixteen Hits.

The fact that the Cubs were more or less victims of their own jittery defense should not take anything from Walters' triumph, which was consistent with a great record. Bucky has pitched thirteen complete games this year and has defeated every team in the league at least once. Never before yesterday did a team make more than five runs off him.

The sixteen hits the Reds made off two Cub pitchers constituted one of the heaviest shellings the champs have suffered this year. The Reds have made twenty-four hits in the two games of the series to date to eleven for the Cubs. So the Cubs probably should consider themselves lucky they won one game and stayed in the other till extra innings, even if their jitters yesterday did throw them six games back of the Reds.

The Reds scored twice, once in the first inning and once in the third, before the Cubs made their first hit. After Werber and Frey had sent flies to Reynolds at the start of the game, Goodman dropped a single in short left center. Herman was planted under McCormick's pop fly when he lost the ball in the sun, letting it plunk for a single. Running with two out, of course, Goodman had reached third by the time the plunk resounded. Lombardi doubled to

D'ANTONI BEATS BERL IN COLLEGE FINAL, TEN UP

Stanford Star No Match for Tulane Senior.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Des Moines, Ia., July 1.—Vincent D'Antoni, 21 year old Tulane university graduate, won the 42d national intercollegiate golf championship today by defeating Warren Berl, lenky Stanford sophomore, 10 and 8, in the 36 hole final match at the Wakonda Country club.

The loquacious Vincent's victory was one of the most decisive ever registered in a national match play tournament. He won fourteen of the twenty-eight holes played, halving ten of the others and permitting Berl to win only four—the third, tenth, twentieth, and twenty-third. For those twenty-eight holes, D'Antoni was three over par, correcting four sixes on his card with six birdies which included three deuces.

Berl's Game Falls Apart.

The sour round which lurks in every match play tournament for a consistent player today struck Berl, who won't be 19 until next August. Until today, Warren had been the steadiest swinger in the tournament, averaging 73½ strokes a round through the semi-finals. A noticeable leaning toward the rough yesterday became a definite weakness in today's collapse. The strain of the first five days on Berl was obvious today.

The galleries, however, agreed with Eddie Twiggs, his coach, that Berl is one of the most promising amateurs of the day. He proved that promise by leading Stanford to the team championship and by reaching the individual finals in his first big time appearance.

D'Antoni is probably the most colorful champion the intercollegiate tournament has produced. He has competed in the tournament all of the three years allotted to him, reaching the semi-finals in 1937, failing to qualify last year, and scoring today's victory.

He's Cool Under Fire.

A quick thinker and fast talker, young D'Antoni carries his native alertness onto a golf course. Being five down means nothing more to him than being as many up. He was five down to Billy Hall in their semi-final match yesterday within the first seven holes, and four down on four other occasions, but won, 1 up, with a finishing burst of three straight birdies and a par.

D'Antoni qualified with 72—80—152, pulling up in the second eighteen when he realized he could not win the medal. In his other matches, he defeated Rufus King of Southern Methodist, 2 and 1; Charles Finger of Stanford, 1 up; Harold Skow of Iowa, 1 up, and Art Floberg of Beloit, 4 and 3.

D'Antoni wins, 10 and 8.

D'Antoni's drive off the 1st tee dropped far short but in spite of that he reached the green, 400 yards away with his second. Berl dropped his second off of the lower left hand corner of the carpet, but got down in three from there for a half, while D'Antoni was missing a second putt of a yard. Vince won the 120 yard 2nd with a nine foot putt for a deuce, Berl missing a 20 footer for a half. It was even after Warren had gotten his four on the 3d, where D'Antoni drove the rough. The Tulane golfer went one up again on the 417 yard 4th, where Berl's first two shots were in the rough. D'Antoni missed a four footer for a win at the 490 yard 5th, where Berl drove the rough and was still short with his recovery.

D'Antoni Gains Ground.

Both were short at the 6th, but D'Antoni went two up there, chipping up nicely to less than a yard. They halved the 7th, and then Vince shot birdies on the 8th and 9th, a neat chip at the 500 yard 8th and an 18 foot putt on the 186 yard 9th doing the trick. D'Antoni lost the 10th to a trapped second. Berl earned halves at the 11th and 12th, despite a drive to the rough at the former and an overshot green on the 12th. D'Antoni was short of the 529 yard 13th, while Berl was on with two fine shots, but D'Antoni matched the Californian's birdie by chipping up to ten feet and holing the putt for a half.

Berl was four down after the short 14th, where his tee shot caught the corner of the green and slipped off. They halved the 15th in par fives. The deep rough cost Berl the 16th, and he was six down leaving the 17th green, after D'Antoni had fired his third deuce of the morning with an eight foot putt. Berl drove the rough at the 18th, but after going to the back edge of the green with his recovery, chipped up for one putt and a half.

Berl Retrieves Hole.

Berl retrieved a hole, the third of the day he had won, at the 20th by dropping a 20 foot putt for a deuce. He immediately returned it by bunkering his second on the next hole. Both he and D'Antoni found the rough at the 417 yard 22nd, settling for a half in fives. Vince lost the 23rd to the rough, but was conceded a birdie on the 24th, where Berl drove the rough and was over the green with his third.

D'Antoni then won the next four holes. He was conceded a par win at the 24th, where Berl was in the rough, short and finally ever the green. He was in the rough again off the 25th tee, and then missed the green. The rough cost him the 26th, and a bunker the 27th. D'Antoni was thus nine up for three quarters of the scheduled route, and made it ten up with par at the 28th, where Berl took three to reach the green.

SMITH, HARRISON MEET NELSON AND GULDAHL TODAY

A foursome of the ablest American professionals in the game will bring back exhibition golf to Chicago at 2 o'clock this afternoon, when Byron Nelson of Reading, Pa., and Ralph Guldahl of Madison, N. J., tee off in an eighteen hole battle against Horton Smith and Ernest [Dutch] Harrison of the home club at the Oak Park Country club.

On June 12 Nelson came out of a double playoff for the national open championship with the title, defeating Craig Wood. In that last eighteen Byron holed one of the greatest shots in open history, a 215 yard No. 1 iron shot to the par four fourth of the Philadelphia Country club.

Harrison, Smith Know Course.

Guldahl, his partner of today, was the defending champion in that event, finishing only four strokes behind Nelson, Wood and Denny Shute in his effort to win the open for the third consecutive year.

The Nelson-Guldahl twosome is going to have a chore in defeating Smith and Harrison, for the latter pair know Oak Park right well. Horton is one of the big swingers in the game.

Predicts Nelson Victory.

It is odd that five years ago he predicted that Nelson would one day win the open, and that Harrison, currently one of the year's leading money winners, is also a Smith protégé.

Admission to the match will be $1.10. The club can be reached by taking North avenue to Thatcher road, and Thatcher road north to the club. South siders may take Harlem avenue to North avenue.

HELEN BERNHARD TAKES MIDDLE STATES NET TITLE

Philadelphia, Pa., July 1.—(AP)—Helen Bernhard, 17 year old New York City girl, defeated Edna Smith, Cleveland, 3-6, 8-6, 7-5, today to win the middle states women's tennis championship on the grass courts at the Philadelphia Cricket club.

Osprey II. and Quienna Take Major Honors in Yacht Race

Holland, Mich., July 1.—[Special.]—Osprey II., Dr. Jay Webb Lowell's Columbia Yacht club cutter, and Quienna, Henry and Richard Parkin's Chicago Yacht club sloop, were major winners in the 94 mile race from Chicago that ended at Lake Macatawa here today. Light northwest to north breezes prevailed on the course. The fleet of 47 sailing craft left Belmont harbor in Chicago Friday night.

The George Owen Clinch trophy was won by Osprey, which took the cruising division time prize as well as first place in D class, made up of the smallest yachts in the division. Quienna, a 30 foot eagle class racing sloop, defeated the entire universal [racing] division on time allowance, winning the Col. Robert Morse trophy. The sloop also was first in the small universal class. Both prizes were presented by the Chicago Yacht club, sponsor of the race.

Manitou Finishes First.

Manitou, James Rowland Lowe's 62 foot cruising yawl, was first of the yachts to finish. Scratch boat in the cruising division, Manitou's elapsed time was 13 hours, 19 minutes and 54 seconds.

Tomahawk, Thomas Heffernan's 48 foot yawl, won in A class [for the largest cruising craft], defeating Manitou, Southern Cross and Flight, all longer boats, on corrected time. Both Manitou and Tomahawk were brought by their owner-skippers from Spring Lake, Mich., their home ports, to Chicago to enter the race. Both fly the Chicago Yacht club burgee.

Louis Ainbinder's cutter Baccarat, from the Columbia Yacht club, won in B class. Henry and Nathaniel Rubinkam's 43 foot sloop Rubaiyat, in its first race this season, was runner up. Warrior, owner and sailed by Vice Commodore Victor Milliken of the Chicago Yacht club, was first in the large racing class.

Gloriant Leads Milwaukee Fleet.

Five Milwaukee racing sloops, starting for Holland at the same time as the Chicago fleet, finished early today. Gloriant, Anthony Hermann's double ended O class sloop, representing the Racine [Wis.] Yacht club, was first to finish. It had a margin of more than 16 minutes over the second boat, E. A. Purtell's P class sloop Vagabond, cruising division.

The entire fleet of Chicago, Milwaukee and Michigan shore yachts will compete on Lake Macatawa tomorrow in the anual regatta of the Lake Michigan Yachting association, which is sponsored by the Lake Macatawa Yacht club.

Miss Taubele Wins Second State Net Title in Week

Hackensack, N. The score was 6-4, 2-6, 6-2. Miss Taubele won the New York state crown at Woodmere last Sunday. Miss Taubele and Grace Surber won the double championship when they defeated Miss Hirsh and Mrs. Tokuko Nakano, 6-4, 2-6, 6-1.

HENRY COTTON AT SHORT ODDS TO WIN BRITISH OPEN

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, July 1.—(AP)—Henry Cotton, former champion, is a 5 to 1 favorite to win the British Open golf tournament when it opens over the Royal and Ancient course Monday. With Cotton's smooth play in practice rounds yesterday and today in mind, the golf conscious Scots made him favorite.

While this town filled up with tourists and golf followers, Bobby Locke, young South African star, remained the second choice at 6 to 1. Just about everybody else, including the American contingent of Lawson Little, Johnny Bulla, and George Low Jr. of Jenkinstown, Pa., were classed at 100 to 8. These odds remained fairly stable despite hourly reports of practice scores as the players got in their last preparatory round. There'll be no playing tomorrow and the tournament opens Monday with the first qualifying round.

The best looking golfer in practice has been Erie's Jimmy Bruen, who like Locke is a youngster. He scored a 66 over the new course yesterday. Cotton has had a 69, and 72; Locke at 75 and Little, amateur champion in 1934-'35, a 74. Unless this tournament is played in a gale, Reggie Whitcombe is not expected to repeat his 1938 victory. He won last year in a sandstorm and he almost won the year before at Carnoustie in the wildest weather possible.

A committee of Carrasquel's compatriots has requested Clark Griffith, owner of the Senators, to have the Venezuelan pitch one of the games, and also asked for permission to make a presentation to him.

Griffith has consented to both requests, even going so far as to declare that he would allow Carrasquel to pitch in whichever game the committee should prefer. A delegation of Venezuelans will march to home plate and present Carrasquel with a diploma from the Venezuelan Baseball association.

6 AMERICAN NET STARS SURVIVE IN WIMBLEDON PLAY

Riggs, Cooke Triumph; Miss Marble Wins.

WIMBLEDON, England, July 1.—(AP)—The United States today qualified three men and three women for the final week of the All-England singles tennis tourney. But the unknown of the American contingent, Gene Smith, Berkeley, Cal., schoolmaster, tore the muscles in his right arm and is likely to be handicapped seriously when play continues on Monday.

The Americans in the men's quarter-finals are Smith, Bobby Riggs of Chicago, and Elwood Cooke of Portland, Ore. The United States women who survived to the last sixteenth are the American champion, Alice Marble; veteran Helen Jacobs, and Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabyan. They are seeded No. 1, No. 2, and No. 8, respectively.

Riggs Has Trouble.

Riggs, still scrambling as he had been all week, today scraped past England's Ronald Shayes in four sets, 7-5, 6-8, 6-4, 6-3, while Cooke, who is improving all the time, overwhelmed John S. Oliff, 6-1, 6-1, 6-4. Miss Marble had more than her share of errors in beating Miss B. C. Beazley, 6-4, 6-3, and Miss Jacobs overcame a poor start to beat Miss J. P. Curry, 6-3, 6-2. Smith and Mrs. Fabyan had won their brackets yesterday.

The main topic of conversation here is what's wrong with Riggs, and tonight for the first time he admitted that there was something wrong.

Riggs Is Worried.

"Everybody tells me I look careless out there," said America's top-ranking amateur. "Actually I'm trying harder than ever in my life. The trouble is, my timing's all off and I'm trying to steer the ball over. I've been off ever since I got here. I brought over a whole set of racquets which weren't my weight, and I'm just getting used to a new set I've had made up."

Cooke will meet Henry Wilfred [Bunny] Austin, the No. 1 seed, on Monday, when the entire quarter-final round will be played. Austin didn't look any too good today in winning from D. W. Butler, another Englishman, 8-6, 6-4, 6-4.

Gracyn Wheeler of Santa Monica, Cal., lost a heart-breaking match to Ruth Mary Hardwick, 7-5, 9-7. Three times she was within a point of winning the second set, but on each occasion the English girl beat her with a deep drive down the sidelines.

Smith Faces Puncec.

In addition to Cooke and Austin the men's matches on Monday will send Riggs against Ghaus Mohammed of India, Smith against Ferenc Puncec of Jugo-Slavia, the No. 4 seed, and Franz Kukuljevic of Jugo-Slavia against Henner Henkel of Germany, seeded fifth. Riggs and Cooke are second and sixth, respectively.

The entire fourth round of women's singles will be played. The matches, in the order of their appearance, are:

Miss Jacobs vs. Margot Lumb, Great Britain; Kay Stammers, Britain, vs. Mrs. Sylvania Henrotin, France; Mrs. Rene Mathieu, France, vs. Valery Scott, Britain; Mrs. Fabyan vs. Mrs. Dorothy Round Little; Mrs. E. G. MacPherson-Grant vs. Miss Hardwick; Jean Saunders, Britain, vs. Mrs. Hilda Krahwinkel Sperling, Denmark; Peggy Scriven, Britain, vs. Jadwiga Jedrzejowski, Poland; Miss Marble vs. Mrs. A. Guernsey and Murphy Meet in Tennis Final

Haverford, Pa., July 1.—[Special.]—Frank Guernsey of Rice institute will defend the national intercollegiate tennis crown tomorrow afternoon against Chester Murphy of the University of Chicago.

In the semi-finals today at the Merion Cricket club, Guernsey repeated the victory of last year's final over Morey Lewis of Kenyon college, taking the match in unruffled stride, 6-1, 6-3, 6-3.

Murphy, last in the list of eight seeded players, followed up his triumph of the quarter finals over Robert Harman of California by defeating Robert Kamrath of the University of Texas, the second ranking favorite. Eking out the stubbornly fought first set, in which Kamrath, after trailing at 0-3 and 30-40, needed only to hold his service at 5-4 and again at 6-5 to take it, Murphy came back in the last two sets, winning at 9-7, 2-6, 6-0, 6-1.

Following the meeting between Guernsey and Murphy tomorrow in the singles, the latter will return to the court with his brother, William, for the final of the doubles against Douglas Imhoff and Robert Peacock of the University of California. The Chicago pair defeated Kamrath and Warren Christner of Texas, the second seeded team, 6-4, 6-3, 6-4, while Imhoff and Peacock eliminated their teammates, Harman and Dan Roberts, 6-3, 7-5, 6-4.

A. A. U. ALTERS BASKETBALL FOULING RULE

New York, July 1.—[Special.]—The Amateur Athletic union has made only one change in its basketball rules for the 1939-'40 season, it was announced today by Daniel J. Ferris after a meeting of the A. A. U. committee in charge of the sport. This one change goes a step further than the college code in its effort to eliminate deliberate fouling in the closing minutes of a game.

Whereas, the collegians give the team that is fouled the option of making a free throw or retaining possession of the ball on an out of bounds play, the A. A. U. rules gives one free throw and possession of the ball out of bounds as well.

Chairman Willard Greim of the A. A. U. committee declared that his group was reluctant to make any changes in the rules, but had acted because of unanimity among players, coaches, and officials in replying to a questionnaire.

Griem appointed a subcommittee to study new basketballs put on the market in the last few years. Although they meet specifications for the official ball, some of them have not won the general approval of players. The subcommittee will draw up new specifications and only balls meeting these will be used in A. A. U. games and tournaments.

PATTY BERG AND MISS BARRETT TO MEET FOR TITLE

Minneapolis Stars Gain Golf Final.

Minneapolis, Minn., July 1.—(AP)—Patty Berg of Minneapolis displayed the courage of a real champion today to advance with Beatrice Barrett, also of Minneapolis, into the finals of the thirteenth annual women's Trans-Mississippi golf tournament. They meet tomorrow at thirty-six holes for the title.

Two down and two to go, Miss Berg, the defending champion and also holder of the women's national title, won three straight holes to beat Marion Miley of Lexington, Ky., who held the title in 1935 and 1936, 1 up, in nineteen holes.

Miss Barrett, a close friend of Miss Berg, swept to a 4 and 3 decision over Helen Hofmann Bertagnole, long driving Salt Lake City star.

Miss Miley Takes Lead.

Miss Miley, making a valiant fight all the way, went into a one hole lead on the 420 yard fifteenth when she dropped a 20 foot putt for an eagle 3. She went 2 up on the sixteenth with a par 3 and the match appeared just about over.

On the 545 yard seventeenth, however, Miss Miley's tee shot went into the rough, and she finally took a 6 as Miss Berg, on in 3, two putted for a 5. Miss Miley's third shot on the 490 yard eighteenth was to the left of the green and near a bunker. Miss Berg laid her third shot three feet from the pin and sank it to even the match.

Patty Sinks Putt to Win.

Both had drives of about equal length on the first extra hole and both were on the green with their seconds, Miss Berg about 50 feet from the pin and Miss Miley about 40 feet away. Each had about a four foot putt left after their third shots, Miss Berg dropping hers for victory as Miss Miley missed.

The Barrett-Bertagnole match was close through the first nine holes, which ended even, but the Minneapolis girl took both the tenth and eleventh with pars and went on to victory as Mrs. Bertagnole played wildly on the last few holes.

Shute Barred from P. G. A. Meet by Vote

New York, July 1.—(AP)—George Jacobus, president of the Professional Golfers association, announced today that the majority of the executive committee had voted against his recommendation that Denny Shute, former P. G. A. champion, be permitted to play in the 1939 tournament July 9-15 at the Pomonok Country club, Flushing, N. Y. Shute was barred because he failed to pay his dues on time.

Shute, besides having won the P. G. A. title twice, is a former Ryder cup team member. He said that, contrary to reports, the president has no power to invite a player to compete in the tournament.

DON BUDGE WINS FROM TILDEN IN FRENCH TENNIS

PARIS, July 1.—(AP)—Don Budge, world's No. 1 player, eliminated Big Bill Tilden from the French professional tennis championships today to go into the All-American final against Ellsworth Vines.

Tilden gave Budge a fast game but the young American never was in serious danger as he won 8-6, 6-3, 7-5. Budge's powerful service and stinging returns proved too much for Big Bill. In the other semi-final match, Vines beat Lester Stoefen 3-6, 6-4, 2-6, 7-5, 6-1.

In the doubles, Budge and Vines defeated Hans Nusslein of Germany and Albert Burke of Ireland, 6-2, 6-0, 6-3. Tilden and Stoeffen split four sets with the French team of Henri Cochet and R. Ramillon, 6-8, 3-6, 6-4, 9-7, before their match was interrupted by darkness.

Snyder, who finished second in this year's 500 mile race at Indianapolis, is survived by his widow, a son and two daughters. He was killed when his overturned car was struck by another car driven by Paul Armbruster. He had been a race driver for seven years.

It's Lyons' Big Day; Marks 16th Year with Sox

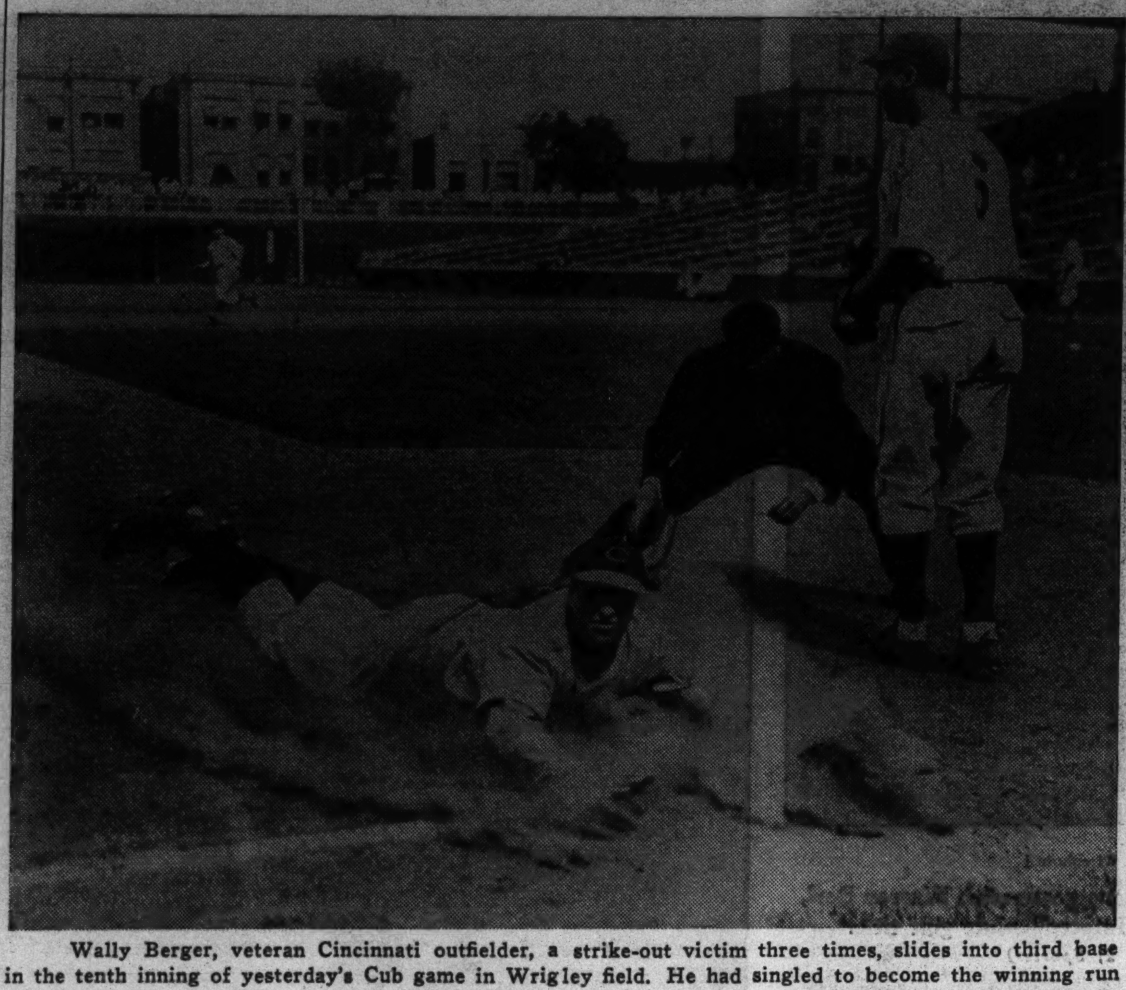
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., July 1.—Sixteen years ago tomorrow Ted Lyons reported to the White Sox in St. Louis and that afternoon pitched in a relief rôle against the Browns. Tomorrow the lad who stepped from Baylor university into the big league will feature the anniversary by starting against the Tigers in quest of his ninth straight victory. The Tigers are going to lead with Tommy Bridges, who has won ten and lost one.

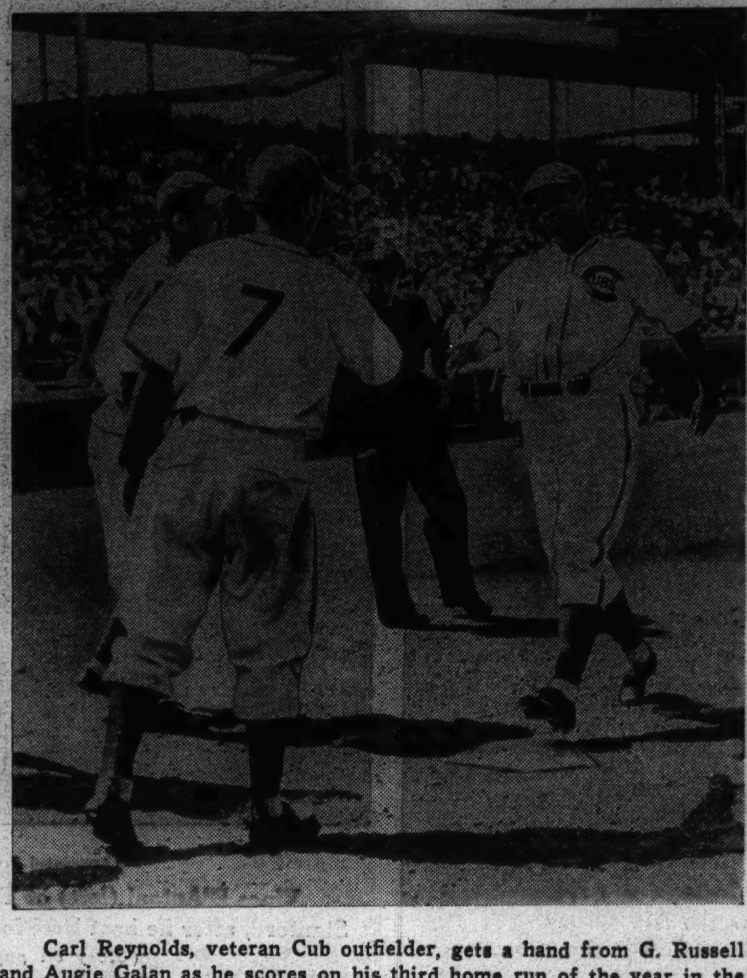
The White Sox claim Hank Greenberg has already fixed up his first baseman's glove in such a way as to get around Commissioner K. M. Landis' recent edict. The rule calls for plain lacing between thumb and forefinger, but by interlacing the leather strands Hank has been able to restore the illegal butterfly net. The Sox complained to the umpires, but got no satisfaction.

The Sox victory in the second game was their first in five games this season in the Tigers' park. The victory also was Smith's third since he joined the Sox. His other triumphs were over the Yanks and the Athletics.

AFTER REYNOLDS' HOMER CAME THE TENTH INNING



Wally Berger, veteran Cincinnati outfielder, a strike-out victim three times, slides into third base in the tenth inning of yesterday's Cub game in Wrigley field. He had singled to become the winning run and advanced on Billy Myers' single. Pitcher Bucky Walters' single scored Berger and Myers and broke up the game. The third baseman is Stan Hack and the umpire, Ballanfant.



Carl Reynolds, veteran Cub outfielder, gets a hand from G. Russell and Augie Galan as he scores on his third home run of the year in the sixth inning. The drive scored Galan (No. 7) and gave the Cubs a 5 to 3 lead.

fanned, after which Hayes worked a squeeze bunt on which Appling scored the winning run. Neither Kuhel nor Kreevich could assist the three men still on the bases. Then Thornton Lee, with a little luck, held the Tigers in their half of the ninth.

FIRST GAME

The nice part of Knott's pitching in the opening inning of the first game was a pair of strikeouts. But there also was a pair of hits. McCosky, whom the Sox don't seem to be able to fool, led off with a two bagger to right. Fox popped out and Averill fanned, McCosky meanwhile going to third on a wild pitch. Higgins slapped a single through short on the first pitch and McCosky carried home the run that kept the Tigers in the lead until the Sox finally made headway against Benton in the sixth.

When Hayes opened the sixth with a two bagger down the left field line it marked the second hit for the Sox. The Tiger infield set itself in anticipation of a bunt but instead of poking the ball Kuhel gave it a healthy ride into the upper right field deck for his eighth homer and a 2 to 1 Sox lead.

Knott's slim lead started to disappear when Averill doubled with one out in the home sixth. He scored the tying run on Higgins' triple over Kreevich's head. Greenberg walked and York doubled to score Higgins. This was where Knott disappeared. Brown's first move as a rescuer was an intentional pass to Kress, loading the bases. Croucher lined to Walker and Greenberg registered after the catch. Benton ended the inning by popping to Appling and then went back to his pitching chores, but with unhappy results.

McNair led off in the seventh with a two bagger, which in reality was a single and a fumble by McCosky. Tresh singled to right and McNair scored. Brown did his bit by sacrificing and Hayes was thrown out by Kress. Kress also should have thrown out Kuhel but erred by heaving the ball into the Sox dugout, Tresh scoring the tying run and Kuhel going to second. Kreevich's single sent Kuhel across the plate.

SECOND GAME

Kuhel's triple to left and Kreevich's infield out coined a run for the Sox in the first inning of the second game, but many things happened to Smitty in the Tigers' half. McCosky singled, but Fox obliged by grounding into a double play. Smitty's wildness fixed up passes for Averill and Higgins and both sprinted home on Greenberg's three base drive into right center. Smitty continued his charity work by passing Kress, but Croucher hoisted a fly to Kreevich.

With the assistance of a wild pitch on the part of Trout the Sox were able to muster the tying run in the third. Two were out when Kuhel shot a single into left. Kreevich singled to center, Kuhel taking third whence scored a bit later on the wild pitch.

Kuhel beat out a bounding single over Trout to open the sixth, thus getting himself into Greenberg's neighborhood where the rumpus arose a moment later. After the umpires had rearranged the setting without including Greenberg, two batters were retired in order, but Walker followed with a single to right center, Kuhel scoring.

York Causes Some Trouble.

There was one out in the eighth when York, Greenberg's successor, doubled to left. He dashed home with the tying run on Kress's double to right center. Appling threw out Croucher and while Smith was engaged in fixing up an intentional pass for Tebbetts there was a wild pitch on which Kress went to third. Then a double steal was attempted while Smith was holding the ball, but Kress was cut down at the plate.

After the Sox had collected what proved the winning run Lee came in to pitch the ninth and Cullenbine, batting for Giebell, doubled to left. McCosky bunted him to third. Fox sent a gentle liner to McNair, who stepped on third to double Cullenbine for the goodnight out.

Walters and Reds Defeat Cubs, 8 to 6

Herman Breaks Ice.

With one out in the third, Frey got the first of his productive hits, a single to center, after which Goodman walked. McCormick singled to right, Frey scoring and Goodman taking third. Lombardi then bounced in to a double play, G. Russell to Bartell to G. Russell.

The first hit off Walters was a single to right with which Herman opened the fourth inning. Galan bounced to McCormick, who tried to make a double play of the kind he had seen G. Russell and Bartell execute on Lombardi in the third inning. But McCormick's throw to Myers was too late to force Herman and the return was too late to get Galan. The runners advanced on Hartnett's sacrifice. Gleeson then rammed a double off the wall in right, narrowly missing a homer, Herman and Galan scoring. Gleeson took third on Reynolds' fly to Goodman and scored, to put the Cubs ahead, 3 to 2, on G. Russell's single to left. Bartell whiffed.

Passeau blew this 3 to 2 lead in short order. Walters opened with a line single to left center and moved up on Werber's sacrifice. Frey again came through with a hit, this time the first of his doubles on which Walters trotted home with the tying run. Goodman popped to Bartell and McCormick flied to Reynolds.

Then the Seventh.

The Cubs, in the sixth, grabbed what at the time seemed to be a very juicy, 5 to 3 lead. Galan opened with a double to right, stayed hitched to second while Hartnett tapped to Myers and Gleeson fanned, then scored ahead of Reynolds when Carl drove the ball high into the bleachers in left center, his third homer of the year. G. Russell bounced to Frey.

And here is the record of the collapse in the seventh: Myers beat out a high bouncer to Passeau and went to third on Walters' single to right. Werber fanned and Frey fouled to G. Russell. It appeared Passeau had waded out of the jam when Goodman slapped a nice easy grounder straight toward Herman. G. Russell, however, was seized with some sort of brainstorm. He rushed out into the diamond, slapped down the ball while Herman shadow-boxed with himself. The rookie had no business with the ball, even if he'd fielded it, so chagrin was widespread as Myers dashed home on the blunder, Walters reaching second and Goodman first.

McCormick singled to center, scoring Walters with the tying run. Lombardi lined a single to right to make an even dozen hits off Passeau, scoring Goodman. Gamble walked, loading the bases. J. Russell came in to fan Berger, as previously related. Then followed the Cubs tying run in the eighth and blowup No. 2 in the Red tenth.

Dean and French Face Reds Today in Twin Bill

A capacity crowd is anticipated for this afternoon's double-header between the Reds and Cubs in Wrigley field. In addition to the presence of the game's greatest individual turnstile bait, Dizzy Dean, the day will present a special gala spectacle, the emergence of Lawrence French, energetic lefty, from the doghouse. The mighty Paul Derringer and Lefty Lee Grissom are the Cincy selections.

The start will be the first for French since June 15, when Larry had difficulties in the seventh. It was in the seventh by the way that Larry was charged with a wild pitch, whereas at least one fellow was quoted as saying it should have been scored as a passed ball. Manager Gabby Hartnett was the catcher and not among those who thought it was a passed ball.

There won't be much chance to buy a box seat this afternoon. But lots of room for the early birds will be available in the grandstands and bleachers, of course.

A new ground rule went into effect in Wrigley field yesterday. A drive which hits the rail screens atop the walls near the left and right field foul poles, is a homer. Had the rule been in effect early in the season, Dick Bartell would have two homers to his credit.

Comiskey Park Again Site for Colored Game

Comiskey park will be the scene of the annual colored East vs. West baseball game on Aug. 6, it was announced yesterday.

As in the previous six years of the game, fans will have the chief voice in the personnel of the two squads. A fan poll will be conducted by the nation's leading colored newspapers. The voting will start July 5 and continue to July 29. Eighteen players will comprise each squad.

30,000 See 1938 Game.

More than 30,000 witnessed last year's contest and the attendance for the entire six games played in the series has been 157,000. The two sections will be fighting to break the 3 to 3 deadlock in victories, brought about when the West won last year's game, 5 to 4.

The series began in 1933 when the West, led by the pitching of Willie Foster and slugging of Mules Suttles, then Chicago American Giant's stars, won, 11 to 7. The following year, with Satchel Paige of the Pittsburgh Crawfords hurling one hit ball the three innings he worked, the East evened the count with a 1 to 0 triumph. Mule Suttles again was the star in 1935 when his long home run with two on base in the eleventh inning gave the West an 11 to 8 decisoin.

East Wins Two Straight.

The East packed too much power for the stars of the West the following two seasons and went ahead with 10 to 2 and 7 to 2 triumphs, only to have the West even it up again with last year's 5 to 4 thriller.

The East's squad will be selected from the teams comprising the Negro National league, namely the Philadelphia Stars, Newark Eagles, Baltimore Elites, Pittsburgh Homestead Grays, New York Cubans, and New York Black Yankees.

The West squad will include the stars of the Negro American league—Chicago American Giants, Kansas City Monarchs, Memphis Red Sox, St. Louis Stars, Cleveland Bears, and Toledo [formerly Pittsburgh] Crawfords.

Rookie, Suffering from Spinal Ailment, Released

Philadelphia, Pa., July 1.—[U. P.]—Leslie Powers, 27, rookie first baseman of the Philadelphia Phillies, was en route to his Los Angeles home today for treatment of a spinal ailment which resulted in his unconditional release. Powers' illness affects the nerves governing the lower limbs, President Gerald Nugent said.

Royal Giants Play Mills in Double-header

Games Today

Brooklyn Royal Giants vs. Mills, Mills stadium, Lake street and Kilpatrick avenue [2].
Cuban Stars vs. Spencer Coals, Spencer field, 4200 North Central avenue [2].

The Mills will play the Brooklyn Royal Giants in Mills stadium, Lake street and Kilpatrick avenue, and the Spencer Coals will oppose the Cuban Stars of Havana in Spencer field, 4200 North Central avenue, in double-headers this afternoon. The Mills will play the Coals in a double-header in Mills stadium Tuesday afternoon.

Clarence Jenkins, professional basketball player and manager of the Brooklyn Royal Giants, will appear in left field.

Williams Pitches Opener.

Bill Williams, Mills righthander, will pitch the first game. Williams will be seeking his fourth straight victory. Howard Berg, former University of Illinois athlete, probably will pitch the second.

The Cuban Stars will wind up their Chicago visit with a double-header against the Spencer Coals. Pitchers Luis Tiant and Silvino Ruiz and Second Baseman Strice Valdez are among the team's stars.

Tiant, southpaw pitcher of the Cubans, was voted as the most valuable hurler in the Cuban Winter league last season. Ruiz has been one of the leading pitchers in the Cuban National league for several years.

Stevens Hurls for Coals.

Bill [Lefty] Stevens will pitch the first game for the Coals. Tony Sims will work the second. Stevens and Sims each will be seeking his seventh victory.

HOTEL SOFTBALL TEAMS TO PLAY AT HINES HOSPITAL

Teams of the Chicago Hotel Softball league will entertain veterans at the Edward Hines hospital with three games today. Two men's games and one girls' game are scheduled, with the opening contest starting at 1 p. m.

The Congress and Stevens hotel girls' teams will clash and in the men's division, La Salle will meet Congress and Flamingo will play Stevens. Arrangements were made by Frank Nist, manager of the Stevens team and president of the league.

South Police Nine Rallies to Beat North, 5-4

Riotous rallying in the ninth inning swept the south side police to a 5 to 4 victory over the north side in the opener of the annual Chicago Policemen's Benevolent association baseball series before 8,000 in Comiskey park yesterday. Four of the five runs credited to Capt. Eugene Barry's team blossomed from the bat of Timothy O'Connor of the Woodlawn station.

Mike Delaney, veteran right hander pitching for the north siders, who were directed by Capt. Harry O'Connell, held the champions to seven hits for eight innings and was leading, 4 to 2, when he faltered in the ninth.

A pass to Baer, Kelly's pinch single, and another pass to Gutcher loaded the bases. Joe Hurley replaced Delaney and fanned Duffy. He then passed Lucas, forcing home Baer. O'Connor's single past Kammerer registered Pinch Runner Corcoran and Gutcher to end the game.

Gutcher Yields 8 Hits.

Gutcher, a big right hander from the detective bureau, hurled the full distance for the south siders, yielding eight hits, none in the last three innings.

The south siders took a two run lead in the third on a north side fielding lapse. Gutcher opened by walking. Duffy fouled to Kammerer, then Lucas smashed his second hit, a double to left. O'Connor gounded to Stahlman, who was late covering first base and Gutcher and Lucas scored. Delaney retired the next batter on an infield chance.

After limiting the north siders to two hits and one pass in the first four innings, Gutcher experienced trouble in the fifth and the north side tied the score at 2 to 2. The runs grew out of singles by W. Glavin and Dellamaria, an error by O'Connor, and Gutcher's wild pitch.

Stahlman's double and singles by Walsh, Kammerer, and O'Keefe accounted for another pair of north side runs in the sixth and set the stage for the south side's winning rally.

Meet Again Today.

Three field events preceded the game. Bernard Glavin, accident prevention bureau, won the base circling contest in 0:16 1-5. Johnny Asher, detective bureau, was second in 0:16 4-5. Joe Conlon, 6th district, third in 0:17 1-5.

Earl Hagberg, 9th district, won the fungo hitting event, driving a ball 295 feet. Timothy O'Connor, 7th district, was second, 284 feet, and John Walsh, trafic division, third, 250. The distance throwing event went to John O'Keefe, state's attorney's office, with 270 feet. Theodore Budil, trafic division, was second, 258, and Ray Duffy, 10th district, third, 235.

The teams meet again this afternoon in Comiskey park at 2 o'clock, following another program of field competion. Score:

SUIT MAY KEEP DERRINGER FROM ALL-STAR GAME

Paul Derringer, Cincinnati Reds pitcher, nominated for the All-Star game in Yankee stadium July 11, will appear in the lineup only if legal complications are ironed out before July 7, General Manager Warren C. Giles of the Reds indicated yesterday.

Giles wired Ford Frick, president of the National league:

"Notice Derringer's selection for All-Star game. If legal situation is such that he can appear without exposing himself to arrest or other embarrassment, will be glad to have him appear. Otherwise we will notify you not later than July 7 so you may have substitution."

Derringer remained away the last time the Reds played in New York. An assault judgment for $8,175 has been ignored by the pitcher and the New York courts have cited him for contempt and issued a warant for his arrest unless the judgment is satisfied.

RED SOX BEAT RUSSO, YANKEE ROOKIE, 5 TO 3

Doerr Features 11 Hit Attack with Homer.

Boston, Mass., July 1.—(AP)—The second place Red Sox cut a game off the New York Yankees' big lead today with a 5 to 3 victory in the first game of their three game series. The Red Sox concentrated nine of their eleven hits for four runs off Rookie Marius Russo in the first three innings while Fritz Ostermueller held the champions. Ostermueller was the first lefthander to beat the Yankees since Ed Smith of the Chicago White Sox defeated them May 8.

Bobby Doerr got three hits, including a home run in the seventh. Buddy Rosar caught the first three innings for the Yankees but was spiked by Tabor and had to be replaced by Bill Dickey.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Since Sydney Wooderson, who holds the world record for one mile and who was humiliatingly defeated in the Princeton invitational meet, will not extend his American visit to compete in the National A. A. U. meet in Lincoln, Neb., tomorrow and Tuesday, there will be no unusual blaze of publicity as the best track and field athletes assemble for the annual meet. But the 1,500 meters, nearest approach to the mile, still will be the featured race.

Glenn Cunningham, perennial champion, and Chuck Fenske of Wisconsin, who won the Princeton mile in 4 minutes and 11 seconds, are expected to battle for the title in the 1,500 meters even as they did last year in Buffalo's Municipal stadium. Cunningham won from Fenske last year. He was beaten decisively in the Princeton mile this month—Fenske's greatest achievement of the outdoor campaign. Neither has approached the A. A. U. 1,500 meter record which was established in 1934 in Milwaukee by Bill Bonthron of Princeton. That afternoon Bonthron sought and won revenge for his defeat a month before by Cunningham.

Cunningham Beats Bonthron.

That year, 1934, Cunningham had beaten Bonthron and established his world record in the mile, a mark of 4:06.7 which lasted until 1937 when Wooderson lowered it to 4:06.4. Bonthron then whipped Cunningham and set the world record for 1,500 meters of 3:48.8. That world record lasted two years until Jack Lovelock of New Zealand clipped a second from it.

The Milwaukee race, one of the brightest pictures in the half century of A. A. U. competition, saw both Cunningham and Bonthron break the old 1,500 meter mark. Glenn swung into the stretch leading by 15 yards, but Bonthron's closing sprint beat out the former Kansan by a stride.

Zamperini Finishes Fourth.

Last year Cunningham's time on the soft Buffalo track was 3:52.5. Both he and Fenske can do better this year, but if Fenske whips Cunningham, as well he may, the time will not be of importance. Victory definitly will establish Fenske as America's greatest middle distance runner.

Louis Zamperini of Southern California, national collegiate mile winner, who finished fourth in the A. A. U. 1,500 meters last year, and Archie San Romani, third in Buffalo, still will furnish major competition for Fenske and Cunningham.

The senior A. A. U. titles will be determined Tuesday, preceded by the junior competition tomorrow. It always is difficult to predict how many records will be broken for the marks in many events already have been established at unapproachable figures. The man to watch in the high and low hurdles, however, is Fred Wolcott, defending champion.

Wolcott America's Best Hurdler.

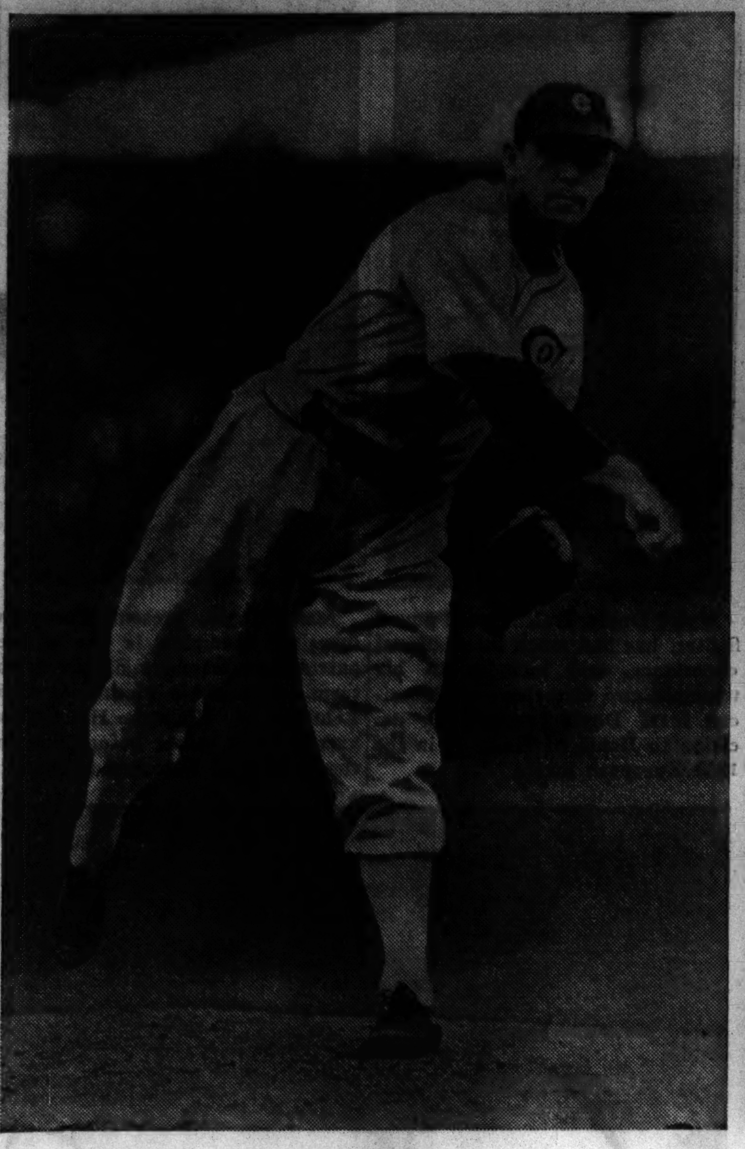
Wolcott is America's best hurdler. That he did not equal A. A. U. records last year may be laid to the imperfections of the track and the number of preliminary races. He had to run three times to win each of his hurdles championships. His 14 3-10 seconds was short one-tenth of a second of the 110 meter high hurdle mark set by Forrest Towns in 1936 and in the 200 meter low hurdles Wolcott failed by three-tenths of a second of equaling the 1937 record of Allan Tolmich, former Wayne university hurdler.

The senior program consists of twenty-three events, from the 100 meter dash to the 10,000 meter run, and the usual quota of field events. From the group of winners and second and third men, teams will be selected to invade Europe this summer.

Soccer Association Names Callowhill President Again

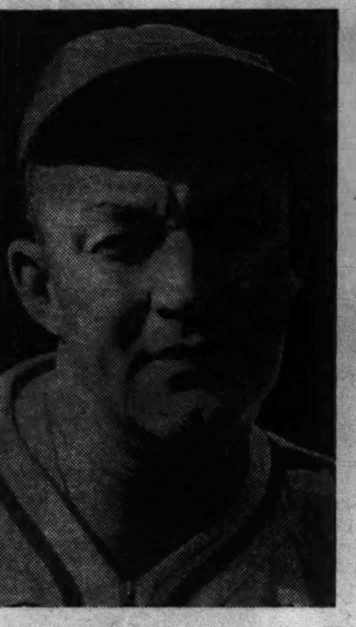
Detroit, Mich., July 1.—(AP)—The United States Soccer Football association today reëlected Howard Callowhill, Baltimore, Md., president, and chose Milwaukee for its 1940 meeting. William Angus, Cleveland, was reëlected treasurer and the following were chosen vice presidents: Thomas E. Sager, Holmesburg, Pa.; Harry Fairfield, Pittsburgh, Pa., and Harold Krause, New York.

THESE CUBS AND SOX WIN ALL-STAR BERTHS

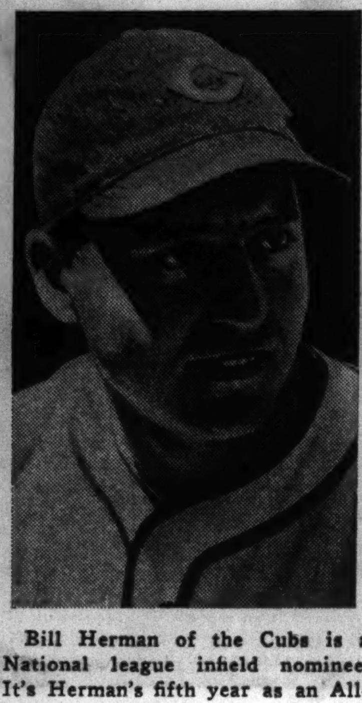


Ted Lyons, veteran White Sox pitcher, yesterday was selected on the pitching staff of the American league for the All-Star game in New York, July 11, with the National league squad.

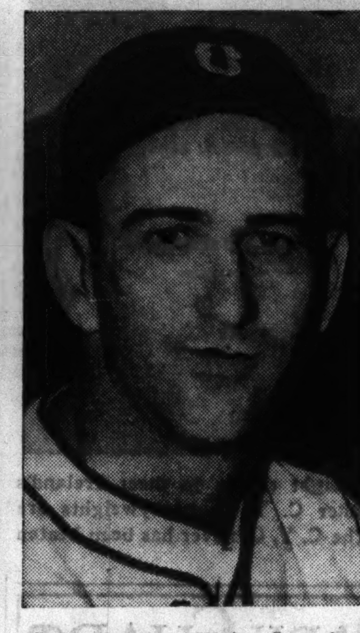
The Cubs will contribute Bill Lee to the National league's pitching staff in the All-Star game. Three Cubs were named to the squad. The All-Star game was originated in 1933 by The Tribune.



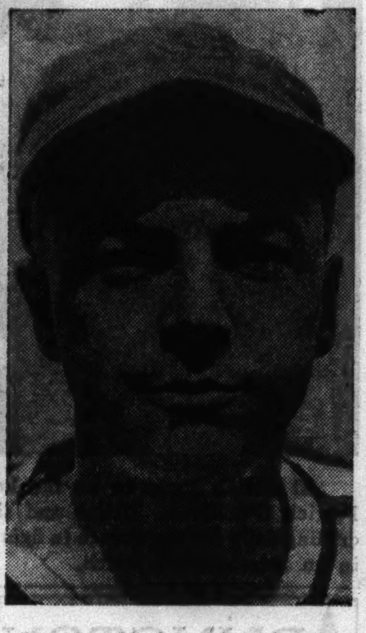
The National league squad will be managed by Gabby Hartnett, boss of the Cubs. It is his sixth year as an All-Star.



Bill Herman of the Cubs is a National league infield nominee. It's Herman's fifth year as an All-Star second baseman.



Luke Appling, White Sox shortstop, is the only other south sider named by the American leaguers. It will be Appling's second year.



Stanley Hack, third baseman, completes the Cub contributions to the National league squad. Hack was named for the second time.

Mack Quits; McCarthy to Lead All-Stars

Luke Appling, shortstop in the 1936 game, a year in which he later won the American league batting championship, is the other Chicagoan to be voted the honor.

The American league team will be drawn from a squad composed of nine Yankees, four Red Sox, three Tigers, two White Sox, two Indians, and one Senator. The squad will include eight pitchers, three catchers, eight infielders, and six outfielders. Coaches will be Lena Blackburne of the Athletics and Art Fletcher of the Yankees. Dave Keefe of the Philadelphia club will be the Americans' batting practice pitcher and John Schulte of the Yankees their batting practice catcher.

Here is the American league squad:

CATCHERS—Bill Dickey, New York; Frank Hayes, Philadelphia, and Rollie Hemsley, Cleveland.

INFIELDERS—Jimmy Foxx and Joe Cronin, Boston; Hank Greenberg, Detroit; Frank Crosetti, Red Rolfe, and Joe Gordon, New York; George McQuinn, St. Louis; Luke Appling, Chicago.

Team Has Sluggers.

Absence of Gehrig and Gehringer may mean loss of some power at the plate, but the American leaguers still will have such clouters as DiMaggio, Greenberg, McQuinn, and Dickey to carry the load.

Gomez, who has started six All-Star games, Bridges, Grove, and Ruffing all have had All-Star mound experience. Their cunning, backed up possibly by Feller's blazing fast ball, gives the squad a great hurling corps.

Dickey Has Familiar Rôle.

Behind the plate Bill Dickey won't be in an unfamiliar rôle. And there is power, plus defensive class in the outfield setup.

Of the eight infielders named, only Rolfe is a third baseman. Gordon will have to handle second base duties alone, though Cronin, Crosetti, or Appling could fill in at third or short in an emergency. Foxx, Greenberg, and McQuinn give the team plenty of power at first base.

In addition to Gehrig and Gehringer, another notable absentee was Earl Averill, former Cleveland star now with Detroit. He was selected on all previous teams.

HYDROX MEETS CINCINNATI.

Fishing in Big Waters Opened in Wisconsin

BY BOB BECKER.

Anglers who like big water fishing yesterday were able to set sail on Green Bay off the shore of Door county, Wisconsin, and fish for small mouths. Due to the fact that the water of Lake Michigan is colder than inland lakes the bass spawn later in Lake Michigan. Thus the state keeps the season closed on outlying waters until July 1.

With the opening of the bass season in Lake Michigan all fishing seasons in the central states and Canada are under way. Fishermen are in Canada slapping lures at the muskies, lake trout and bass. Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan have opened up all seasons on fishing, so the angler heading north to the woods and lake country can carry all kinds of tackle with expectation of hooking most anything from a northern pike to a crappie.

The fishing for small mouthed bass either on the Green Bay or the Lake Michigan side of Door county, Wisconsin, is unlike anything the average fisherman sees in small inland lakes. In the first place one needs a good sized boat. Although it's unnecessary to go far from the mainland, there are days when it's rather rough. Thus a motor boat that is fairly large and comfortable is a definite asset. Such a boat will accommodate several fishermen.

Secondly, the fishing is usually on rocky reefs, rock bars or around small islands if you fish the Green Bay side of the peninsula. Early in the season you can get the small mouths on artificial lures. We have seen calm quiet days on Green Bay when a fellow could work a fly rod. Bait casters get 'em on small underwater wabbling plugs, the kind that many fishermen use on inland lakes when they are casting for bass and other game fish.

A little later in the season when hot weather warms the big water the bass naturally go down to get into the cool depths. Then one has to fish deep and use bait to get a string of fish. On trips we have made from the west side of the Door county peninsula we have found a long fly rod, a gut leader and a single hook an ideal rig. It's possible to drift [like you do on Lake Geneva during a midsummer bass fishing trip] over a rock bar and hook bass, or you'll anchor if you locate a school of 'em.

This deep fishing isn't as much fun as casting for 'em, but this much is certain: If you like a beautiful setting for your fishing and you want action and plenty of fish, the type of bass fishing in Green Bay supplys the order. If the small mouths are in a hitting mood and you find a school you'll have plenty of work with your fly rod.

WEIGHT LIFTERS TO OPEN A. A. U. MEET TONIGHT

Two World Champions to See Action.

The three day National A. A. U. senior weight lifting tournament and the "Mr. America of 1939" contest, sponsored by the Chicago park district, will open at 7:30 o'clock tonight in the Humboldt park bicycle bowl. Two world champions will be seen in action as twenty-five weight lifters, out of a total of eighty, begin competition for titles in the 112, 148, and 181 pound classes.

Tony Herlazzo of York, Pa., defending title holder and world champion in the 148 pound class, is expected to break all national records and one world mark. He has recently exceeded the American total of 764 pounds on three lifts by amassing 810 pounds in these three events. John Davis, also of York, Pa., winner of the 181 pound world championship in Vienna last fall, is the favorite over Stanley Kratkowski, defending champion of Detroit, Mich.

Davis' Rise Is Rapid.

Davis' rise within a year has culminated in the acquisition of all American records in his division. Other outstanding competitors in this division are John Grimek, member of the 1936 American Olympic team; William Curry, National A. A. U. junior title holder, and Frank Kay, Central A. A. U. champion. A. Firpo Lemma of the Bates Weight Lifting club, Paterson, N. J., is the defending champion in the 112 pound division. A close battle is expected in this class between Lemma and Andy Hutchinson, Canadian champion of the Oliphant academy of Toronto.

Tomorrow night championships will be decided in the 118, 132, and 165 pound classes. Bill Leardi of the Bates Weight Lifting club of Paterson, N. J., will defend his 118 pound title against Otto Sering of the Chicago Weight Lifting club and Pete Neveaux of Woonsocket, R. I.

SETS DISTANCE SWIM RECORD OF 176.8 MILES

Forsyth, Mont., July 1.—(AP)—Clarence Giles climbed from the cold Yellowstone river here tonight and claimed a new American distance swimming record.

The 45 year old auctioneer left the water at 9:05 p. m. [mountain standard time] at the Forsyth dam and claimed the American record by swimming 176.8 miles in 52 hours and 35 minutes. A swift current aided him. Legless Charles Zimmy's American mark was 147 miles in 147 hours.

STAKE RECORDS SET IN 2 RACES AT AQUEDUCT

Red Eye and Johnnie J Win Closing Features.

New York, July 1.—[Special.]—Red Eye and Johnnie J set stake records at Aqueduct today as the Queens County Jockey club brought its meeting to a close with renewals of the Gazelle and Great American stakes before 15,000 persons. Carrying Harry F. Guggenheim's Falaise stable colors, Red Eye won the filly stake by five lengths in 1:43 1-5 over a track that had dried out from muddy to be fast.

She was piloted by Basil James, who rode four winners on the getaway day program, his other firsts being John Hay Whitney's The Wind, C. V. Whitney's Flight Command, and King ranch's Brazado. The Whitney racers both are youngsters, but top honors for 2 year olds went to a woman, Miss Carrie Hardin, whose colors were carried by Johnnie J. in the Great American. His time was 1:11 4-5 for the six furlongs.

New Marks for Stakes.

Neither Red Eye nor Johnnie J. set track records, those marks being 1:42 3-5 and 1:10 4-5, respectively, for a mile and a sixteenth, and six furlongs, but they made new marks for the stakes.

Previously the best time in the Gazelle was Regal Lily's 1:44 in 1937 which time Red Eye reduced by four-fifths of a second. Johnnie J. also reduced the Great American mark by four-fifths of a second, the old figure being Fairy Hill's 1:12 3-5 in 1936.

That the track was amazingly fast was further illustrated by Brazado's time. When James got him home first he was timed in 1:36 1-5, only a fifth of a second slower than John P. Grier's famous track record of 1:36 flat. There was a claim of foul lodged against Brazado but the stewards did not allow it.

Red Eye Earns $4,400.

In the main event, Mr. Guggenheim's stable gained $4,400 of the gross purse of $6,150 as the result of Red Eye's speedy journey. The filly was held at 13 to 5 in a field of five.

Five lengths back of Red Eye, Wheatley stable's Hostility crossed the line a half length before King ranch's Ciencia. The winner shouldered only 109 pounds while the Acorn stakes winner, and the Santa Anita Derby winner, who got the lesser places, had up 121 pounds each. Done Gone was fourth after setting the early pace.

ENTRY RUNS ONE, TWO

Boston, Mass., July 1.—(AP)—War Minstrel and Blind Eagle, stable mates from the barn of Mrs. Emil Denemark, Chicago sportswoman, took the $10,000 added Paul Revere handicap in that order at Suffolk Downs today as Mrs. Parker Corning's Thanksgiving, backed down to 70 cents on the dollar, ran fifth and last.

Richard A. Moore's Clodion, which delayed the start nine minutes and finally broke from outside the gate, finished third, a length and a half back of the entry. War Minstrel had only a neck on Blind Eagle at the wire. Wesley Sears' Xavier ran fourth.

No Show Wagering.

The winner, third in the $50,000 added Massachusetts handicap and victor in the Stars and Stripes at Arlington Park last season, ran the mile and one-sixteenth in 1:47 over a slow strip. The entry paid $10 and $7.60. There was no show wagering.

Thanksgiving's effort was a bitter disappointment to the crowd of 25,000 which wagered $24,746 of the $53,026 bet on the race on the Bud Lerner colt. He was last every step of the way.

The Denemark entry ran on top all the way with War Minstrel losing the lead near the half mile pole. He came on again under Freddy Smith's ride to regain it almost immediately. The stake carried a net value of $9,100.

55 PILOTS WILL RACE TONIGHT AT RIVERVIEW

An eight race midget auto program topped by a forty lap feature will be held at 8:30 o'clock tonight on Riverview speedway, Western avenue and Addison street.

Among the 55 drivers entered are Tony Willman, Ted Johnson, Marshall Lewis, Ronnie Householder, Ted Duncan, Bert Knight, Harry Lewis, Duke Nalon, Ray Richards, and Ted Tetterton.

A new idea in racing will be tried tonight when several youngsters will compete in a mile race with cars which can go 35 miles per hour. A gold trophy will be presented to the winner of the event.

Sixteen cars will face the starter in the feature race, in which the fastest qualifiers will be eligible. The other events will be composed of handicaps, a match race, and a consolation event.

Because of the number of entries, Promoter Bob Lundgreen announced that time trials will start at 7:15 p. m. The track has been resurfaced.

ONWENTSIA POLO TEAM TO MEET FORT SHERIDAN

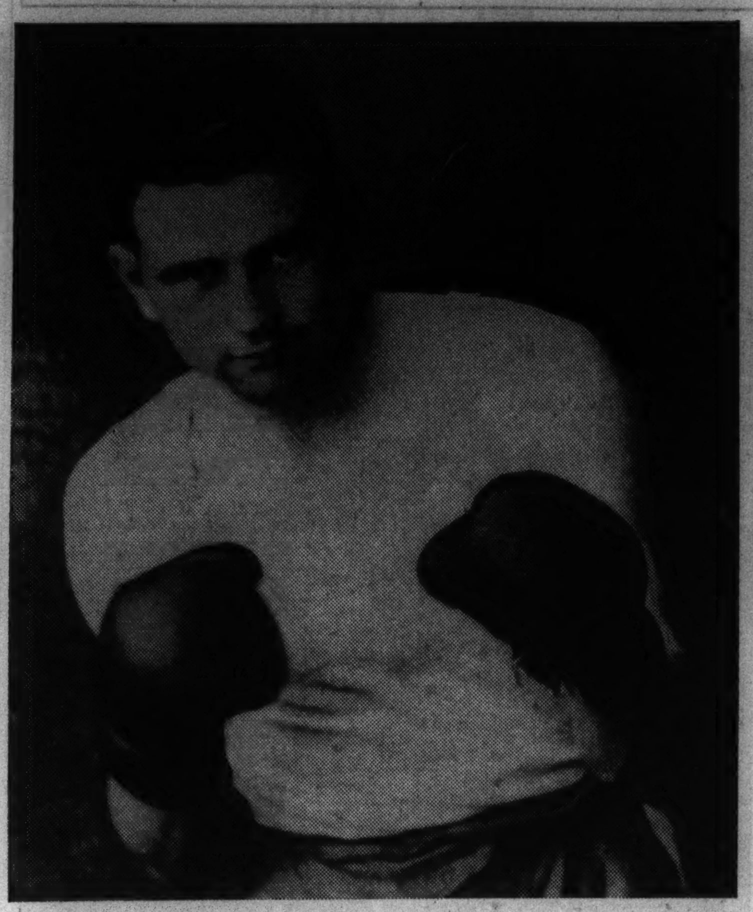
In a polo revival at Onwentsia field the Fort Sheridan and Onwentsia teams will clash at 3:30 o'clock. The same teams also will play Tuesday. Members of the Onwentsia squad are Lester Armour Jr., Robert Cudahy, David Wilhelm, Jack Behr, Lieut. Col. C. K. Rhinehart, Bill Carney, Otis Carney, Marshall Hughes, John Hughes, and Joseph Ryerson Jr.

Fort Sheridan's probable lineup will be Maj. Paul H. Morris, Capt. C. B. Hutcinson, Capt. H. S. Jernigan, and Capt. Galloway.

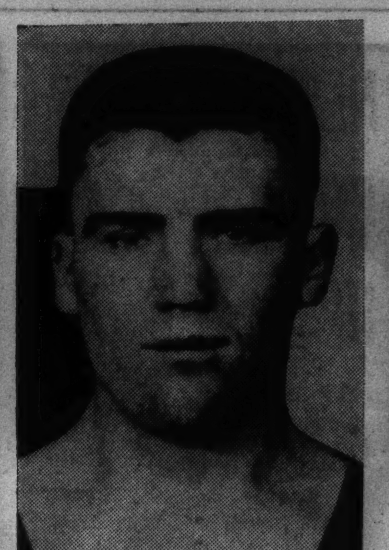
C. Y. O. RECORD AT STAKE WHEN IRISH INVADE SOLDIERS' FIELD

John Draper, outstanding in the juvenile division for five years, is one of the two 126 pounders who will make the trip with the Irish boxing team which meets the C. Y. O. in Soldiers' field the night of July 19.

John McCormack is one of two Irish boxers on the team in the 147 pound division. He is noted as a give and take boxer. McCormack is 21 years old and a native of Dublin.

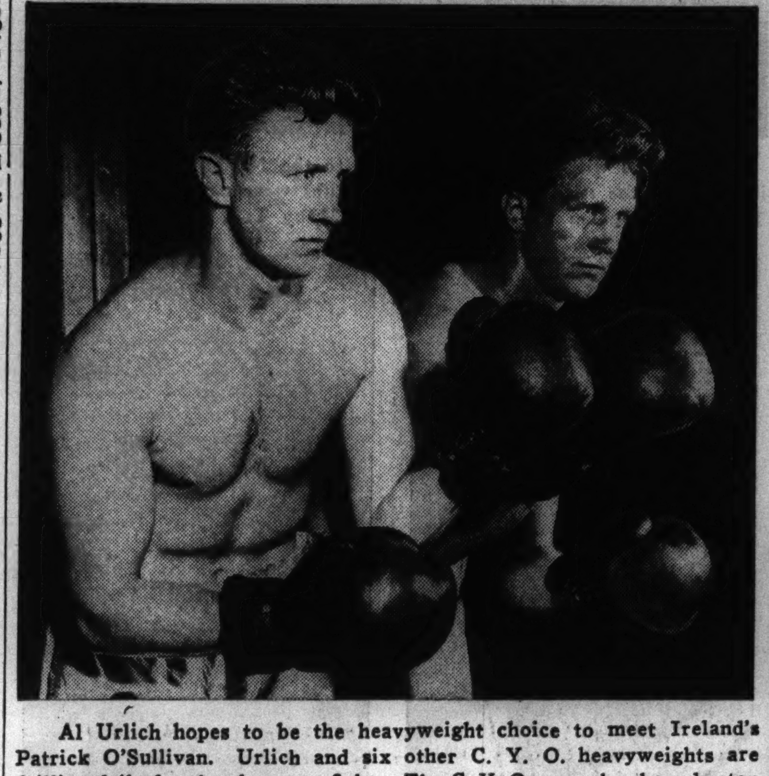


Stephen Sullivan will fight for Ireland in the 175 pound division. He has had 78 bouts and won 69. His chief ambition is to become an outstanding boxer.

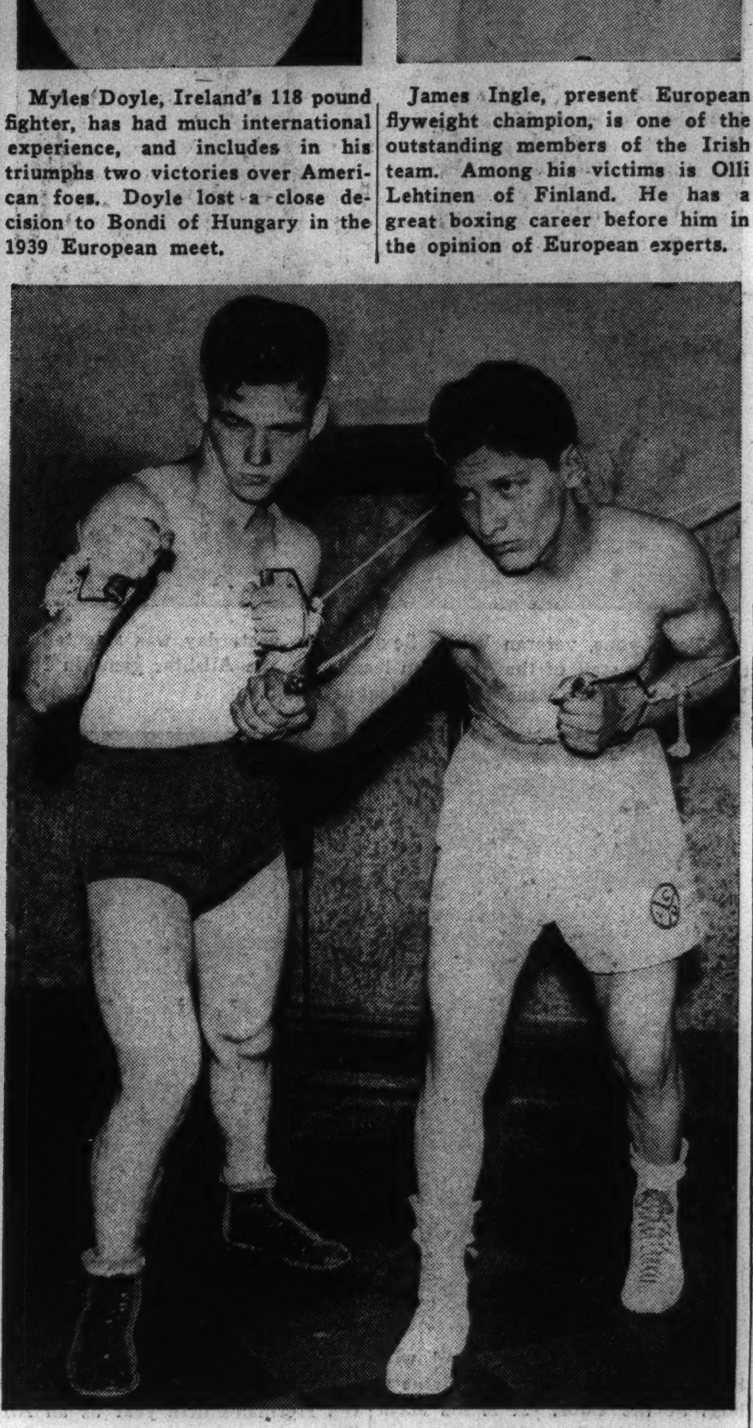


Myles Doyle, Ireland's 118 pound fighter, has had much international experience, and includes in his triumphs two victories over American foes. Doyle lost a close decision to Bondi of Hungary in the 1939 European meet.

James Ingle, present European flyweight champion, is one of the outstanding members of the Irish team. Among his victims is Olli Lehtinen of Finland. He has a great boxing career before him in the opinion of European experts.



Al Urlich hopes to be the heavyweight choice to meet Ireland's Patrick O'Sullivan. Urlich and six other C. Y. O. heavyweights are drilling daily for the chance to fight. The C. Y. O. never has been beaten in an international match.



John Leahy (left), welterweight, and Mike Sanchez, lightweight, work on pulleys before they don gloves for a sparring session in preparation for the fights with Ireland.

M'Geever and Lello to Meet in White City

Pete Lello, former Chicago Golden Gloves lightweight champion, who knocked out Lew Jenkins last March 24, will return to action in a ten round bout against Irish Eddie McGeever, Scranton, Pa., junior welterweight, in White City July 12.

Before this event is held Eddie Simms, Cleveland trial horse, will meet Henry Wacker, hard hitting heavyweight of Taylorville, Ill., in the White City outdoor arena Wednesday.

Simms Seeks Seventh Victory.

Simms will be after his seventh victory, Tommy Carter, Dan Merrit, Eddie Blunt, Lem Franklin, Edward [Unknown] Winston, and Sunny Jim McVey being among his victims. Of the others he lost eight and scored one draw against Lorenzo Pack in Madison Square garden three years ago.

Simms' conquerors include Joe Louis, Johnny Whiters, Alberto Lovell, Otis Thomas, John Henry Lewis, and Willie Reddish.

Wacker Losses to Kenneally.

Wacker will be making his first start since losing a decision in ten rounds to Tom Kenneally of the Catholic Youth organization in Marigold gardens June 12. It was Wacker's second setback in twelve fights. He won nine, eight by knockouts, and held Paul Hartnek to a draw in ten rounds in the Coliseum April 13. The preliminary card:

Tony Sopko vs. Frankie Genovese, Winnipeg, Man [6], 154.
Orlando Trotter vs. Tiger Wright, Phoenix, Ariz. [4], 186.
Johnny Janus vs. Danny La Marr [4], heavyweights.
Art Brewer vs. Pete Ferrand [4], 137.

There will be no show in Marigold Gardens tomorrow, the card headed by Tom Kenneally and Bob Nestell having been postponed until July 10. . . . Pete Lello will leave today for Sioux City, Ia., where he appears against a suitable foe in a ten round headliner on Thursday. . . . Willie Joyce, Gary Junior lightweight, expects to box Joe Ghnouly of St. Louis in White City July 19. . . . Altus Allen, 1939 Golden Gloves graduate, who won his second professional encounter by beating Al Globe in Chicago June 8, will be ready for his third test within three weeks.

Boys Donate 75c of Earnings for Dempsey Bouquet

New York, July 1.—(AP)—A dozen shoe shine boys, who ply their trade around Madison Square Garden and Jack Dempsey's restaurant, hustled out early this morning and earned 75 cents with which to buy flowers for Dempsey. They made a good deal, too, getting a $1.50 bouquet for their 75 cents.

They marched into the Polyclinic hospital and gave the flowers to a special officer who took them to Dempsey's room. Jack was asleep at the time.

PASTOR IN LINE FOR LOUIS BOUT IN SEPTEMBER

New York, July 1.—Special.]—Bob Pastor's manager, James J. Johnston, conferred with Promoter Mike Jacobs today, and indications are that Jacobs will select Pastor to meet Joe Louis for the heavyweight championship in Detroit in September.

The promoter still is dickering with the owners of Briggs stadium, home grounds of the Detroit Tigers, for a reasonable rental before he announces definitly the naming of Pastor and the site.

Ray Carlen, manager of Lou Nova, also spoke with Jacobs, but their conversation had to do with a bout between Nova and Tony Galento, who surprised boxing fans by his fine showing against Louis last Wednesday night. Only the matter of a date satisfactory to Nova and Galento prevents Jacobs from announcing that the match is on.

SCHMELING WILL TRY COMEBACK AGAINST HEUSER

STUTTGART, Germany, July 1.—(AP)—A second comeback attempt by Max Schmeling, former world's heavyweight boxing champion, has centered unusual interest on his battle with Adolf Heuser tomorrow for the European heavyweight title.

The fifteen round match, Schmeling's first since his one round knockout by Joe Louis a year ago, will be held in the Adolf Hitler arena before what is expected to be a capacity house of 33,000. The fight is scheduled for 3 p. m. [9 a. m., Chicago time].

There is considerable speculation whether Schmeling will be able to handle his younger, up and coming German opponent, who never has been knocked out. Since his defeat and injury by Louis, Schmeling quietly has been rebuilding his strength and keeping in shape.

IRISH BOXERS ON WAY TO MEET CHICAGO C. Y. O.

Team Due July 11 After Visiting New York.

Ireland's boxing champions who meet the Catholic Youth Organization squad in Soldiers' field the night of July 19 are on the way. The ten boxers, accompanied by three officials, left Cobh today on the Samaria, scheduled to arrive in New York a week from tomorrow.

More than a chance to gain revenge for their beating here last year is in store for the youngsters. A schedule of interesting events has been arranged for them before they step into the ring in the lake front stadium. They will visit New York's World Fair and other points of interest there, which will delay their Chicago arrival until 1:30 o'clock the afternoon of July 11 in Union station.

Countrymen to Greet Them.

A delegation of their countrymen will meet the Irish athletes at the station and form for a parade to city hall where the invaders will be greeted by Mayor Kelly. The boxers will be quartered in the Auditorium hotel and will do their training in the C. Y. O. downtown gymnasium.

By that time, the Chicago C. Y. O. army of boxers will be in the midst of preparations at the outdoor camp near Lockport, Ill. The Chicagoans will leave Friday and those who are selected on the squad will remain in camp until the morning of the matches.

There was little to choose between the two teams last year, even though the Chicagoans won, 6 to 4. Most of the bouts were close. The same situation is likely again this time. The C. Y. O. team, with most of its veterans back and a number of improving newcomers, figures to be the stronger. The Irish, likewise, are sure their squad is better than last year's.

Ingle European Champion.

The invading flyweight, James Ingle, is champion of all Europe and has been winning titles since 1937 when he boxed as a 91 pounder. Some of his victims on his march to the top were Nardecchia of Italy, Lehtinen of Finland, Jasinski of Poland and Obermauer of Germany. Ingle is a native of Dublin and is 18 years old.

Myles Doyle, bantamweight, likewise has had much international experience. He won five juvenile titles from 1928 to 1932. This 24 year old veteran lost a close decision in the European finals last spring. The two featherweights have been boxing for five years. Patrick Glennon made his debut as a senior in the Irish championships this year, winning the national title from John Draper, who also is on the invading team. Each is 18 years old.

Gernon is Lightweight.

The Irish lightweight is Patrick Gernon, featherweight champion of the isle in 1935 and 1937. Gernon, 24 years old, has been boxing for several years. An army man is the welterweight representative. He is Corporal Charles Evenden. He was beaten in the European tournament this year by Anthony Kolczynski of Poland, who went on to win the title. The other welterweight on the squad is John McCormack, an aggressive youngster who has beaten Evenden once in three bouts.

James Price, the middleweight, has had sixty-three bouts of which he has won fifty. He is 22 years old and combines both boxing and slugging. Stephen Sullivan, the light heavyweight, likewise is a puncher-boxer. He has won sixty-nine out of seventy-eight bouts.

Born on St. Patrick's Day.

Patrick O'Sullivan, the heavyweight, was born on St. Patrick's day twenty-one years ago. He has been boxing only a year, but has won all of his eleven matches. O'Sullivan is 6 feet, 3 inches tall and weighs 195 pounds.

Other members of the party are James B. O'Connor, delegate; James Moore, manager, and Richard J. Hearns, trainer. Hearns fought against the Chicagoans last year.

NEBRASKA BARS 2 HORSE OWNERS ON DOPE CHARGES

Omaha, Neb., July 1.—(AP)—W. H. The Nebraska racing commission ordered the suspensions, effective today, after a hearing at which both owners denied knowledge of how caffeine might have been given the horses. Tests were made by track veterinarians after horses owned by Brown and Webb had won races.

SENATORS FIGHT NEW DRIVE FOR MONEY CONTROL

Hot Debate Likely on Vote Wednesday.

Washington, D. C., July 1.—[Special.]—Anti-administration leaders in the senate were preparing tonight to fight against a renewed effort by New Dealers to salvage some of President Roosevelt's monetary powers.

The administration has made it plain that it still wants the President to have the authority to devalue the dollar another nine cents, and also wishes the treasury to maintain its two billion dollar stabilization fund.

Its opponents, who balked an effort to vote on the continuation of these policies before the end of the fiscal year [June 30], maintained that there could be no legal passage of legislation to extend powers already gone. This point, it is expected, will provoke acrimonious debate before the vote on the monetary authority is taken on Wednesday.

Declare New Bills Necessary.

Senators Arthur H. Vandenberg [R., Mich.] and Robert A. Taft [R., O.] said that it would be necessary for the proponents of the monetary control to introduce entirely new legislation and take it through all congressional channels; that the taking of the vote Wednesday would be no more than an empty formality.

Partly supporting them was Senator Alva B. Adams [D., Colo.]. He said that the stabilization fund could not be revived.

"That 2 billion dollars," he averred, "is part of the treasury's general fund now. The only way it can be used as a stabilization fund is for congress to appropriate it. That isn't done by the pending legislation."

Senator Adams said that he disagreed with Senators Taft and Vandenberg on devaluation; that a favorable vote on Wednesday would give the President the legal authority to govern the gold content of the dollar.

Get Support from Murphy.

Administration leaders were displaying a letter [undated] from Attorney General Frank Murphy, in which he informed the President of his belief that the adoption of the legislation on both moot points would be valid, even if the passage came after June 30. The same leaders were counting strongly on the support of the so-called silver bloc which won legislation to compel the government to buy the metal at more than 70 cents an ounce.

Senator Sherman Minton [D., Ind.], a Roosevelt leader, said that "by the time the vote is taken" the administration forces would have a majority.

BUSINESS AWAITS ACTION

Bankers and speculative interests marked time yesterday awaiting developments which may offer a clew to the significance of the senate's action in allowing President Roosevelt's vast monetary powers to expire.

Quiet and largely nominal foreign exchange markets provided no indication. The United States treasury followed its usual Saturday practice of posting no price for the purchase of foreign silver. The price of the metal was somewhat firmer in London.

The treasury also announced that no silver price would be posted tomorrow because of the government holiday. This meant that this country's action would remain unknown publicly until Wednesday because all banking activity will be suspended on Tuesday.

Silver Buying Price Cut.

Prior to congress' decision terminating the President's monetary powers and this country's program of buying silver from abroad, the treasury had offered 38 cents an ounce for foreign silver. The price had been 43 cents, but was whittled by three successive reductions.

The London silver market was firmer with the spot price the equivalent of 0.12 cent higher at 38.05 cents an ounce. Foreign exchange quotations, both in this country and abroad, were nominal inasmuch as New York banks began Saturday closings during July and August, and most European centers were closed as usual for the week-end.

Bankers Approve Congress Action.

Banking authorities who were available for comment yesterday generally expressed approval of the action terminating the President's authority to further devalue the dollar. They said this may improve business confidence in the future and diminish fear of inflation.

Some authorities expressed the opinion that the United States dollar stabilization fund had shown merit during the abnormal conditions of recent years, and should be continued.

Many favored discontinuing of the silver buying program under which subsidies were paid to foreign and domestic producers of the metal.

Wallace Made a Top Ranking Spend-Lender

Washington, D. C., July 1.—(AP)—Secretary Wallace, given new powers and funds both by appropriation measures and the government reorganization, became today one of the topmost spender-lenders of the administration.

Budget authorities estimated the cabinet officer would have between $2,000,000,000 and $2,500,000,000 to spend and lend in this fiscal year on programs designed to help agriculture gain economic parity with other groups.

A record-setting supply bill, signed somewhat reluctantly by President Roosevelt last night, gave Wallace $1,194,488,000 to finance crop and marketing control, surplus crop disposal, research, and regulatory functions of the agriculture department.

Provides Grants and Loans.

The 1940 relief bill, signed the same night, added $140,000,000 for grants and loans to financially distressed farmers. [The President's proposed new lending program would increase this figure to $390,000,000.]

President Roosevelt's order transferring the Farm Credit administration and the Commodity Credit corporation to the agriculture department gave Wallace control over credit resources from which upward of one billion dollars in loans may be made this year.

The Farm Credit administration, heretofore an independent agency, extends loans to farmers for purchase or refinancing of farms, and for production crops and live stock. The Commodity Credit corporation makes loans to farmers on such commodities as cotton, corn, wheat, tobacco, wool, and other products when surpluses unduly depress prices.

Will Decide on Policy.

Assistants said Wallace would permit the farm credit administration to operate as a semi-autonomous agency, exercising only the right to pass on broad matters of policy.

The agriculture department supply bill made $773,000,000 available for subsidies to farmers who coöperate with crop and marketing programs. Included in this was $225,000,000 in unbudgeted "parity" payments which drew the criticism of the chief executive. Mr. Roosevelt, explaining he was not opposed to such payments, declared congress had failed to follow his recommendation that a revenue measure be enacted to provide funds for the payments.

Part for Subsidies.

The bill also provide $203,000,000 for disposal of surplus products such as cotton, wheat, dairy products, fruits, vegetables, lard, and pork products. A part of the money will be used to subsidize the export of cotton, wheat, and possibly lard, and the balance to subsidize consumption of these products by relief and low income families.

Although carried in the agriculture department supply bill, $200,000,000 for public roads will be spent under direction of the new public works agency, created by the President.

IMPOUND $6,200,000 IN PENDERGAST INSURANCE PLOT

Kansas City, Mo., July 1.—(AP)—A custodian named by the federal court held approximately $6,200,000 of impounded Missouri fire insurance premiums in his custody today.

The 137 fire insurance companies have completed the return of their 80 per cent of the distribution under the 1935 compromise agreement made by R. E. O'Malley, then state superintendent of insurance.

The money was ordered returned by a three judge federal court after recent disclosures which resulted in O'Malley and "Boss" Tom Pendergast receiving prison sentences for income tax evasion. The government charged O'Malley received $62,500 and Pendergast $315,000 to bring about the settlement.

The state insurance department now is endeavoring to obtain distribution of the entire amount of impounded premiums to the policy holders. The remaining 20 per cent of the $9,000,000 originally impounded was returned to the policy holders as a result of the compromise.

STEEL OUTPUT DROP EXPECTED FOR THIS WEEK

Steel operations are scheduled to decline markedly this week as a result of the July 4 holiday, but indications are that production will rebound to at least present levels next week.

The decline in Pittsburgh will amount to 10 points, putting the operating rate at 36 per cent of capacity. In the July 4 week last year the rate dropped 13 points.

In Youngstown the holiday will cut deeply into steel operations, but an immediate rebound is expected.

Order for 66 Miles of Pipe Is Received by A. O. Smith

An order for sixty-six miles of sixteen inch pipe for a natural gas line has been received by the A. O. Smith corporation, Milwaukee, Wis. The El Paso Natural Gas company ordered the pipe for use in an extension in New Mexico. More than 8,000 tons of steel will be required. Shipments will begin July 6.

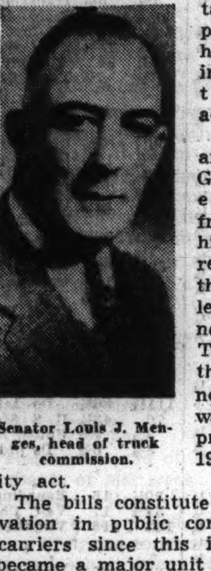
NEW TRUCKING CONTROL LAWS UP TO HORNER

House Passes Bills; Ends Bureau Rule.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., July 1.—The trucking industry within Illinois is freed of much red tape under bills passed in the house this morning just before the legislature adjourned.



Senator Louis J. Menges, head of truck commission.

Unless the bills are vetoed by Gov. Henry Horner, for-hire freighting on the highways will be recognized for the first time as a legitimate business competition. The legal fable that it is a monopoly will die with repeal of provisions of the 1921 public utility act.

The bills constitute the first renovation in public control of motor carriers since this infant industry became a major unit in the nation's transportation facilities. Their provisions were drafted after eighteen months' research by a commission consisting of five members of the senate and five of the house, five Democrats and five Republicans. Senator Louis J. Menges [D., East St. Louis] was chairman. Lieut. Gov. John Stelle and Speaker Hugh W. Cross were ex-officio members.

Public Works Board to Control.

The regulation of for-hire haulers, under the new plan, would be removed from the Illinois commerce commission and placed in the department of public works with a $400,000 appropriation for administration.

Under the commerce commission, the tenor of the statutes toward trucking has been the same as that toward railroads. The common carriers [trucks offering their services to the public] have been treated as monopolies. The few who obtained certificates of convenience and necessity were supposed to have exclusive rights on their prescribed routes. A majority has been operating outside the law, constantly exposed to injunctions by railroads or competitors. The new laws would remove all exclusive privileges from common carrier permits.

Another tender spot under present statutes has been the attempt by the commission to fix tarifs. A few obeyed the law and filed their rates with the commission. Competitors, not obeying the law, then used this information to undercut.

Explodes Monopoly Fiction.

The theory of the present tarif regulations is that trucking is a monopoly and the fixation of prices is necessary to protect the public. The laws explode this fiction and recognize that competition will protect the public from any conspiracy to hike charges. They would let the economic laws of supply and demand have sole control of tarifs.

Some of the truckers appearing before the legislative committee asked for regulations to maintain profitable tarifs on an argument that without this legal support cut-throat operators without the costs of reasonable safety requirements get the business. The commission decided it was better to establish and enforce safety requirements, and in this way abate unfair competition.

Every truck owner must prove financial responsibility or have public liability and property damage insurance. Drivers are limited to twelve hours at the wheel and fifteen hours on duty in any twenty-four hours.

Must Pass Safety Test.

Every truck would be required to pass a safety test, similar to the Chicago inspections, and the city tests would be recognized by the state.

To abate crime, every truck would have to have the name and address of the owner painted on the body. This is the same as the Chicago ordinance. This identification is believed necessary because thieves find it too easy to shift license plates, now the main means of identification. An abatement of crime is urgent because 2 million dollars' worth of farm produce was stolen and transported in trucks in Illinois last year.

Peddlers outside of cities, also known as gypsy merchants, would have to carry bills of sales for the property they offer for sale. Except within and contiguous to municipalities, for-hire carriers would be required to carry bills of lading.

CENTRALIA OIL WELLS NUMBER MORE THAN 1,000

Centralia, Ill., July 1.—(AP)—The Lake Centralia-Salem oil pool passed the 1,000 mark in the number of producing wells this week with the completion of twenty-five, including the record setting No. 10 Lee. The field has 1,015 in production.

Marion county still awaited an initial production test at the Menhall No. 1 Benoist, a mile north of Sandoval, expected as soon as the construction of a 10,000 barrel storage tank is completed. Its production has been estimated at 1,500 to 3,000 barrels daily.

For the first time in several weeks new locations exceeded completions in the eastern Fayette county field, indicating a pickup in activity. Twenty producing wells were completed this week and the locations numbered twenty-one.

Propose Big Utility Sale to Tennessee

New York, July 1.—(AP)—A plan is being studied by Tennessee political leaders for that state to purchase Commonwealth and Southern corporation electric properties there, reliable sources said today.

The plan was said to have been proposed by Mayor Tom Cummings of Nashville as a result of the failure of congress to sanction the $78,600,000 deal whereby the Tennessee Valley authority and several municipalities would take over the power company properties. That deal expired last night.

Political sources said they understood Cummings was to discuss the plan with Gov. Prentice Cooper and other state officials.

Three Advantages Claimed.

Although Cummings was said to have originated the plan chiefly to help his city and Chattanooga in the event TVA, C. & S., and municipalities involved cannot agree on further extension to permit congressional approval, the proposal was said to have the following advantages, outlined by Cummings, for the state as compared with the original plan:

1. It would give the state at the outset new revenues amounting to more than $800,000 of the million or more a year in taxes which would be lost under the TVA plan.

2. It would retain considerable control over the vast development of Tennessee valley power in the hands of the state rather than in the TVA which is a federal agency.

Would Prevent Duplication.

3. It would prevent duplication by the municipalities of existing power facilities in the event either that congress does not sanction the TVA-C. & S. agreement at this session, or TVA, C. & S., and the municipalities cannot agree on an extension of the expired agreement.

Cummings was said to have made his tentative proposal to Wendell L. Willkie, president of C. & S., and Wall street bankers during his visit here this week. Willkie, asked about the report, said any comment would have to come from Cummings.

Investment banking sources said, however, that tentative questions had been asked about the marketability of a $45,000,000 issue of 2 per cent state bonds to finance the state purchase proposal.

UNITED AIR LINES JUNE TRAFIC FAR ABOVE OLD PEAK

June and the final day of the month established new monthly and daily records for the United Air Lines, Harold Crary, vice president in charge of trafic, announced yesterday.

During June the company's transports flew 15,200,000 revenue passenger miles, a 14 per cent increase over the previous peak of 13,193,890 miles flown in August, 1937. The June total was 19 per cent above that of May, and 38 per cent ahead of June, 1938.

"We attribute the record breaking trafic to the upswing in general business conditions, coupled with increased air travel to the New York and San Francisco world's fairs," said Crary. "In addition United and other air lines are supporting their sales promotion with the greatest newspaper and other advertising campaign in the history of air transportation, and this is having material effect."

MAY UNEMPLOYMENT UNDER 10 MILLION 1ST TIME SINCE DECEMBER

New York, July 1.—(AP)—The National Industrial Conference board, a private organization supported by large corporations, said today unemployment in the United States fell below 10,000,000 in May for the first time since December. The total estimated for May was 9,881,000, about the same as last October, and 2.9 per cent below the April figure.

Total employment for May was estimated at 44,645,000, or 1 per cent above. Largest increase was due to settlement of the bituminous coal strike.

Residential building employment continued its increase but manufacturing showed a larger than seasonal decline in employment, partly due to labor troubles. Agriculture showed a less than seasonal pickup in employment.

"Emergency" labor totals, including the WPA, CCC and federal projects works program continued to dwindle, dropping another 3.8 per cent to 2,918,000, after an April drop of 8.6 per cent.

FIGHT FOR SLUM CLEARANCE WILL BE CONTINUED

Building Congress to Make Plans.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Plans for continuing the efforts to make possible the rehabilitation of slum and "blighted" areas with private capital will be taken up at a special meeting of the board of directors of the Chicago Building congress, Paul D. Angell, secretary of the organization, said yesterday. The date of the meeting will be announced later, he said.

The Chicago Building congress was the original sponsor of the enabling legislation which would have authorized the creation of public service building corporations to rebuild and renovate depreciated districts. The public service building corporation bills were passed by the Illinois senate by a vote of 35 to 3, but were killed by a filibuster in the house of representatives Thursday afternoon after one of them had been advanced to third reading.

Aided Land Assembly.

The bills sought to solve the problem of land assembly in slum areas by setting up housing companies as public utility corporations with the power to acquire part of their sites by condemnation. They would have been subject to regulation by the Illinois state housing board.

"The defeat of the public service building corporation bills," Angell said, "has delayed but not ended the efforts of the Chicago Building congress and other representative Chicago organizations to obtain legislation which will make possible the rebuilding of dilapidated and unsanitary slum and 'blighted' areas. The depreciation of property in Chicago and other cities continues and the problem is gradually becoming more acute. Inaction cannot solve it.

Educating the Public.

"The arguments that have been presented for and against the public service building corporation plan have helped educate the public to a realization of this problem. When the extent of the emergency is fully realized there will be such a great demand for action to permit private capital to go to work restoring property values and putting the building trades to work that opposition will melt."

Angell said that the congress will study the specific objections that have been raised against the plan and that the proposed legislation will probably be revised somewhat in an attempt to satisfy these objectors.

Others Want Chicago Plan.

"Meanwhile," he said, "the attention of real estate men, the construction industry, and the building trades throughout the country has been focused upon the Chicago slum clearance plan as embodied in the public service building corporation bills.

"Several groups in New York state are working on legislation based on the Chicago plan which will be presented at the next session of the legislature in that state. Other groups are making like studies in Pennsylvania, Ohio, and Michigan."

CHICAGO OFFICE TO HANDLE WAGE LAW IN 3 STATES

Administration of the wages and hour law in Illinois, Indiana, and Wisconsin will be directed from Chicago offices in the Merchandise Mart under new plans for decentralization announced yesterday. Arthur Carstens of the Chicago office made the announcement after a conference with Elmer F. Andrews, administrator of the law.

Sixteen regional offices are planned under a new national organization announced by Andrews. An office in Minneapolis will supervise operations in Minnesota, Montana, and North and South Dakota; one in Kansas City will handle Kansas, Missouri, Iowa, and Nebraska.

Armed with a $2,500,000 appropriation to start the new fiscal year which began yesterday, Andrews said the wage-hour division is prepared to "move promptly against violators" of the law.

Watts Denies Agreeing to Be Bank Official

Harry C. Watts, whose absence from the city was blamed for the delay in the opening of the Rogers Park State bank, returned to Chicago yesterday and denied he had agreed to serve as its chairman. He also denied the existence of a check covering his subscription to bank stock.

Harry C. Watts.

Lack of the check was blamed Friday for the bank's inability to open on schedule yesterday, an event which Rogers Park business men had planned to celebrate with parades, contests, and awards.

Said Attorney Had Check.

Rudolph H. Brunkhorst, organizer and president of the bank, said it was not opened on schedule because Watts' check was in the hands of his attorney, who was out playing golf. The business men called off their celebration, but said the various events may be carried out on July 22, the new date tentatively set by Brunkhorst for the opening.

Returning from New York after a week's visit, Watts, who is secretary of the Molly'o corporation, malted milk concern, at 111 West Jackson boulevard, said:

"What check? The first I knew of this was when I read the paper this morning. I'm not a banker and never have been. I told them [the Brunkhorst group] a month ago that I would not be chairman of the bank.

"I said I would be chairman of the subscription committee if they permitted my attorney to supervise the handling of the subscriptions. I had agreed to buy some stock, but I hadn't written a check. I might still buy stock."

Brunkhorst Adds Nothing.

Notified of the Watts statement, Brunkhorst's only comment was that he had nothing to add to his statement of Friday, and that he would take no further action toward opening of the bank until Monday, at the earliest.

The state auditor's office said a skeleton staff would be on hand Monday in the event an application is filed for a charter. Thus far, only a certificate to organize has been issued, and the bank cannot open until the state officials conduct their examination.

In delaying the start of business until July 22, Brunkhorst had announced that this would allow sufficient time for the insurance of deposits by the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation from the opening date. The bank is at Clark street and Lunt avenue.

SURFACE LINES, MOTOR COACH TRAFIC HEAVIER

The number of revenue passengers carried by the Chicago Surface lines increased 1.42 per cent in June over the level of a year ago, the company announced yesterday. May trafic had increased 2.12 per cent, reversing a lower trend shown in the year-to-year comparison for many preceding months.

June trafic of the Chicago Motor Coach company rose 3.25 per cent. The number of passengers carried in the first six months of the year was 1.17 per cent above the level of last year.

Figures of the Chicago Rapid Transit company [elevated lines] had not been compiled yesterday.

BUSINESS TOES NEXT HALF YEAR MARK GINGERLY

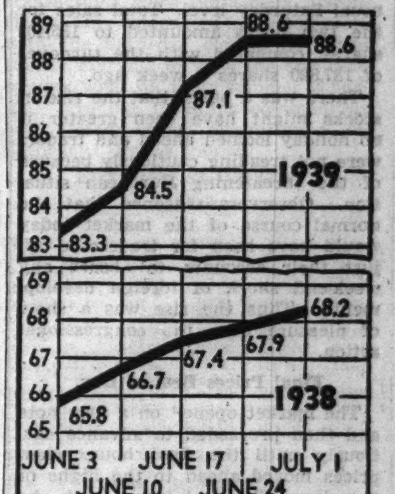
June Is Classed as Recovery Month.

BY LELAND FORRESTER.

Most lines of business improved a little last week, and those which declined held largely to the normal seasonal pattern.

Having another week of good showings to its credit, June expired with a record of being a period of recovery. American business enters a new half year with the prospect of curtailments in some lines this week while the nation takes a day off to celebrate its independence.

In spite of the June rally, industrial activity at the close of the first half of 1939 was at a lower level than at the beginning of the year. The June rise was not enough to offset the poor showings in April and May, when the usual spring vigor was lacking.



The chart traces the course of industrial activity in the last four weeks, as measured by the Associated Press seasonally adjusted composite index, and shows the corresponding activity a year ago (1929-'30 average equals 100).

Monetary Situation Paramount.

Developments in the monetary situation in congress overshadowed other domestic financial news last week. The senate allowed the President's special powers over money to lapse. Administration forces will attempt to revive them next week.

The treasury, influenced by the prospective loss of its power to buy foreign silver at artificially high prices, cut its price to the London "free market" level. The action jarred the world silver markets and threatened a crisis in Mexico, whose silver mining industry has been supported almost entirely by American purchases. Mexico's silver industry in turn has been the largest single source of that government's revenues.

Trade Shows Improvement.

The branches of American business which improved last week included retail and wholesale trade, railroad freight loadings, electric power production, cotton textile manufacturing, and the volume of new financing and engineering construction awards.

Steel production, automobile output, residential construction, and bank clearings slipped below the levels of the preceding week.

Railroad freight loadings climbed

STOCKS ADVANCE WITH ROOSEVELT POWERS CURBED

Rise Occurs in Spite of Impending Holiday.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 1.—Stocks advanced fractions to 1 point today in the wake of the three decisive blows struck at the Roosevelt administration by congress last night. Practically all sections of the list took part in the continuation of yesterday's advance.

The number of issues showing net gains on the day illustrated the tenor of the advance. Of the 421 issues that changed hands 232 finished behind plus signs, only eighty-three issues lost ground, and 106 were unchanged. Measured by the Dow-Jones averages the industrials rose 1.10 point and the rails and utilities contributed lesser advances.

Today's rise in stocks came with many traders absent from the street, to remain away until after the Independence day holiday.

Banking Activities Halted.

Banking activities also were at a standstill with the inauguration of the Saturday closing during July and August.

Volume, however, remained at the usual Saturday level. Total sales for the two hours amounted to 185,400 shares, compared with the turnover of 187,820 shares a week ago.

There was a belief that the rise in stocks might have been greater if no holiday loomed ahead and traders were not treading cautiously because of the threatening European situation. Observers reasoned that the normal course of the market today would have been for traders to adjust their accounts to absorb any week-end shock of foreign developments. Thus the rise was a show of pleasure over the congressional action.

Final Prices Best of Day.

The market opened on a firm note and then proceeded to advance cautiously until the final hour, when prices moved ahead to the highs of the day. Chemical issues took the honors of the day and closed with gains ranging as high as 2½ points, led by du Pont. United States Rubber proved the market leader on a turnover of 5,000 shares and advanced a half point.

Aside from the Washington and European developments, analysts saw in the upturn a reflection of the widening base of business activities that have been apparent during the week. Retail trade, especially, it was felt, assumed more momentum.

Steel shares were up all along the line despite advises from the leading steel making centers that production would drop next week because of the holiday.

Gains of a point or more were registered by Procter & Gamble, Westinghouse Electric, Coca Cola, Union Carbide, International Harvester, Kroger Grocery, and Johns-Manville.

CHICAGO GRAIN TRADE SHRINKS TO LOW RECORD

CEA Cites Small Supply and Federal Loans.

Trading in grain futures on the Chicago Board of Trade in the fiscal year ended June 30 was the smallest in any year since the government began keeping records in 1922, the Commodity Exchange administration reported yesterday.

The volume was 6,253,358,000 bushels, or 41 per cent less than in the preceding year. These dealings in futures contracts included 4,372,127,000 bushels of wheat, 1,493,898,000 bushels of corn, 270,785,000 bushels of oats, and 116,548,000 bushels of rye.

The decline in wheat trading was 47 per cent, in corn 20 per cent, in oats 23 per cent, and in rye 25 per cent.

CEA Analyzes Decline.

The CEA said a large available supply of grain and the federal loan programs were the principle causes of the lower volume. It said the loan programs "narrowed the range of price movements, thus discouraging speculation and reducing the need for hedging."

Trading in grain futures yesterday was of a preholiday character. Prices held within narrow limits and averaged slightly lower.

Mills were credited with buying wheat futures on the Chicago Board of Trade in the early part of the session, but as soon as the buying ceased the market settled back. Closing trades were at net losses of ⅛ to ⅞ cent a bushel. Liverpool prices closed equal to ⅝ to ⅞ cent higher.

The Winnipeg market had a holiday.

Mills Buy Cash Wheat.

An eastern mill was credited yesterday with having paid for 265,000 bushels of cash wheat delivered on July contracts and is understood to have chartered vessels to move the grain to Buffalo.

Cash houses bought July and sold September corn yesterday at 2¼ cents a bushel premium for the latter, the widest spread so far this season. Closing sales on futures were unchanged compared with Friday's final sales.

Oats futures closed ¼ to ½ cent lower and rye was ½ cent lower.

BUSINESS WARNS OF SNAGS IN HUGE LENDING SCHEME

Asks Clear Consideration of Questions Involved.

Washington, D. C., July 1.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt's program for government lending to stimulate business was criticized by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States in its weekly Washington review, issued today.

The chamber warned that "far-reaching proposals of one kind and another, now before congress to extend the uses of the national credit for nongovernmental purposes, calls for the clearest possible understanding of the deeper issues involved."

It did not mention specifically the President's $3,860,000,000 proposed lending program, the Mead bill providing for government loans to small business or other pending measures.

Demands Pause in Program.

"It is obvious," the review continued, "that the elaborate and complicated character of some of these proposals may lead to confusion. Before any action is taken to project the government further into the economic field, adequate consideration should be given to such vital questions as these:

"1. Would a broad extension of government into the field of investment banking lead to state capitalism?

"2. Would it mean that large scale government spending and lending are to become permanent, rather than emergency, functions of the federal government?

"3. Would it mean that state and municipalities are to surrender more of their independence in return for federal guaranteed loans for public improvement?

Fears Break on Investment.

"4. Would the prospect of an increasingly government dominated economy cause a further shrinkage in private investment, thereby more than offsetting any improvement that may result from further government lending?

"5. How many of the loans actually would be self-liquidating, and how many of them eventually would be charged against the tax payers?

"6. What is the limit to which the government's contingent liabilities—already $7,000,000,000—could be increased through the self-perpetuating character of the revolving funds that would be set up?

"7. Would this temporarily painless process of pledging the national credit 'without increasing debt or taxes' open the door for still more government lending agencies?"

The chamber said that "these and other legitimate questions should be answered to the satisfaction of the public."

IRON FIRM LABOR CASE WEIGHED BY NLRB EXAMINER

Trial Examiner Herbert Wenzel of the national labor relations board yesterday took under advisement a case involving a C. I. O. union's complaint against the Interlake Iron corporation.

The union, local 1657 of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers of America, accused the company of discriminating against its members. The hearing, which began May 1 and which cost the company $7,770 for a record of the testimony alone, centered around Interlake's "merit" system of rating employes.

An intervener was the Interlake Employes association, an independent union, whose attorney, John F. Cusack, joined counsel for the company in presenting evidence in denial of the charges. The C. I. O. charged the association was dominated by Interlake.

Wenzel also took under advisement motions by the association and the company to dismiss the charges.

BOND MARKET CLOSES FIRMER; TRADE IS LIGHT

New York, July 1.—(AP)—The bond market threw off lagging tendencies in the final hour of today's short session and modest plus signs dotted the list at the close. United States government loans were an exception, yielding 2-32 to 14-32 of a point on the slimmest sort of offerings.

Strength in the foreign dollar section lent emphasis to the conclusion in investment quarters that nothing of a particularly upsetting nature would happen in Europe over the week-end. Bonds of Italy were particularly sought after and some of the South American loans gave a good account of themselves.

Transfers of $1,505,500, face value, were the smallest for a Saturday session since 1918 and compared with $2,502,000 last Saturday.

TRADE, INDUSTRY STEP WARILY AT HALF YEAR MARK

June Is Classed as Month of Mild Recovery.

to a new high mark for the year in the latest week reported upon—the one which ended June 24. Loadings totaled 642,987 cars, compared with 637,873 in the preceding week and 558,788 in the corresponding 1938 period.

New securities offered to the public increased to more than 123 million dollars, of which about 40 per cent represented new capital and 60 per cent represented refunding operations. Figures for the preceding week and the 1938 week were 93 millions and 15 millions, respectively.

Index Above Year Ago.

The Associated Press composite index of industrial activity, influenced by a sharp drop in residential construction, held unchanged at 88.6 per cent of the 1929-'30 average. It stood at 68.2 per cent in the corresponding 1938 week. The index, with its seasonally adjusted components, compared as follows:

	Latest week.	Prev. week	Year ago.
Composite index	88.6	88.6	68.2
Automobile prod.	68.0	72.0	37.9

Total carloadings	66.1	65.7	57.8

*New 1939 low.

Here are some of the other developments of last week:

President Roosevelt signed the tax revision bill, which granted concessions designed to encourage business. Among other things it removed the undistributed corporation profits tax and substituted a flat 18 per cent income levy on corporations earning more than $25,000 a year.

The Ford Motor company, which discontinued tractor production ten years ago, demonstrated a new lightweight tractor for small farms.

Jones Opposes Stock Scheme.

Jesse H. Jones, head of the new Federal Loan agency, made it known that he opposes the Roosevelt administration proposal that the government start buying stocks of business enterprises in an effort to get more capital to work. The new agency, headed by Jones, is designed to consolidate the lending activities of several old agencies. Emil Schram, formerly of Illinois and now a director of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, is expected to succeed Jones as head of the RFC.

The New York and Chicago Stock exchanges decided against proposals to close on Saturdays during the summer.

Directors of the John R. Thompson company displaced John R. Thompson Jr. as president and treasurer of the restaurant chain. Thompson, son of the founder of the company, had been its president since winning a bitter proxy fight in 1933.

JUNE RECEIPTS OF LIVE STOCK UNUSUALLY LOW

Despite the larger production of live stock this year, receipts of meat animals at the Chicago stockyards last month were second smallest for June in fifty-five years. The yards handled 609,658 cattle, calves, hogs, and sheep, a drop of 22 per cent from the May total. This compared with 650,981 a year ago and 658,073 two years ago, which were also small June totals.

The small June total, this year, was due to a sharp drop in cattle and sheep receipts.

The hog run at 329,970 was largest in five years for June, but the increase failed to offset the decline in other live stock.

Chicago receipts for three years follow:

RUBBER COMPANIES.

Many investors make the mistake of thinking only of tires when they are considering rubber company stocks. Tires do make up a huge market. But the thousands of other products turned out by these companies should also be an important consideration to a person examining stocks in this group. One company alone makes more than 32,000 different items. Research chemists are at work developing still others. Competition between large and small companies to create new markets for rubber products is unusually strong.

Just as the output of a particular company is important to the investors other factors should be weighed with equal care. The industry's past has been characterized by severe fluctuations in sales volumes, prices, and earnings. In recent years, however, it has seen a change which may lead to stability. Last year, for instance, the rubber group reported profits only 18 per cent below those for 1937 while all industrial corporations had a decline of 47 per cent from the 1937 level.

This showing was quite different from the course of net income for ten leading rubber firms in years just before the depression. Their income rose to a record $51,900,000 in 1927, fell to $12,900,000 in 1928, mounted to $38,100,000 in 1929, and then dropped off to a $20,000,000 net loss in 1930.

The explanation for the wide swings in income of rubber companies is twofold. First, fluctuations of crude rubber prices brought huge inventory losses. Second, an unstable selling price structure resulted in sharply reduced profits.

An international agreement to stabilize crude rubber prices was adopted in 1934. Since then the industry appears to have moved from a period of low profit speculation to higher margin stability. Price stabilization broke down in 1937. But crude rubber prices have varied little in the last year. Whether this voluntary arrangement is only a temporary or a permanent cure remains to be seen of course. There is no assurance that the wide sweeps of years past will not occur again.

At the same time tire life, oddly enough, has been increasing. By producing tires of better and longer lasting quality manufacturers have cut their own replacement business. Some authorities on rubber claim that automobile production ended its long term growth about ten years ago. If this theory is right, then rubber companies may be up against a stone wall for enlarged markets for replacement and original equipment in the automobile field.

Growth of the mechanical goods divisions of rubber companies has been one of the major recent developments of the industry. Perhaps the expanding production and markets for rubber goods holds the key to the industry's future. It would give the industry a stable support for its speculative tire activities. Moreover, mechanical goods for the most part are custom made. Since the wide range of products cuts down severe competition in any one item it appears they will bring a higher profit margin. This should reflect in the industry's aggregate earnings.

Investors should not forget, however, that tires still contribute by far the main source of revenue. And large firms which produce a great number of mechanical goods are, in some cases, at a disadvantage with small companies which specialize in one or a few particular products.

Bondholders Denied Right to Attach Rail Property

Toledo, O., July 1.—[Special.]—Federal court today denied Fred H. Hawley of Toledo and Walter Smith of Painesville, O., the right to attach cars of the Canadian Pacific railroad as guarantors of a Soo Line bond issue.

SOUTH WINNING LARGER SHARE OF PORK TRADE

Pig Output for Section Is Highest on Record.

Farmers and packers in the south during the remainder of this year and in 1940 will command a large share of the pork trade in this country, live stock men at the Chicago stockyards said yesterday. They based their prediction on the survey of pig production released by the department of agriculture last week.

Production of pigs in all southern regions this spring was the highest on record, and more sows are bred for fall farrowing in the south than for any autumn on government records. Although all regions in both the north and south show increases over recent years, the corn belt states raised 9 per cent fewer pigs this spring than in 1933, the year the AAA took a hand in curtailing pig raising in the north and encouraging greater corn and hog production in the south.

Pig Output Increases.

The eight south Atlantic states this spring raised 30 per cent more pigs than in 1933, and the eight south central states showed a 20 per cent increase over six years ago. The two southern regions have 39 per cent more sows to farrow next fall than they had in 1933. Farmers in the twelve north central states are keeping 17 per cent fewer sows for fall farrowing this year than six years ago.

Of the 5,092,000 sows held for fall pig raising the south has 1,720,000, or 33 per cent, and the corn belt has 3,003,000, or 58 per cent. In the fall of 1933 a total of 5,207,000 sows farrowed pigs, 70 per cent of them in the corn belt and 23 per cent in the south.

Pig Output by Districts.

The attached table indicates comparisons for the two years [figures in thousands of head, last three ciphers omitted]:

	Spring pigs farrowed.		Sows held for fall farrowing.
Region—	1939.	1933.	1939.	1933.
East North Central	13,399	13,475	1,500	1,550
West North Central	24,696	28,462	1,503	2,106
South Atlantic	3,893	2,976	545	399
South Central	7,449	6,190	1,175	837

Assuming that litters will be about average next fall, live stock men estimate that the corn belt this year will raise 7,760,000 fewer pigs than in the entire year of 1933, whereas the south will produce 5,080,000 more, not far from an equal shift in production from the corn belt to the cotton belt.

Southern farmers and packers are able to turn out pork at much less cost than the northern industry because of the difference in wages. Labor is cheap in the south, which enables that section to compete successfully for pork trade even in the northern cities.

Week's Hog Market Erratic.

The market for hogs at Chicago was extremely erratic during last week. Some of the light and light butchers closed as much as 25 cents above a week ago, but extremely heavy butchers finished 25 cents lower. Sows were unevenly 10 cents lower to 15 cents higher, the heaviest showing the loss.

Price trends in most classes of cattle were downward last week. Steers, yearlings and heifers closed steady to 25 cents lower for the six days. Beef cows were unevenly steady to 40 cents lower. Calves held steady.

After a sharp dip early in the week there was a recovery of the lamb market, which brought the six day average to $9.70, only 10 cents under the preceding week. The close was steady with a week earlier.

American Rolling Mill Will Build New Plants

Middletown, O., July 1.—[Special.]—The American Rolling Mill company's open hearth, blooming and bar, and hot strip mill departments will be closed July 3 for one of the largest construction projects in this area, the company announced today. These mills will be replaced by new ones costing about $4,500,000.

FOREIGN COPPER BUYING ACTIVE; PRICE IS HIGHER

Purchasing for Arming Nations Reported.

Substantial sales of copper were made again yesterday at New York. Friday's business surpassed that of any other day in many years. The increased buying was attributed by dealers to demands of European countries which are building up their war machines.

About 21,000 tons of the metal, vital in the production of armaments, cleared through New York last week for the account of one European power, and brokers said this represented only a part of the full supply to be purchased by this source. Estimates placed the total at 50,000 tons.

Export Price Higher.

The export price of the metal began the week at 10 cents a pound and closed at 10:30 cents after the large purchase orders had been filled. The domestic price was firm at 10 cents a pound and dealers reported increasing difficulty in obtaining metal at that level.

Prices of other commodities followed an uneven course during the week. Trading in New York came virtually to a standstill yesterday as transactions were tentatively discontinued in cottonseed oil contracts with the Saturday closing of banks there. Markets in wool top and hide futures went on their summer schedule. Trading in other commodities had already been discontinued on Saturday. Prices follow:

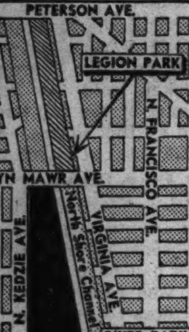
Contemplate $3,500,000 Apartment Development on Bryn Mawr Avenue

EXPECT PROJECT WILL BE READY IN FALL OF 1940

Construction Is Fireproof; 676 Living Units.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]



Shaded area is site of apartment project.

Details on what will be Chicago's largest apartment project in recent years—the Bryn Mawr village development, at Bryn Mawr avenue and the north shore channel of the sanitary district—were made public yesterday. According to Walter W. Ahlschlager, architect, it will represent a total investment in land and building of $3,500,000. There will be 676 apartments. Work is expected to be started next December, with completion scheduled for the fall of 1940.

The site covers 33.6 acres bounded on the north by Bryn Mawr avenue, on the west by a line 150 feet east of Kedzie avenue, by Foster avenue on the south, and on the east by the west line of the sanitary district property.

Project Under New Sponsors.

This is land which the sanitary district offered for sale to the Chicago park board when a report months ago said that a private housing project was contemplated. Assertions that the land was more needed for recreational purposes than for housing stirred the district trustees to action. It failed to stir the park board, however, and was turned down by that group.

The project has come to life again under different sponsorship and on a larger scale than originally contemplated. The project will be developed by the Bryn Mawr Village Apartment corporation, of which Walter W. Ahlschlager Jr., son of the architect, is president. William E. Kitzmann, real estate operator, is vice president. Other members of the corporation are Patrick Warren of the Patrick Warren Construction company, builders, and Walter W. Ahlschlager, architect.

Buildings Will Be Fireproof.

Bryn Mawr village will be entirely of fireproof construction. There will be thirty-four building units, two and three stories in height, containing 3, 3½, 4, 4½, and 5 room suites. All will be of colonial design, with exterior walls of red brick and many with pitched roofs. There will be 280 single car garage units and 360 open air private parking spaces.

Buildings will cover 16 per cent of the entire 33.6 acres. The remainder will be used for lawns, streets, and recreational space. A New England type village green is planned, 350 by 350 feet, to contain a community house, four tennis courts, a large wading pool, and a playground.

Will Have Sports Field.

In addition a sports field is planned which will contain a ball diamond and other game facilities. A business area will be set aside on Foster avenue for future development as a shopping center.

As no streets are to be dedicated to the city Bryn Mawr village will be a self-contained development, with only one main north and south thoroughfare, to be called Village drive. Opening off of it will be dead end streets leading to groups of buildings.

The only entrances to the project will be where Village drive opens into Bryn Mawr and Foster avenues. There will be gate lodges at each of these intersections.

Leased on 60 Year Term.

The 33.6 acres were leased from the Sanitary district for sixty years at a term rental of $236,250. This was done in deference to the opposition which developed when an outright sale was contemplated by the district trustees.

The annual rental of the land will be $2,700 a year for the first ten years which is on a basis of 4½ per cent on a $60,000 valuation. This will be increased slightly so that for the last thirty years the rental will be $4,500 or 4½ per cent on a valuation of $100,000.

The lessees also have an option to extend their lease thirty-nine more years, making 99 years in all. At the 61st year the rental will be 5 per cent annually on the then appraised value of the ground.

WILL REMODEL BIG HYDE PARK FLAT BUILDING

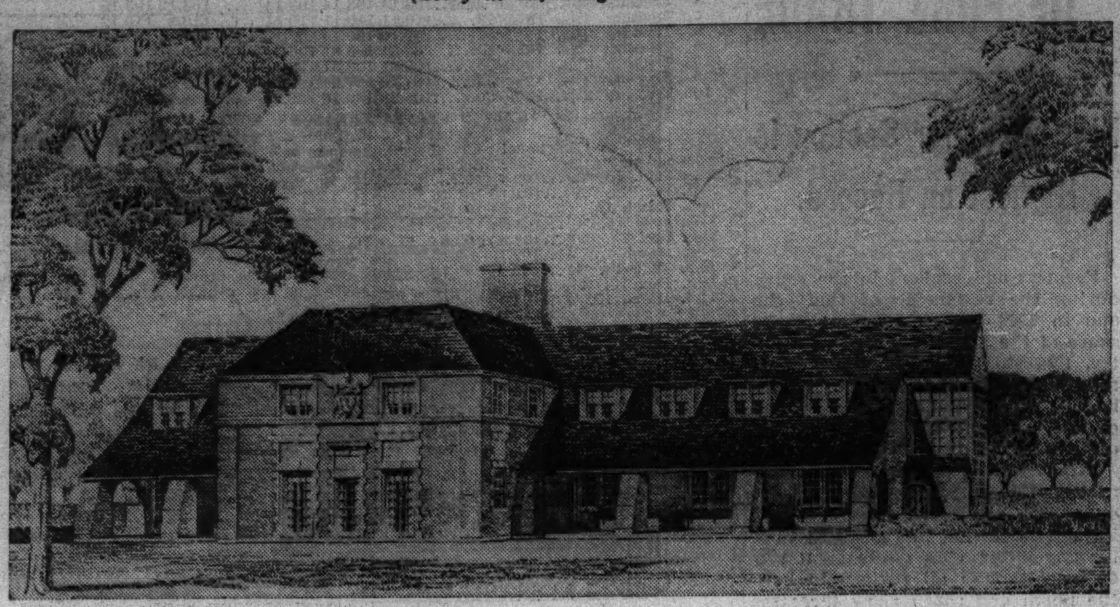
Work has been started remodeling the three story thirty-six apartment building at 5100 Hyde Park boulevard. The six and eight room suites are to be rebuilt into units of two, three, and four rooms. The building fronts east and north on Hyde Park boulevard and west on Cornell avenue. It was built in 1910 on land bought by Robert P. Smith and his two sons, Jacob P. and Edward E. Smith, in 1889. It is now owned by the 5100 Hyde Park Building corporation, which is controled by the Smith family.

Coal Association Starts Modern Basement Contest

Chicago's second modern basement contest, sponsored by the Chicago Coal Merchants association, was started yesterday and will continue until March 31, 1940. Fifteen cash prizes totaling $1,000 will be awarded to home owners of the Chicago area whose basements meet the approval of the judges.

Gift to Lake Forest Academy

(Story in adjoining column.)



Robert Work and Leland T. Atwood are architects of the above students' dining hall for Lake Forest academy. It will be made by remodeling a building given to the school, together with four and one-half acres, by Mrs. Frank P. Hixon, former president of the Illinois League of Women Voters. It will be a memorial to her late husband.

The property is at the southeast corner of Wabash avenue and 33d street, 300x174 feet. It was bought by the Huber & Huber Motor Express company, which will improve it with a two story office building and one story truck terminal, to cost a reported $80,000.

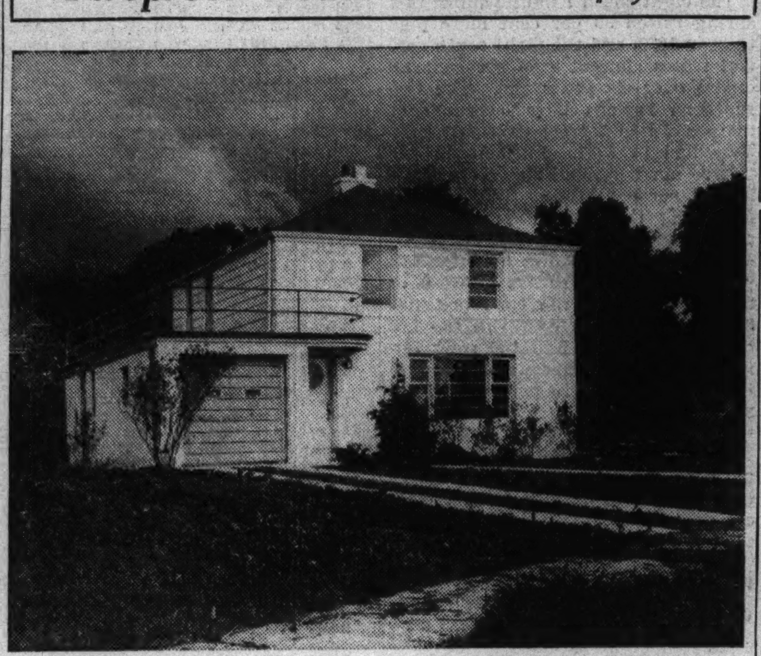
Fireproof House Built for $7,000



This is one of thirty-two new concrete masonry houses contracted for by Alexander C. Dallach, La Grange builder, and head of Wearproof Homes, Inc. It was built for and is owned by E. C. Kinney, chief chemist in Chicago for the Eastman Kodak company. It is at 1411 Sunset terrace, Western Springs, and cost a reported $7,000 for construction. The 65 by 150 foot lot cost $750 additional. It has six rooms with concrete floors upstairs and down. It has a gas fired warm air heating system with all year air conditioning features.

Contracts for 32 Concrete Homes in Western Suburbs

Wearproof Homes, Inc., of La Grange has contracted for thirty-two new fireproof concrete residences to be built in western suburbs. Alexander C. Dallach, La Grange builder, head of the corporation, yesterday outlined his building program. He expects to complete more than forty houses before the year ends.

Four homes already have been completed and three are occupied. Twelve more are under construction. Most of the building will be done in Western Springs. Two homes are under construction in Clarendon Hills, two in Elmhurst, and two in Riverside. One of the completed homes is in La Grange.

First told about in this department on Jan. 1, 1939, the homes are being built in four basic designs to meet various family problems and financial requirements. A four and one-half room house has been built for $5,500, including the lot. Or it can be built for $4,750 on an owner's lot. A six room house has been erected for $7,000, plus $750 for a 65 by 150 foot lot.

The houses have exterior walls of lightweight concrete blocks covered with a Swedish textured waterproofing three-quarters of an inch thick. According to Dallach this surfacing is new to this country. Rains wash it clean, he said. Gypsum block is used in the interior walls.

TWO NORTH SIDE FLAT BUILDINGS ARE PURCHASED

Two large north side apartment deals were reported yesterday by Baird & Warner. The forty flats at 1320-30 Estes avenue were bought by the 1320 Estes Building corporation from Raymond H. Trott, S. E. Simmons, and William S. Innis, trustees, for $95,000, according to the revenue stamps on the deed. The property is 129x175. Joseph Korman was broker for the buyer.

The forty-two apartments at 4738-50 Winthrop avenue were purchased by Grayling Apartments, Inc., from the Phoenix Mutual Life Insurance company for an indicated $92,000. I. G. Goldstein was broker for the buyer.

NORTH SHORE SCHOOL GIVEN LAND, BUILDING

Mrs. F. P. Hixon Donor to Lake Forest Academy.

Land and a building with a total value of about $150,000 were given recently to Lake Forest academy by Mrs. Frank P. Hixon, as a memorial to her late husband's interest in the education of American youth. This announcement was made by John Wayne Richards, headmaster since 1913, at the preparatory school's eighty-first commencement exercises.

Mrs. Frank P. Hixon.

The gift consists of four and one-half acres of land adjoining the campus to the east and is occupied by a large service building.

Building To Be Remodeled.

The property is bounded by Rosemary road on the north, Sheridan road on the east, and Maplewood road on the south. The building is to be remodeled from plans by Robert Work, architect, and Leland T. Atwood, associate, into a school dining hall with a seating capacity of 300 persons.

The new gift initiates a series of plans for the further improvement of the school's physical plant and equipment. The establishment of a faculty retirement fund and the upbuilding of a larger endowment also are contemplated by the academy's board of trustees.

Palmer Heads Trustees.

The board is headed by Ernest Palmer, a member of the class of 1903, and now director of the department of insurance of Illinois.

Under the chairmanship of James R. Offield, Chicago patent attorney and an alumnus and trustee of the school, a committee of alumni is engaged in raising funds for a new gymnasium to replace the present structure, which was completed in 1906. Approximately $100,000 will be required, it was said.

PLAN $235,000 BUSINESS UNIT IN LA GRANGE

One of the largest business building projects to be announced for western suburbs in several years is planned for La Grange. The northwest corner of La Grange road and Harris avenue, 124 by 165 feet, is to be improved with a one and two story building representing a reported investment in land and building of $235,000. The corner store, 72x165 feet, the second floor, and the basement under the entire building have been leased to Montgomery Ward & Co. for twenty years. The Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea company has leased the one story fifty foot store for five years with an option for five years more on a flat rental basis. This section is scheduled for Nov. 1 completion and the Montgomery Ward unit by Dec. 1.

A $135,000 construction loan has been made by the owning syndicate agents and P. E. Costin of Baird & Warner, Inc.

New Suburban Residence

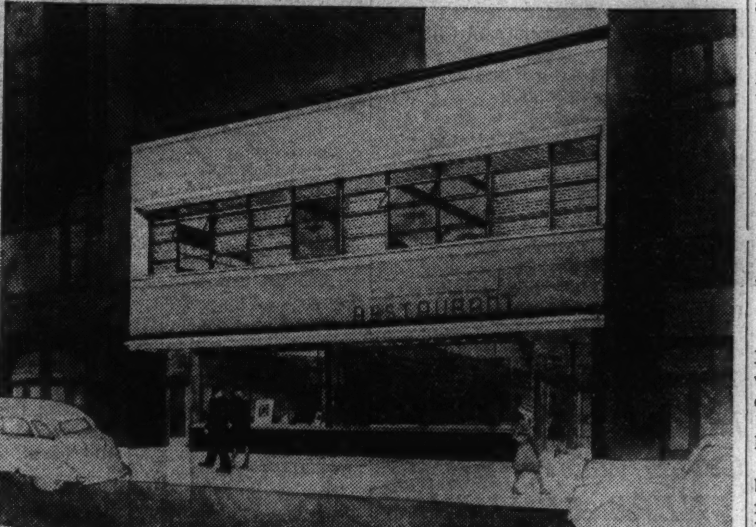
This is the residence of A. Fournier at 12013 South 75th avenue, Palos Heights. It was erected by the Robert Bartlett Building corporation, developer of the community in the area surrounding Harlem avenue and 123d street. It cost a reported $6,800, including a lot with 120 feet of frontage. The down payment was $800. The owner has monthly payments of $48 on the 20 year FHA insured loan. These include principal and interest payments, taxes, and insurance.

Plan Another Loop "Taxpayer"



Wreckers are finishing slicing off the top three floors of the five story building a 12-18 West Jackson boulevard, erected in 1882. It was partly burned last April. The two lower floors are to be rebuilt from plans by Architect Walter McDougall, into a modern "taxpayer." The entire front will be of structural glass in beige, white, black, and jade green. Part of the space will be occupied by an air conditioned restaurant. Completion is scheduled for about Sept. 1. The reported cost will be $45,000. The premises are owned by Edwin L. Brand Jr. and Walter C. Atwell, trustees for the E. L. Brand properties. The land fronts fifty feet on the boulevard and is eighty feet deep.

APPROVE OFFER OF $462,000 FOR UPTOWN REALTY

The offer of the Lumbermens Mutual Casualty company, of which James S. Kemper is president, to buy the southwest corner of Sheridan road and Lawrence avenue for $462,000 cash was approved by the bondholders yesterday. The offer was made several weeks ago. Sudler & Co. represented all parties in the sale.

The eight story building fronts 250 feet on Sheridan road and 150 feet on Lawrence. The Lumbermens company occupies six and one-half floors and has over one thousand employés. The remainder of the building is leased to stores and small tenants. The building is said to be fully occupied.

The structure is being purchased through a bondholders' protective committee representing a $1,330,000 bond issue.

BUYS KENWOOD RESIDENCE.

Dr. Chauncey C. Maher bought the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Al Marks, 4908 Ellis avenue, lot 50 by 150 feet, for $10,000, according to Willard T. Orr of the Orr Realty company.

CO-OPERATION OF REAL ESTATE BROKERS WELCOMED

BUILD 31 NEW RESIDENCES IN PALOS HEIGHTS

Eleven Are Under Way; Six Have Been Sold.

Thirty-one new homes will be completed or under construction in Palos Heights during June, according to the Robert Bartlett Building corporation. This is a community development centering about Harlem avenue and 123d street and adjoining the Navajo Country club.

Eleven of the houses are under construction. Six of them have been sold. Ground will be broken for twenty more on which construction will be started immediately on Federal Housing administration approval of plans and specifications submitted.

Five and Six Room Homes.

The thirty-one homes include five and six room brick homes and frame dwellings. All are to be built within a price range of $5,975 to $8,000, including land, Robert Bartlett said. Each will be of a different design, with early American and rural English types predominating.

Only one residence to 120 feet of frontage is permitted in the residential streets of the community, according to its zoning and deed restrictions. This permits only ten homes to each block, five on each side of the street.

Community Three Years Old.

Although only 3 years old, Palos Heights has been transformed from a wooded countryside into a suburban community of 134 owner occupied homes. More than 300 additional home sites have been sold.

The Palos Heights public school built two years ago already is overflowing with pupils. To remedy this Bartlett has donated a 52,500 square foot site for an additional school at the northeast corner of 69th avenue and 127th street. Work is scheduled to start on the second school building, a three classroom brick structure, on June 15.

VAN BUREN STREET LEASE.

National Cafeteria, Inc., has leased from the American National Bank and Trust company, trustee, the stores at 68-70 West Van Buren street for five years at a reported annual rental of $5,670. Thomas J. Lally was broker.

Ten days in camp for 25,000 children in forty-one years! That is the record of Camp Gray at Saugatuck, Mich., which is conducted by the Presbyterian church in Chicago. All these children have come from underprivileged neighborhoods in the city. The season opens this week and members from all the congregations are working to raise funds to send 600 more children for the forty-second season. The vacationers will be selected from the families on the rolls of the thirteen settlement houses of the Chicago presbytery. The church extension board estimates that ten days for each child costs $10.

The music camp of the international Walther league begins its second week today at Arcadia, Mich., under the direction of William F. Bertram, principal of Immanuel Lutheran school, Elmhurst. The camp activities, outside the music, are supervised by W. F. Weiherman, manager of Arcadia camp for the last sixteen years. The music courses are arranged for boys and girls from 10 to 18 years old and special orchestral programs are given on weekends.

Miss Mary Kenny is the instructor.

Pause for a Cooling Drink

Creating a picturesque summer scene, two pretty youngsters paused last week after a brisk ride through the woods for a cool drink of water. They were (left to right) Betsy Shaw, 7031 Cregier avenue, and Adelyn Each, 7546 Saginaw avenue, who had been practicing in advance for the annual Lincolnshire Country club horse show to be held the evening of July 16 in Crete. The show promises to be bigger and better than ever, with thirty-two events scheduled. Seventy riders of all ages have entered in the various competitions. William Pearson, 10606 Avenue E, is heading the horse show committee. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

TRAFFIC DEATH TOLL IS HIGHEST IN SOUTH AREA

5 Months Study Shows Status of Wards.

The south and southwest parts of the city made the poorest sectional showing during the first five months of the year from the standpoint of trafic fatalities, according to George W. Fleming, general secretary of Mayor Kelly's Keep Chicago Safe committee.

Of the fifty wards in the city, nine showed trafic death increases of three or more during the five month period as compared with a like period in 1938. Five of these nine are on the south and southwest sides.

Eleven of the nineteen southern wards showed increased trafic fatalities in the opening five months, while only eight showed decreases, Fleming's figures reveal. As to the thirty-one wards in other parts of the city, sixteen showed increases this year, thirteen had decreases, and two remained even.

10 More in Entire City.

All fifty wards had a total of 261 motor vehicle fatalities in the five month period, as against 251 for the corresponding five months last year, a gain of nearly 4 per cent.

The south side wards with increased trafic deaths this year, the total for each and the gain over last year, are:

First, 7 deaths, up 2. Second, 11 5-6 deaths, up 4⅓. Third, 5 deaths, up ½. Fifth, 5½ deaths, up 1. Eighth, 5⅚ deaths, up 3½. Ninth, 6½ deaths, up 1½. Eleventh, 6⅓ deaths, up 2 5-6. Fifteenth, 6⅓ deaths, up 4⅓. Sixteenth, 6⅓ deaths, up 1⅓. Eighteenth, 9½ deaths, up 3½. Nineteenth, 10½ deaths, up 1½.

Mr. Fleming explained the fractional figures by saying that wherever an accident occurred on a ward boundary line, it was scored partly for each ward involved, in order to maintain a true comparison.

Safest ward in the city during the first five months was the 49th, on the far north side, where not one trafic death occurred during the period under study, the compilation shows. The 49th was chalked up with 6½ deaths in the comparable period of last year. Last year's only death-free ward for the five months was the 23d, on the far west side.

Two Have One Fatality.

The 7th ward, comprising the south shore, and the 50th which adjoins the 49th on the west, were tied for second safest, with one death in each.

A south side ward, the 9th, which includes most of the territory between Lake Calumet and Halsted street, from 95th street to the city limits, showed the greatest decrease in fatalities this year. There were only four deaths as against thirteen in the similar period last year.

Similar improved records were made by the 13th and 17th wards, which had three fewer deaths each, and the 4th, 6th, 7th, 10th, and 14th wards.

SOUTHWEST SIDE BUREAU TO HELP CURB ACCIDENTS

With an eye on the enviable reputation of Evanston as a leader in accident prevention, representatives of Brainerd, Beverly Hills, and Morgan Park civic and social organizations met recently to organize a community Accident Prevention bureau at a mass gathering in Ridge park fieldhouse, 96th street and Longwood drive. The project was initiated by the board of directors of the Beverly Y. M. C. A. and the Southwest Kiwanis club under the chairmanship of Fred J. Leverenz, safety director of the club and a director of the "Y."

H. E. Spoerer of Evanston, one of the founders and present chairman of the city's Accident Prevention bureau, outlined the development of the safety program in Evanston and suggested methods and procedure for the southwest side bureau.

Delegates at the meeting represented the faculty and Parent-Teacher associations of the Clissold, Esmond, Mount Greenwood, Mount Vernon, Sutherland, Vanderpoel, the Academy of Our Lady, Morgan Park High, and Barnard schools. Civic and social groups that sent delegates were the Ridge Civic council, the Beverly Y. M. C. A., the Southwest Kiwanis club, the American Legion, the Morgan Park Improvement association, and the Ridge Service guild.

Assisting in the discussions and arrangements for the conference were O. E. Northrop, Mrs. F. H. White, J. David Magee, R. A. Kinzie, and S. P. Drueck.

Parish Society to Receive Holy Communion in Group

Holy communion will be received in a body by the Altar and Rosary society of St. Leo's parish at 7:30 o'clock mass this morning in the church, 78th street and Emerald avenue. Meetings of the society will be suspended during July and August.

CITY TO WITNESS NAVIGATION DAY DISPLAY IN SKY

Officials to Talk from Cutter in Lake.

Airplanes, radio and anti-aircraft searchlights will combine next Sunday night to stage a unique lake front show for Chicagoans. It will be the annual Navigation Day demonstration in which experts will interpret the relationship of the lake to the city and the city to the lake, by means of powerful, far-flung lights and broadcast speeches.

Between 10 and 11 o'clock in the evening the Escanaba, newest and most modern Coast Guard cutter, will cruise along the lake about two miles from shore. As city and civic officials on the boat discuss Chicago's more important cribs and beaches, each site will be illuminated by the Palmolive beacon, and a Navy amphibion and two trailer planes flying above it will be lighted by the rays of four 202d Coast artillery searchlights of the Illinois National Guard.

Lights at Four Points.

According to Col. Charles C. Dawes, commanding officer of the anti-aircraft regiment, the lights are strong enough to pierce the atmosphere for half a mile. The lights will be focused from Lawrence avenue, Belmont harbor, Randolph street and the South Shore Country club.

So that shore line visitors may hear as well as see the entire program, loudspeakers have been erected in every lake front park and beach. Among the speakers in the boat whose talks will be amplified are Judge John P. McGoorty, chairman of the Navigation Day committee; Loren Gayton, city engineer; V. K. Brown, recreational director of the park district; J. L. Ahern, commander of the Coast Guard; Capt. E. A. Evers, commander of the Illinois Naval armory; Robert Kingery, director of the Chicago Regional Plan commission; Capt. S. N. Karrick, United States engineer; Hugh E. Young, chief engineer of the Chicago Plan commission; and M. W. Oettershagen, rivers and harbors bureau engineer.

Projects for Discussion.

The projects for discussion will come in the following order: the Montrose-Wilson beach, the Jackson park beach, the Wilson avenue crib, the Carter Harrison and William E. Dever crib, the Four Mile crib, the Edward F. Dunne crib, the new and old Coast Guard stations at the east end of the Navy pier, the outer drive bridge, the lock at the mouth of the Chicago river, the Chicago lighthouse east of the Navy pier, Northerly Island, the Naval Reserve armory at the foot of Randolph street, the Jackson park harbor and Coast Guard station, Calumet harbor, and Grant park.

Commodore George W. Schaeffer, Lake Michigan Yachting association, and C. J. Peterson, Chicago Yacht club, will participate in the demonstration. Commodore Schaeffer will discuss the problem of Chicago's inadequate harbor facilities and Mr. Peterson will talk about the activities of Chicago's amateur seamen.

The broadcast will also be heard over station WCFL from 10 to 11 o'clock.

ROOSEVELT ACADEMY HONORS CARL PIEHL AS LEADER OF CLASS

Carl Piehl, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Piehl, 1250 West 82d street, was graduated recently from Roosevelt Military academy, Aledo, with the distinction of being the honor company commander for the year. His company was found superior in drill academics and barracks inspection. At the graduation exercises, he was presented a saber by Maj. J. A. Porter of the Sixth corps area. Recently, also, young Piehl was awarded the distinguished cadet stars, the highest honor the academy bestows and given only three other times in the history of the school. He was also a member of the rifle team and a three letter man in athletics.

PARK DISTRICT HIKERS DUE FOR NIGHT TRAMPING

A romantic band of park district hikers were scheduled to be walking by moonlight this morning between 12:30 and 2:30 o'clock. Armed only with flashlights to find the forks in the trail, the group was to meander through the woods in the forest preserves paralleling the Des Plaines river in the vicinity of Willow Springs.

About forty persons expected to make the six mile hike on the first night jaunt of the season. They were to arrive back in the city late this afternoon. Miss Bernice Ahlgrim was leader and Bob Barker and Miss Evangeline Prepejchal were guides.

An all day outing at Lake Geneva is planned by the Prairie club for July 4. Under the leadership of Marshall Pine and George S. Obsorne, the party will leave the Lake Como station and skirt the lake shore along the Low road, turn southward to the High road and from the sumit of the divide pause to view both Geneva and Como lakes glittering in the distance. Afterward they will descend to the Geneva shoreline and inspect the numerous inlets and quiet coves.

Beverly Hills Club Gives Four $100 Scholarships

A junior parade will get under way from Douglas avenue just north of Flossmoor road at 9 o'clock and every boy and girl dressed in a costume or uniform will receive an ice cream cup, an American flag, and a set of tickets to the village theater. Herbert J. Oke will be chairman of the parade and Theodore F. Reinhardt is marshal. The entire day's events will be sponsored by American Legion post 625 and financed by residents.

Villagers will gather around the flag pole for patriotic exercises at 10 o'clock. Following an invocation by the Rev. Milton A. Bierbaum and the raising of the flag, the Homewood Community band will play, and Pierce Vandercook, general chairman, will introduce Ellidor M. Libonati, Americanism chairman for the Cook County council of the Legion, as speaker of the day. Congressman Edward A. Kelly [3d] will be a special guest.

Having discarded their costumes and trappings, the children will assemble once more for junior track and field events on the school grounds at 10:30 o'clock under the direction of Richard F. Mohr, starter, and Charles J. Houston, chairman. Merchandise certificates for the village stores will be awarded in each event. Climaxing Flossmoor's eighth annual Fourth of July celebration, a softball game between the east and west side teams will be played at 2:30 o'clock. H. N. Ingwersen will captain the east siders and W. W. Huggett, the west siders. Merchandise certificates will be issued to all members of the winning team.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

WITH this year's graduates having packed their diplomas away, the publications board at De Paul university looked ahead to next year and announced the editors for the 1939-'40 newspaper and annual. And three of the four leaders are from the south and southwest sides. Ruth Grogan, 9440 South Homan avenue, will have charge of the loop division of the De Paulia, weekly newspaper; John Dolehide, 8140 Eberhart avenue, will edit the annual, and Joseph Rettich, 1631 East 83d street, will be downtown editor of the annual.

Three generations of descendants helped Mr. and Mrs. Joseph McCormick, 4801 South Halsted street, celebrate their golden wedding anniversary yesterday. They were their two daughters and their husbands, Mr. and Mrs. James Du Bray and Mr. and Mrs. Ben Benson; their granddaughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Luke Johnson; their grandson, Joseph Du Bray, who was a student at the United States Naval academy, Annapolis, until recently, and their great-grandson, Bobby Johnson. Mr. McCormick, 73, played shortstop in the old City Baseball league 'way back in 1885.

FOR three Our Town couples silver was the motif recently as they marked their 25th wedding anniversaries. Church organizations and friends gave a surprise party and banquet for Dr. and Mrs. William F. Slade at the South Congregational church, where he has been pastor for 14 years. The Rt. Rev. Msgr. William J. Kinsella celebrated high mass for Mr. and Mrs. Michael J. McCaughey, 7221 Oglesby avenue, in St. Philip Neri church. A breakfast and reception followed. Twenty-five couples surprised Mr. and Mrs. Charles Blauzdis, 2936 West 38th street, on their anniversary. One of the gifts was a novelty silver tree decorated with silver dollars.

The pure bred German shepherd dog owned by Our Towner Miss Florence Butalla, 9002 Kingston avenue, has the right to possess such an imposing name as Lona van de Oldehove. Most recent of her awards were a blue ribbon and the title of the best of the winners during the Calumet Kennel club show in Gary. Emil E. Butalla exhibited her in the ring.

THE four large murals recently mounted and displayed in the Field Museum of Natural History are the work of an Our Towner. Attracting marked interest because of the unusual technique and pertinent theme of man and his food, these are part of a series of 17 now being executed on a WPA project by the celebrated artist Julius Moessel, 1345 Madison park, whose work has earned the commendation of critics throughout the world. Eleanor Jewett, Tribune critic, has written of him: "Moessel is recognized as an important figure in Chicago's art world. Where murals are concerned he probably ranks at the top; in easel painting also it is difficult to find many who can better him."

POLICE AND FIRE THRILL DISPLAY NEARING START

1,000 Men Are Due to Begin Drilling.

BY CHARLES LEAVELLE.

Chicago's second annual Police and Fire Thrill show will begin to take tangible form tomorrow and Wednesday as picked men of the fire department and the city and park district police go into active rehearsal in Soldiers' field. Nearly 1,000 men and eighty-one of the monster machines that fight crime and fire will be in practice drills before the week is over.

Beginning Wednesday, rehearsals will be continuous until the day of the show, Sunday, July 16. Workmen will begin transforming the vast field into a thrill arena. Plans have been approved and contracts let for erection of the great tower upon which will be centered the daring feats of the fire department.

The tower will rise 67 feet into the air—the height of a six story building. This seems high, even to the layman, but it would seem infinitely higher to him if he faced the prospect of leaping off it into a life net. The structure will be wide enough to take 62 per cent more performers than the 1938 tower.

Plan Two Fire Stations.

Work will be started also upon the two fire stations from which the thundering engines will plunge out onto the field. The tower and stations will be more advantageously placed this year.

There will be more seats available around the arena for the second annual show, due to completion of construction work at the north end of the field. As it was, 70,000 persons were seated comfortably for the 1938 spectacle, which they sat through a shower to see.

But now for a preview of some of the thrill events and an introduction to some of the key men who will make them possible. A few of these men you'll see in action. Others will be behind the scenes, but there will be eloquent evidence of their inventive genius and skill at their jobs. They come from all parts of the city and you will get your first glimpse of their work in the grand parade of men and machines that will open the spectacle at 2 p. m.

Pumpers of 1830s.

The array of fire fighting apparatus will span a century, from the hand drawn pumpers of the 1830s to the de luxe sedan engines of the present year. This part of the parade will be in the special charge of Second Deputy Chief Marshal Joseph Mackey, of 6549 North Talman avenue.

And the man who keeps these red and gold monsters tuned to the highest pitch for swift and gruelling service is James Gleason, of 1220 Montana street. He is the department's automotive service engineer in charge of equipment and maintenance. Associated with him is John Riley, 8221 Avalon avenue, fire department research engineer.

These two, with First Deputy Chief Marshal Anthony J. Mullaney, had much to do with the creation of the sedan pumpers that have won national acclaim. Chicago had the first four ever built. Watch these big machines as they roll around the field. One of them may save your home—and your life—one day.

Action Will Come Fast.

With the parade and the opening ceremonies over, action will come fast. A bell's harsh jangle, a siren's whine, will send these big machines and others charging around the field. This will be dangerous work, as it always is when devastating power is unleashed. Watching and coördinating the men and machines will be Chief Edward Green, department inspector, 5014 Adams street.

A veteran in the department, he recognizes that even in an exhibition the chance of mishap is ever present. Throughout the show Chief Green will be collaborating with Chief James Furlong, 2710 Agatite street, in supervising the use of the many safety devices. Chief Furlong will also stage many of the fire department's exhibitions.

One of the most perilous of the police department's acts will follow the first alarm response. This will be the trick motorcycle riding by men of whom Chief John Prendergast says: "They're the toughest we've got. You can't hurt 'em." [The chief is not strictly correct; one man, James B. Folsom suffered a possible fracture of the left shoulder and wrist in a rehearsal accident last week.]

Get Daily Rehearsals.

The daring of these men is something that comes from within themselves, but for the training that makes possible the amazing stunts they perform on their motorcycles, they are indebted to Lieut. William Gainer, of 9910 Prospect avenue. He rehearses them daily and will direct them on Soldiers' field.

The fire department's perilous pompier ladder climbs, up the face of the fire tower, will be in charge of Division Marshal George Graves, 5304 Leland avenue, training school drillmaster. He has taught his teams of picked men adeptness in the use of the tricky pompier, a short pole-like ladder with a hook at the top. It is hung over window sills that are out

Voice of the Southwest Side

FIGHT AGAINST GAMBLING.

It is very gratifying to note the editorial pages of THE TRIBUNE keep the lead in the fight against gambling, vice, and crime. It is this courageous and marvelous leadership that distinguishes THE TRIBUNE as one of the world's greatest newspapers.

And I want to commend and express grateful appreciation to the Voice of the People, who, in the finest of spirit, are helping all [especially the poor and the minorities who possess neither money nor power] in a way they cannot help themselves.

Enclosed find a copy of a letter to the alderman of my ward. I don't think it meant much for us so far as help is concerned. My community is facing a losing fight unless you help us.

THOMAS KING.

HOLES IN STATE STREET.

A few weeks ago the city water department was out here on State street and tore a big hole in a perfectly good street. For what reason, I do not know; neither do I care. But it certainly is a shame that you have to sit in the house and listen to all the cars and trucks hit this hole. Besides, our sleep is disturbed most nights and I expect some car or truck to fall apart some night. Why these holes are not patched up again is beyond me. I certainly would appreciate having something done about this, as it is too near our home and very annoying. MRS. ERIC WENNERBERG.

A JOB FOR THE WPA.

When, O when, will the curbings be fixed [if ever] in the vicinity of 5600 South Racine to Ashland. They look like tombstones in an old-fashioned cemetery. In order not to twist one's ankle or injure oneself you must park quite a way from the curbing in order to get out. Here, truly, is a worthwhile job for the WPA and I'm sure no one would complain about them wasting time and money, as the curbings are in a terrible condition. MRS. ANNA KANABY.

SAILOR WITHOUT A SEA.

I am one of a group of young men who built a small sailboat, namely, a dhingy, 11½ feet in length. The building of these boats is sponsored by the Chicago parks. As the situation now stands many would-be sailors are just looking at their boats instead of sailing in them, because we have been forbidden the use of Burnham park harbor. How about it, park board? Can't you help us out? A WOULD-BE SAILOR.

CALL FOR MR. DEWEY.

I say we need a Dewey and need him bad. You should come out on the south side if you don't think so. Just come out and see for yourself. From 43d to 58th street there is gambling of all kinds. Doors are wide open at all hours of the day and night. Why, the whole city hall bunch should be in Joliet and would be if we had a Dewey. B. F. C.

CITY, TRACTION LINES AT ODDS ON BUS SERVICE

Former Demands Eight More Extensions.

Eight extensions to bus service on the south and southwest sides, in addition to the 16 previously propoced by the transit companies are among the features of a counter proposal made public by the city last week.

The lines' proposals were outlined in their draft of a franchise for a unified transportation system that was submitted to the city council local transportation committee. They included, besides numerous service extensions and improvements to equipment, fare increases from 7 to 8 cents for the surface lines, and 10 cent fares for subways, elevated lines, and express buses, with a 2 cent charge for a transfer from street cars to other lines.

Members of the council committee called the fare increases unreasonable and demanded that the companies submit their arguments in favor of the boosts by July 10.

Proposals from City.

The city's plan proposes virtually all the bus route extensions for the southern part of the city as set forth in the transit lines' ordinance draft, but provides for increased service in two main areas—the Lake Calumet area and the vicinity of the stockyards.

Maps appearing in the adjoining columns give a comparison of the city's new proposals for south and southwest Chicago with those previously made by the traction lines.

Principal additions to the transit lines' bus extension program for the Lake Calumet area as suggested in the council committee's plan are:

103d street from Cottage Grove avenue east to Torrence avenue.

95th street from Cottage Grove avenue east to Commercial avenue.

Jeffery avenue from 83d street south to Van Vlissengen road, thence southeast to 100th street and east to Torrence avenue.

The committee's proposed bus additions for the stockyards area are:

43d street from Archer east to Ashland avenue, thence over Exchange avenue to Halsted street and on eastward over 43d to State street.

California avenue, from Lake street on the north to 71st street.

Comparison of Proposals.

In general, the city proposals are much more extensive than those of the transit lines. The company offers to add approximately 100 miles of bus extensions in the next two years. The city demands that about 180 miles of new lines be added during the next four years.

An additional month's grace for working out the unified traction ordinance has just been granted by Secretary of the Interior Ickes. He advanced to Aug. 1 the deadline fixed in the $18,000,000 subway grant made by the Public Works administration last fall.

Unless the unification ordinance is ready by that date, the city is in danger of having this grant canceled, aldermen warn.

Maps and stories comparing the city's and the transit lines' proposals for express bus routes and bus substitutions will appear in these columns soon.

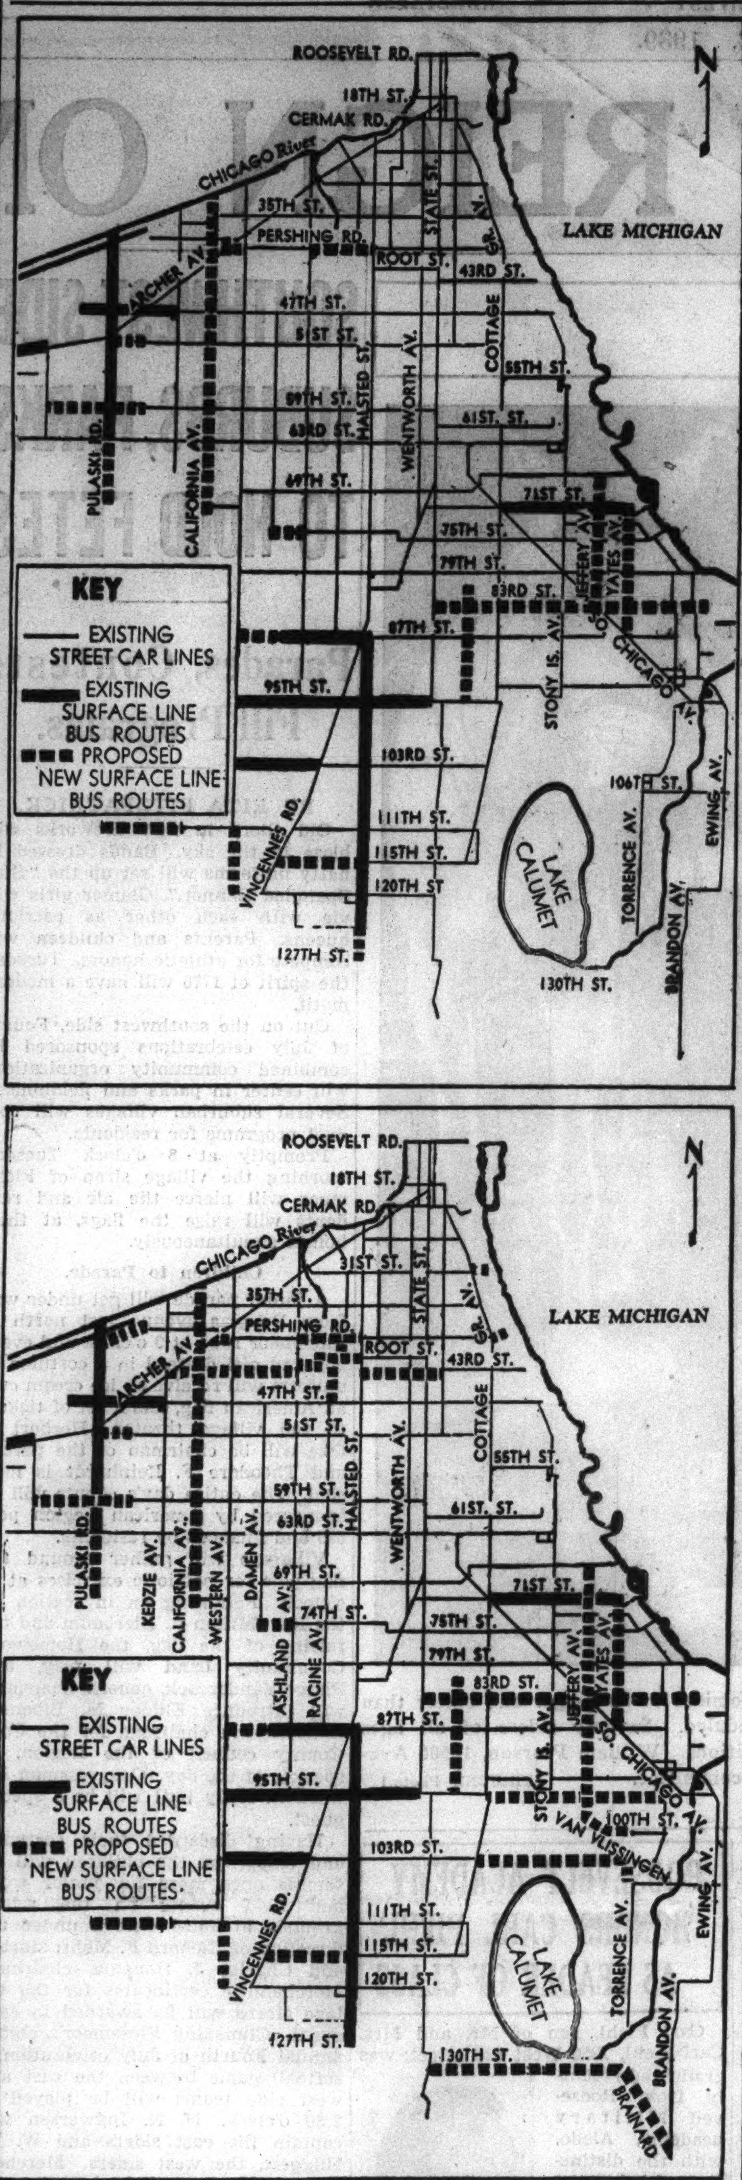
ROCK ISLAND R. R. BOOSTER CLUB TO PLAY GOLF

The second annual golf tournament of the Rock Island Railroad Booster club will be held Saturday, July 15, at the Kinsman Country club, 143d street and Parker road. There will be a dinner and dance in the evening.

The golf meet will consist of a blind handicap and a low gross contest. The leading contender for low gross score will be Ray Allman, who won the tournament last year with a 79, and is champion of the Rock Island Country club. Mr. Allman also has participated in Chicago city championship matches.

Members of the Booster club from Hamilton park, under the direction of Ray Neibert, will furnish the music for the evening. Prizes for the tournament will be awarded during the dinner. J. E. McCauley and John L. Banks will be co-chairman of the day's program.

Opposing Bus Proposals



The maps above show the difference of opinion between the Chicago transit lines and the local transportation committee in the matter of bus extensions of surface lines' service in the south and southwest parts of the city. The map above shows the extensions the lines have volunteered. the one below shows the committee's demands.

One of the treats of the spectacle will be the mounted police drills. These will be directed by Sergt. William Kubiak, 5450 North Long avenue, instructor in the mounted police school.

There will be new events at this year's show, two of especial interest; the pushball contest between members of the city and park police and the first aid exhibition by the park police and the fire department.

Sergt. James Moffatt, of 2680 Orchard street, is training the police pushball team and Patrolman Harry Gunderson, of 5041 North Menard avenue, is handling the huskies who will hit the leather for the park police.

The first aid event will show the modern resusitation methods used by the firemen and park districts. Harry Wolff, secretary of the fire department training school, and Sergt. Charles Keifer, of 4934 North Leavitt street, for the police, will engineer this exhibition.

The work of the drum and bugle corps of the American Legion Police post brought thunderous applause in 1938 and will be a part of this year's show, under the direction of Ernest Leeson, 3858 North Leavitt street.

To Stage Thief Chase.

The show's climax will be the thrilling hijacker chase, bringing into play the two way radio squad cars of the park police, the armored and heavily armed cars of the Chicago detective bureau, and an airplane which will drone over Soldiers' field, directing the pursuit.

Chief James B. Kerr, assisted by Sergt. Michael Phelan, 4836 Gladys avenue, will direct this spectacle in behalf of the park police. Lieut. Archie Kane, 517 Independence boulevard, will be in charge of the men from the detective bureau.

These events and others will be presented in a program of thrills lasting more than two hours. And admission prices will be 25 cents for adults and 10 cents for children at this great show, which is sponsored by the fire and police departments, the Chicago park district and THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

The grand entry will take place at 7 o'clock. In formation will be the massed colors of 230 posts of the American Legion in Cook county, the American Legion auxiliary and Sons of the Legion. They will be accompanied by seventy-five drum majors and majorettes and 700 Legion bandsmen, drummers and buglers.

Prior to the fireworks, 100 Chicagoans of foreign birth will be sworn in as American citizens by Federal Judge Philip Sullivan.

Sing in Vespers Today

The Clef Barons quartet will appear in Dan Ryan woods, 87th street and Western avenue, today to augment the Metropolitan church choir in presenting the third in the series of choral concerts sponsored on Sunday afternoons in the forest preserves by The Tribune, with the co-operation of the board of Cook county commissioners. J. Wesley Jones will direct the ensemble in a program of famous Negro spirituals. The Barons are (left to right) Arthur Logan, Albert Page, John Kelly, and Merton Smith, with Mary Robinson, accompanist. [Patton's Studio.]

NEGRO CHURCH CHOIR TO SING IN RYAN WOODS

Is Third in Series of Forest Concerts.

J. Wesley Jones.

Negro spirituals, interpreted by one of the foremost midwestern colored choirs, will lull picnickers in Dan Ryan woods, 87th street and Western avenue, between 4 and 5 o'clock this afternoon. They will be sung by 106 men and women of the Metropolitan Church choir under the direction of J. Wesley Jones. The concert will be the third of seven scheduled for this forest preserve during June and July by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and the board of Cook county commissioners.

The Metropolitan's regular personnel will be augmented for the concert by the Clef Barons, a colored quartet widely known for radio, concert, and banquet performances. The Barons consist of Merton Smith and John Kelly, tenors, Albert Page, baritone, and Arthur Logan, bass. Miss Mary Walker Robinson will be accompanist. Master of ceremonies for the concert will be David Kellum, editor of the Chicago Defender.

Choral concerts on three sides of the city are presented each week. Today the Chicago and North Western Railway Choral club will be heard in Thatcher woods, River Forest, and the Century Male chorus will appear in Caldwell woods, Milwaukee and Devon avenues.

Tribute to Concerts.

C. W. Bergquist, vice president of civic affairs for the Chicago Association of Commerce, added his indorsement recently to the many others that have been offered by civic leaders in regard to THE TRIBUNE'S Sunday concerts.

"The second annual series of choral concerts in the forest preserves adds another feature to Chicago's already unmatched cultural calendar," he said. "While undoubtedly thousands of Chicagoans will flock to the twenty-one programs, their greatest value to our city is the picture they present to the outside world of the real Chicago with its ceaseless demands for the better things of life."

The Metropolitan choir was organized eighteen years ago and for seven years was a regular feature on radio station WLS. It is commonly known as the Metropolitan Prize Winning and Radio choir.

Soloists to Be Heard.

Soloists who will be heard today are Magnolia Lewis, E. Bernice Coleman, John Burdette, Clara Bolton, C. V. Blackman, A. R. Phillips, Blanche Hardison, Lulu Cayce, Georgia Delaware, Geneva C. Williams, Marguerite Clarke, C. Wilbur Hardison, Corine Payton, Susie McDonald, and Johnella Williams. Lowell Derrick and William Lillard will be the accompanists.

INFORMAL DAYS TAKE WOMEN'S CLUBS OUTDOORS

West Lawn Group Plans Outing Sunday.

Mrs. David Armstrong

At the end of an energetic season, members of neighborhood women's clubs become more interested in beaches than in bridge, in pickles than in politics and in mustard than in music. They pack picnic baskets and set off for an informal day in nearby forest preserves and swimming pools. The West Lawn Woman's club in the Third district of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs has selected next Sunday for just such a leisurely time in McClory Springs forest preserve, Keane avenue near 119th street.

Under the direction of Mrs. David Armstrong, chairman, a program has been planned which will include games, races, and contests of various kinds.

Chicago Lawn Womans' Club.

The department also will continue to provide clothing and dancing lessons for a little girl in the Child Haven home.

They're Too Big Now

A happy baby is a healthy baby, so parents of the Fuller park district keep their children busy with play things. They have their eyes on the annual healthy baby contest which is conducted in the park, 45th street and Princeton avenue, in conjunction with July Fourth celebrations. Last year's winners (left to right), Margaret Gilmore, first place, and Ann Marie O'Connor, runner-up, got in the habit of playing in the park. They are too grown-up this year, being 3 years old, to enter the competition, but Margaret's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Howard F. Gilmore, 4520 Union avenue, have registered their 15 month old son in the contest, and Ann's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Pat O'Connor, 4085 Wells street, have entered their littlest daughter. MAKE UP STAFFS TO RULE BOYS' SUMMER CAMPS

Activities to Be in Hands of Experts.

Having untied their apron strings, mothers frequently have doubts when they watch their young sons pack skimpy camp kits for vacations which will take them away from their homes. These women forget that the modern boys' camp is a place where supervision has become a skill and caution is a definite part of the routine.

To relieve parents' minds Camp Cutten, sponsored by the Englewood Y. M. C. A., and Camp Kiwanis, the home of the Chicago Council Boy Scouts, last week announced the lists of their staffs for the season.

Camp Cutten, located at Lake Villa, is operated for boys and girls of the Englewood district. It provides an opportunity for children to learn nature lore from experts and to take part in a regulated program of all land and water sports. Its counselors are trained campers and college students.

Will Direct Camp.

Nelson Brewer, 6320 Harvard avenue, chairman of the Camp Cutten committee, has announced that Allan Remy, boys' secretary of the Englewood Y. M. C. A., will be director of the camp this summer. He is a graduate of Iowa State Teachers college and has a wide experience in camp work in Iowa, Illinois, and Michigan. For several years he has been associated with Camp Martin Johnson, the Chicago Y. M. C. A. camp near Ludington, Mich.

Assisting Mr. Remy will be Ray Korngold, a student at Wright Junior college and former counselor of Camp Martin Johnson, as program director; Harold Kressin, senior at the University of Wisconsin and former counselor of Camp Cutten, nature study director; Harold Shelly, senior at the University of Wisconsin and former Cutten counselor, waterfront director.

Robert Celing, student at Wright Junior college and formerly associated with the Lincoln-Belmont Y. M. C. A. and Camp Martin Johnson, business secretary; Duncan Lampman, honor student in the arts department at Iowa State Teachers college, handicraft instructor.

Others to Assist.

Howard Heldt, student at De Paul university and counselor at Cutten last season, director of out-of-camp trips; Roy A. Wortendyke, student of Chicago Teachers college, dramatics coach; Lowell Lapham, student of Iowa State Teachers college, camp fire and music director; Mrs. Myrtle Cox, cook at the University of Illinois, camp chef; Mrs. Anna Hahn, assistant cook.

Richard Bulinski, student at Chicago Teachers college, athletic coach; John Bedford, student at Wilson Junior college, archery coach and waterfront assistant; Jim Wray, student at Harper High school, dining room steward; Jim Manley, maintenance man, and Ed Sayad, student at Lake View High school, bugler.

Among the junior counselors will be Tom Natherton, Englewood High school, assistant to the waterfront director; Roy Pemberton, Lane Tech High school, tennis coach; Alden White, Tilden Tech High school, boxing coach, and Ross McFarland, Christian High school, sailing instructor. The kitchen assistants are Bill Tobey, Amundsen; David Campbell, Lindblom; Frank Cullotta, Lane Tech, and Howard Fiedler, Lake View.

Camp Kiwanis to Open.

Camp Kiwanis, located in the heart of the Palos Park forest preserve, will open tomorrow to continue until Aug. 25. William J. Schumacher Jr. will serve his second year as camp director. He has been staffman for fifteen years, spending nine of them at Kiwanis, and the other six at Owasippe, Mich. Mr. Schumacher is also assistant Scout executive for the South Shore district.

His aids will include Harley L. Lowe, assistant director in charge of administration; Charles Lassman, assistant director in charge of program; Dr. Robert A. Spencer, medical officer; Edward A. Schalk, aquatic director, who is a qualified American Red Cross examiner; Walter Goraleski, assistant aquatic director and seven year camper; Robert Hoss, steward; Clifford Johnson, head waiter and bugler.

Henry Bauske, handicraft director; Lawrence Hubbel, naturalist; Jack McFarlane, clerk; Burton Brown, woodcraft director; Bob Brady, provisional Scoutmaster; Leroy Bieringer, quartermaster and bugler; J. O. Williamson, resident camp caretaker; Ben Todd and Robert Edwards, first and second cooks.

Rajut Young Judaean Group to Give 'Alice's Blue Gown'

"Alice's Blue Gown," a drama, will be staged by the Rajut Young Judaean group Wednesday evening in the Oir Chodosh Comunity house, 702 West Englewood avenue, with Selma Feldschreiber, 600 East Marquette road, in the title rôle.

Maintain Record for Safety

For the third consecutive year the Palos Park Grade school captured the Chicago Motor club plaque for an outstanding safety patrol organization. Roy F. Healy, chairman of the South Area council of the motor club and chairman of a committee of judges who selected the outstanding patrol members for annual motor club awards, presented the plaque to the school. Pictured at the presentation are (left to right) Donald Tourtelot, last year's winner of the outstanding service award; Dana G. Kurfman, valedictorian and 1939 winner, Mr. Healy, and E. J. Bechtlofft, principal.

SEVEN SUBURBS IN DANGER ZONE ON JULY FOURTH

Uncontrolled Fireworks Pointed Out.

With pessimism based on the record of previous years, the Illinois Society for the Prevention of Blindness has predicted Fourth of July accidents in seven southwest suburbs. The society seeks to prevent the sale and unregulated use of fireworks in Illinois.

A recent survey made at eighty-two points in the state by the society reveals that forty-four towns were found to have suitable ordinances in force against fireworks and thirty towns had no provisions for control. Eight towns which did not have regulatory ordinances had other methods of restricting use and sale.

According to Miss Audrey M. Hayden, executive secretary of the society, there is no objection to fireworks displays which are handled by experienced operators. It is even suggested that each municipality should substitute a general fireworks display for haphazard use by individuals, especially children.

State Law Needed.

"What is needed to correct the fireworks evil and to prevent the annual loss of sight and other injuries from indiscriminate use of explosives is a good state law," claims Miss Hayden. "While many communities near Chicago have provisions for dealing with the problem within their limits and should be commended for their attitude, little lasting good can come until the whole fireworks question is dealt with as a state-wide issue.

"Fireworks bootleggers, with their roadside stands, near every suburban community, render much legislation ineffectual. Not until the entire problem is treated as a state matter can the Illinois Society for the Prevention of Blindness, the Parent-Teacher associations and other groups now seeking to prevent these foolish and unnecessary accidents each year, hope to see a sensible, thoroughly effective solution."

Called Danger Spots.

The survey on the southwest side points to Midlothian, where there is no restriction on use or sale of fireworks and no community display, to Joliet where there is a similar condition; to Riverdale where there is an ordinance against the sale of fireworks but none against the use of them, and also to Evergreen Park where no restriction exists.

Other local suburbs frowned upon were Chicago Heights, where there is no community display and no restriction of either the use or sale of fireworks, Harvey with no restriction on the sale but on the use, and Glenwood where the use and sale is restricted to two days before the Fourth and where no community display has been arranged.

Shrine to Sacred Heart Has Dedication Ceremony

A new shrine to the Sacred Heart, imported at a cost of $350 from Europe, was dedicated last Sunday at St. Mary's Greek Rite Catholic church, 4949 Seeley avenue. The ceremony was conducted by the pastor, the Rev. Eugene Berczyk, assisted by the Rev. Desmond A. Schmall of the Jesuit order, professor of theology at Mundelein. The shrine was donated by the church Altar and Rosary society, of which Mrs. Anna Kuznirak is president; Mrs. Ella Senics, secretary; Mrs. Anna Kotulick, recording secretary, and Miss Anna M. Vargo, treasurer. The church was organized in June, 1903, and built in 1927.

DEDICATE OLD BURIAL GROUND IN MOKENA TODAY

Once Forgotten Pioneers to Be Honored.

In the little village of Mokena, one of the oldest settlements in the state, just 30 miles from Chicago, there is a tiny cemetery which for many years was forsaken and overburdened with weeds. The names of men, who had built homes in the wilderness during the '30s and '40s once more had returned to obscurity, hidden on tombstones beneath the brush.

Occasionally some public spirited citizen would cut down the growth around the stones but the following year the weeds would return. Finally last year the Mokena Garden club took the rehabilitation of the cemetery as its main project. The members untangled the brush, planted flowers and discovered one of the most unusual sites in the middlewest, the grave of a revolutionary war soldier marked officially by the United States government.

Pioneers' Resting Place.

The soldier is Charles Denny, buried on August 6, 1839. Two other veterans' graves are in the cemetery, Charles Brill and Abraham Evans, who had served in the civil war.

This afternoon the little burial spot will be christened as the "Pioneers' Cemetery" and a special ceremony will be conducted with the dedication of a flag and flag pole. The pole, 40 feet high, is made of steel and imbedded in a foundation of concrete. It was built by two members of the weighing department of the Chicago Board of Trade, Fred Hawkson and George Stewart. Mrs. Gordon Swanson, daughter of Mrs. Anton Benson, who is president of the Mokena Garden club, financed it. The flag was donated by Mayor Harry F. Mall of the village.

At 12:30 o'clock a parade will form at the school grounds and will march to the cemetery. In the line of march will be Chicago Board of Trade post, 304, of the American Legion led by a color bearer, Rehfeldt-Meyer post, 474, of Matteson, the Veterans of Foreign Wars from Lincoln Estates, the Veterans of Foreign Wars from Cantigny post in Joliet, the village grade school band, the village board members, the fire department, the Mokena Civic club, the Mokena P.-T. A., the Mokena Garden club, and the Fort Dearborn chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Mayor to Present Flag.

The program at the cemetery will open with an invocation by the Rev. Theo Haefele of St. John's Evangelical church in Mokena. An address of welcome and presentation of the flag will be made by the mayor and William Semmler, editor of the village paper who suggested the name for the cemetery, will dedicate the spot.

The flag pole will be dedicated by Rehfeldt-Meyer post of the Legion and its auxiliary. Mrs. Fred Rauch, vice president of the Garden club, will place a wreath on the grave of the Revolutionary soldier and Charles Elder, attorney and master of ceremonies, will speak on "Our Flag." The colors will then be unfurled by Mrs. Benson and Mrs. Albert Braun while taps will be sounded by the head bugler of Chicago Board of Trade post.

Officers of Club.

Officers of the Mokena Garden club sponsoring the project are Mrs. Benson, Mrs. Rauch, Mrs. Rene Guindon, secretary; Mrs. John Balaz, treasurer; Mrs. Gerald Dunn, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Water Yunker, chairman of the civic committee; Mrs. Herman Schweser, chairman of the Fruit and Flower guild, and Mrs. L. H. Thiel, press and publicity. Mrs. Guindon will be chairman of the dedication program.

Bride

Miss Marjorie Landes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Landes, 3507 West 62d place, recently became the bride of Wilbur Fleig, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Fleig of Rogers Park, in a ceremony at the Grace Evangelical church. The young couple honeymooned at Mackinac Island, Mich., and in Canada. They will reside at 3911 Addison street.

THAT QUIET MAN IN UNIFORM MAY BE MODEST HERO

Records Reveal Police and Firemen's Deeds.

There are two men who cloak danger with a smile. One strides down a street with a greeting for every newsboy and the time of day for every storekeeper. Sometimes his cap rides high on the back of his head and he shines an apple from the corner fruit stand on his dark blue sleeve. The other leans back on two legs of a chair in front of the neighboring fire station. On a summer evening his coat is off and sometimes his shirt. Perhaps he might even be knitting or then again playing poker with the local patriarchs.

Thomas Morrissey.

The first is any Chicago policeman and the second any fireman. Their seeming casualness is born of cautious waiting. Both are trained to lightning action.

The tasks of both are accomplished with alacrity that generally leaves the public unaware of their danger. On the afternoon of July 16 in Soldiers' field, at the request of THE TRIBUNE and the park district, the police and firemen will stage a two hour show which will inform, entertain, and thrill the city's residents.

Some Recall Danger.

From the southwest side there will be men who watch the show with keen interest and with the recollection of similar but serious circumstances when they were under and in fire. These will be firemen and policemen who have received the Tribune's hero award of $100.

One is Lieut. Robert Quinn, 648 West 57th street, a fireman stationed at company 85. Five years ago, Lieut. Quinn, a husky young man of 27, answered an alarm with hook and ladder company No. 14 at 2007 Racine avenue. Hearing a cry from the back of the building, Quinn did not wait with the others to pull the ladders off the truck. He dashed to the back yard and saw an old lady, Mrs. Ann Falken, with clothes aflame, trapped on the burning porch.

Robert Quinn.

The stairway in flames, he scrambled quickly to the adjacent porch railing, hurled himself four feet across into the heart of the fire, tossed the 200 pound, 81 year old woman across his shoulder and leaped back to the other and higher porch, catching the railing with his one free hand. He quickly freed Mrs. Falken of her burning clothing and saved her from fatal injuries.

Young Quinn was cited for bravery again during the stockyards fire of 1934. He was with Lieut. Thomas Morrissey, 5734 Mozart street, and two other firemen who rescued four persons from the top of the Exchange building. Morrissey, who led the action, received a Tribune hero award. The lieutenant, now of company 65, is a former instructor in the fire department drill school and during the rescue put his knowledge into practice with schoolroom calmness.

Action 85 Feet Up.

With speed that told of expert training, Morrissey climbed an eighty-five foot ladder toward the roof of the burning building and halted fifteen feet short of the trapped individuals, pulled the ladder and himself to an eighth story window. He tore out the screen, opened the window, and reached for the skittish pompier ladder which was passed up to him. Straddling the sill, he tossed the thirty-five pound ladder toward the roof and on his first try secured it over the edge of the parapet. It was a remarkable feat.

He held the unsteady ladder and helped the four persons down from the roof to the window and then to the aerial ladder. Speaking lightly of the episode, Lieut. Morrissey says, "There wasn't much to it. Only it was kind of high and hot."

A third man out in the neighborhood who also has been on a "hot spot," although of a different nature, is genial Anthony Thurson, 9124 Marshfield avenue, a detective at the Central station. Danger crept up on him last May at one of his casual moments when he entered a store with his partner, James Doody, to purchase cigarets. The package already in his pocket and his top coat buttoned, Thurson paused at a stricken look on the face of the proprietor. There were two holdup men with drawn revolvers at Thurson's back.

Anthony E. Thurson.

Ordered to lie on the floor behind the rear counter, along with Doody and four others in the store, Detective Thurson hesitated and was pushed down on top of his partner. He waited cautiously for the moment when the bandits would slip their guard. It came. One went to the cash register and the other stepped behind Thurson to tie up a woman's hands.

Shoots Both Bandits.

"I figured I could take care of the men behind me before he could drop the rope," he said, "but I knew I'd have to get the other fellow, too, or we would be killed." Whipping out his gun from beneath his buttoned topcoat, Thurson shot the bandit behind him in the mouth. The bandit fell backward. The other leaned across the counter to account for the firing and was shot in the groin by one of three bullets. The second robber had fired two shots, which missed Thurson and the others, before he fell on his face.

The holdup men were John Baker, 22 years old, who died three weeks later in the Bridewell hospital, and Lloyd Mickle, 38 years old, a parolee from New York who recovered and is serving time in the Joliet penitentiary.

With not so much experience as Thurson, another southwest side policeman, Ross S. Grant, 5933 Paulina street, now of the Deering station, won a Tribune award three years ago. Only a rookie, 28 years old and six weeks out of training school Grant was walking his beat one evening on South Halsted street when a man dashed up to him and declared that an assailant was in the office of the Vlinis Lithuanian daily newspaper, 3116 Halsted street, with a drawn revolver threatening to kill one of the employés.

Ross S. Grant.

Grant, a stern faced and ambitious young man, lost no time in reaching the newspaper office and burst in upon the gunman, Kazimier Kenzgaila, ordering him to throw up his hands. Instead, Kenzgaila leaped upon the policeman, forcing a gun against Grant's stomach with one hand and choking him with the other. With dexterity that would do credit to a veteran, Grant killed his assailant with a second shot. Then with official coolness, he phoned first for a doctor and then to his station to make a report.

Chosen for Hero Awards

Three heroic Chicago firemen, who last week were awarded the Lambert Tree and Carter Harrison medals for bravery, are congratulated by Fire Commissioner Michael J. Corrigan. Left to right are Commissioner Corrigan, Chief Lawrence Owens, and Firemen Leo S. Kelly and Frank Kunz. Kunz won the Harrison medal and Owens and Kelly the Tree award, which will be presented them by Mayor Kelly at the Police and Fire Thrill show.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Kapral, 6408 Rockwell street, last week announced the marriage of their daughter, Martha, to Alexander George Petkus, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent S. Petkus, 926 West 52d street, last Sunday in St. Mary's church. A reception for 175 guests was held in the Hotel Shoreland. The bride is a graduate of Kendall College of Physical Education and received her bachelor of science degree from Northwestern university. She also attended the Chicago Teachers' college. Mr. Petkus is a graduate of the University of Alabama, where he received a bachelor of science degree. The young couple are on a honeymoon to the west coast.

MUSIC FESTIVAL HOLDS CHANCE OF FAME FOR SINGER

Entrants Reveal Hopes to Win Renown.

There's music in the air on the south and southwest sides as entries pour in for the tenth Chicagoland Music Festival vocal competitions that will be climaxed with the gigantic festival in Soldiers' field on the night of Aug. 18.

Emil L. Poehlsen.

Officials of the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., which sponsors the annual musical feast with the aid of many cultural organizations throughout the middle west, reminded prospective entrants last week that the registration deadline in Cook county is July 24, only three weeks from tomorrow. For those residing outside the county the final entry date is Aug. 7.

Young and old, rich and poor, lyric soprano and deepest bass, all are generously represented in the entries received thus far. But in spite of all this diversity, the competing singers share certain points in common. All are nonprofessionals, and all are motivated principally by that inner urge for self expression that has marked the upward course of art throughout the ages.

Played with Sousa.

Emil Poehlsen, 12001 Greenwood avenue, Blue Island, is an instrumentalist who is also studying voice, and who will take part in the south side vocal preliminaries on Aug. 10 and 11.

His entry form, received last week, sets forth that he gained his musical education on a trumpet and that he played under John Philip Sousa, composer and march king. At present he directs bands for the American Legion, the Elks lodge, and schools and military organizations.

Poehlsen is studying under direction of Miss Flora Waalkes of the Cosmopolitan School of Music, and is soloist for the First Church of Christ Scientist in his home city. He has entered the contest for tenors.

Must Work to Sing.

John Francis Lunney, 26 years old, 7020 Woodlawn avenue, a baritone, tells on his application something of the hardships many of these amateur singers must overcome to win to their ideals.

"I sing because I love to sing," says Lunney, who is a gasoline station attendant. "Whenever I get enough money I take a lesson in singing. I'd love to be able to work with one who would play for me and help me with my language, but I haven't the money to pay for such help."

Another south side baritone, Richard S. Myles, 19 years old, 525 East 44th place, reveals that he has had no special training in voice, but is depending on his native ability to win him laurels in the contest. Richard was graduated from St. Emma's Industrial and Agricultural institute in Virginia and hopes to attend college some day.

South side preliminaries will be held in the Chicago Woman's club building at 72 East 11th street. Tenors, contraltos and baritones will sing before the judges at 7 p. m. on Aug. 10. At the same hour on the following day the first eliminations for the sopranos, mezzos and basses will be held. The Cook county finals will be held at 7 p. m. on Aug. 16 in the grand ballroom of the Drake.

Songs in Any Language.

Preliminaries for out of town contestants will be held in the Drake on Saturday, Aug. 19, the day of the festival. Sopranos and tenors will be heard starting at 10 a. m., mezzos and baritone at 11 a. m., and contraltos and basses at noon.

Finals to select the man and the woman who will sing before thousands in the sky roofed vastnesses of Soldiers' field will start in the Drake at 2 p. m., a few short hours before the spectacle gets under way.

Rules are simple and few. Only amateurs 16 years old or older are eligible. Songs may be sung in any language. The Tribune Charities will provide the accompanist. Gold, silver and bronze medals will be given.

Marquette Park Organizes Garden Club for Children

Entries are being accepted at Marquette park, Marquette road and Kedzie avenue, in the Junior Garden club, an activity of the children's art craft group. Each child will own a part of the garden and will participate in nature study, hikes, and collecting leaves, butterflies, stones, insects, weeds, or flowers. Nature lore buttons received by the members will be credited for merit badges in Scout work.

Legion Notes

733 CHICAGOANS TO ENTER C.M.T.C. IN CORPS AREA

Majority to Be Stationed at Fort Sheridan.

Seven hundred thirty-three youths from Chicago and suburbs are among the 2,610 who will be educated by the government at three Citizens Military Training camps in the 6th corps area from July 11 to Aug. 9. Four hundred fourteen of them are enrolled for Fort Sheridan, 197 for Camp Custer, near, Battle Creek, Mich., and 122 for Camp McCoy, near Sparta, Wis.

The government will supply the boys with clothing, food and shelter, and regular army officers will instruct them in infantry, cavalry, and field artillery tactics. After satisfactorily completing four years at camp and passing a physical examination, trainees are eligible for commissions in the Organizer Reserve corps of the United States army at the age of 21.

Warns Early Arrivals.

Col. A. L. Hamblen, chief of staff of the 6th corps area, last week urged THE TRIBUNE to announce that under no circumstances should the boys appear at camp before July 11, inasmuch as no military instructors or facilities will be available before then. Awards for a variety of distinctions will be presented to the outstanding trainees on Aug. 9. Fort Sheridan will offer 112, Camp Custer will give 223, and Camp McCoy 40.

Col. Paul Newgarden is in charge of plans and training for the camps in the corps area and Maj. George A. Hunt has been placed in charge of civilian component affairs. Brig. Gen. Karl Truesdell will be commander of Fort Sheridan, Lieut. Col. Franklin C. Sibert will be commander of Camp Custer and Lieut. Col. George A. Pollin commander of Camp McCoy.

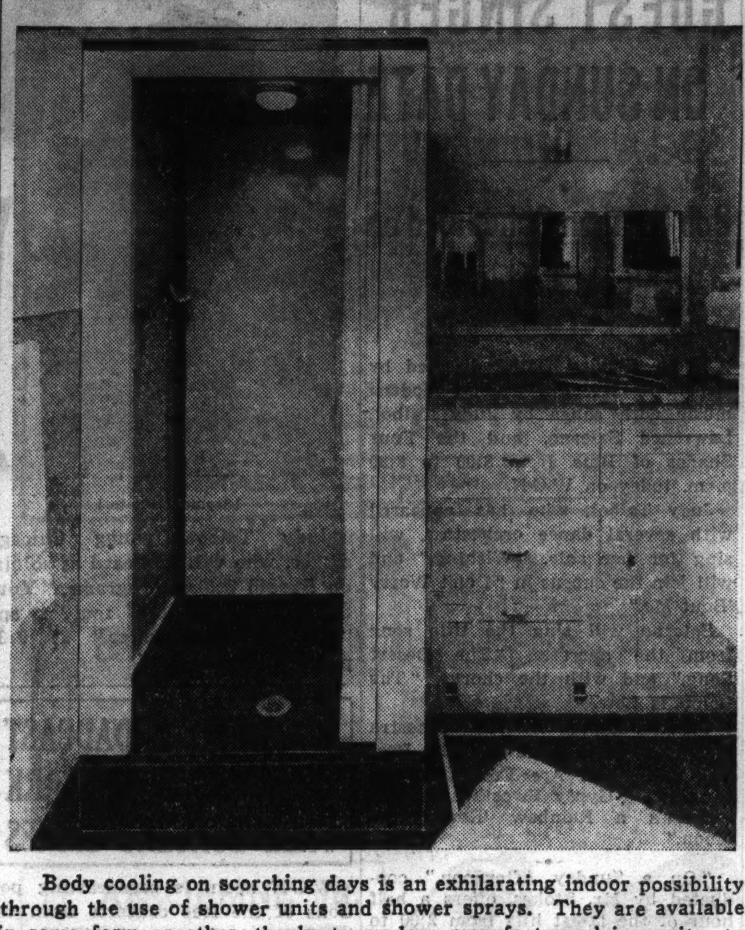
One Way to Beat the Heat



Body cooling on scorching days is an exhilarating indoor possibility through the use of shower units and shower sprays. They are available in some form or other, thanks to modern manufacturers' ingenuity, to every home dweller or apartment dweller who has a tub and a faucet. One small vacuum type shower unit sells for less than $2, and can be used with practically any type faucet.

SHOWER SOLVES THAT PROBLEM OF KEEPING COOL

Attachments for Tub Now Cost Little.

Are you remodeling this summer, or have you already achieved some interesting piece of home modernization? The Tribune will be pleased to consider a picture of your work, together with short story of what you've done. Send pictures to Louise Bargelt, Chicago Tribune.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Keeping cool indoors is a matter of vital interest to every one. And one of the simplest ways of body cooling, a way available to every one who has running water and faucets in his home or apartment, is the shower or spray bath method.

There are shower bath fixtures for practically every purse. Manufacturers even have devised a small vacuum type shower which can be attached to any wall and connected to any type of faucet to sell for less than $2. This means that no matter how many demands you may have on your budget you can indulge in a bath of billowy suds and follow it up with a cooling spray.

These modern shower attachments for faucets and over the tub types of showers and shower cabinets and compartments are all big boons at moderate costs.

Need Not Break Plaster.

Over the tub showers, for instance, can be installed in any type tub. You don't need one of the modern streamlined built-in tubs to own such a unit. You can be the owner of a substantial tub on legs, a new or old tub, and still have an over the tub shower installed. With rods and risers and shower curtains, and without any breaking in to the plaster or mussing and soiling of your bathroom decorations.

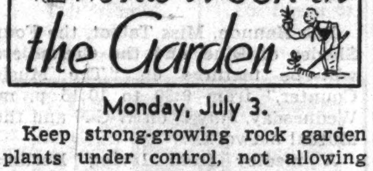
Separate compartment or cabinet shower units, as they are manufactured today, are decidedly inexpensive and can be delivered to your door all fabricated and finished and ready to set up. If you have an odd corner in your house, some 30 inches by 30 inches, there are shower cabinets small enough to fit into this space. If you want a noncostly shower cabinet for the basement, these are also available at still lower cost. They can be had in different sizes and finishes. One low cost model has steel walls finished in high temperature baked enamel. A still less expensive unit has walls of galvanized steel in natural finish.

Back Yard Shower.

Improved shower valves are on the market, which mean that there's an end in sight to ye olde time too sudden gushes of hot or icy cold water. And if you have a shower stall you can have nozzles so placed that you can take your shower all over at once.

And here's a tip for back yard fun for the youngsters:

Have your local plumber rig up a small shower in the back yard for the children. Summer is children's time, and if you keep them happy at home they won't go wandering around the neighborhood. A small yard shower only takes a few feet of pipe and a few necessary fixtures and connections.



This Week in the Garden

Monday, July 3.

Keep strong-growing rock garden plants under control, not allowing them to crowd out desirable varieties. Many fine and rare kinds of plants are lost from neglect. Sedums grows very rapidly in many instances and will overrun everything excepting the strongest plants unless kept under control. Plant pot grown plants in bare places in the garden, or sow fast growing annuals like baby's breath or spider plant.

Tuesday, July 4.

Stake all plants needing it. Spray gravel walks with sodium chlorate to kill weeds, but do not allow it to touch grass or plants alongside the walks. Now is the time to fight crab-grass. After the lawn is cut the crabgrass grows much faster than bluegrass.

Rake the lawn before mowing and continue to rake and mow to prevent the formation of seeds and it will not be long until the crabgrass is killed out.

Wednesday, July 5.

Put torpical fish, such as the guppies and sword tails in the lily pools to keep down mosquitoes. Plant gladioli until about July 15 for late flowering. Continue to divide and transplant iris. Use good soil. Use divisions large enough to produce strong plants. Large flowering varieties of climbing roses, such as Mary Wallace, Dr. Van Fleet, and silver moon do not require the vigorous pruning of the typical rambler varieties. The canes of some kinds can be pegged down for rooting.

Thursday, July 6.

Cultivation is very important during the hot July days. A dust mulch is beneficial. A mulch of decayed manure or peat moss may be used. After perennials have made their early growth it is difficult to cultivate them without disturbing the roots, but mulching the ground around them serves the same purpose. Water may be applied through the mulch. A mulch keeps down the weeds. Water dahlias consistently throughout the summer to obtain maximum growth and large flowers. Water all flowers when they show bud.

Friday, July 7.

Plants like the nasturtium that tend to produce a heavy top growth will flower better if some of the foliage is removed. A too rich soil will cause a heavy growth. Weeds in the asparagus bed can be largely kept down by sprinkling salt over the ground. It will not injure the plants.

Saturday, July 8.

Order pansy seed for August sowing. Buy the best seed. Freesias are excellent for house use. Buy and plant eight to twelve bulbs in a bulb pan now and continue to plant at intervals of two weeks. The pans can be watered and plunged in a coldframe until well grown and then taken indoors for early autumn flowering.

Legal Counsel Named.

State Representative Elmer J. Schnackenberg was indorsed for the legal counsel of the new state council, and Earl V. Cates was elected associate legal counsel for the southeast Chicago council.

Expressing approval of the recent passage of four bills by the state legislature establishing a minimum selling price for gasoline, Mr. Kirbach predicted that this action will result in more than 5,000 men in the Chicago area alone returning to work.

The southeast council sponsored the bills which were introduced by Representative Schnackenberg. Patterned after laws effective in California, they prevent gasoline station operators from selling below cost and below a certain percentage above the operating expense, insuring a fair profit.

By this abolition of price cutting wars, said Mr. Kirbach, operators will be able to rehire many of employés whom they laid off during the period when profits would not permit payment of their salaries. Most of the 5,500 operators in the area will put from one to three men back to work, according to Mr. Kirbach.

WHAT THEY'RE DOING

Just outside the southern city limits along the line of Laflin street extended, city workmen are building the first link of the new Beverly-Calumet sewer system. Completed, the system will extend twenty-six miles under south side streets and will serve an estimated 55,000 persons.

From 87th street and Prospect avenue and from 88th and Honore streets, two main sewers will be laid south and be joined at 112th and Throop streets. Then a single sewer will continue south to 123d and Laflin streets where it will be connected with another branch built from 111th and Wallace streets. Thence an outlet will be laid through the village of Calumet Park to the Sag canal.

Parts of the sewer will be 17 feet in diameter, among the largest in the city. The work is being done by WPA labor supervised by the board of local improvements. Had the work been let by private contract, according to engineers, it would have cost about 9 million dollars.

WHERE, O WHERE ARE AIR STARS OF YESTERYEAR?

Some Have Retired; Many of Girls Married.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

What happens to the radio stars of other days?

Scores of them, whose names were much on the lips of listeners, seem to have disappeared in the last season or two. Thanks probably to two main reasons, the vogue for the Hollywood glamor girls and Gables and the rage for quiz shows.

Singers have been especially hard hit by the newer trends in radio entertainment. One would like to believe that in a season or two there will be a swing back in their favor. After all, nothing is better suited to radio than music, singing included.

For years Jessica Dragonette was just about at the head of the list among radio songstresses. She carried an hour's program for years. Then she made a switch of sponsors —and after a season disappeared to the concert stage. In a recent radio magazine contest she was still rated second most popular of singers. And yet she has not been on the networks in two seasons.

Olga Albani Married.

Olga Albani, a perennial singing favorite, married a Chicago business man a few years back. Muriel Wilson, who was Mary Lou on the Show Boat for years, married Fred Hufsmith, a singer. They still sing on the air together occasionally. Virginia Rea no longer is heard though Frank Munn, her old partner, is still on the air regularly. She also married.

Ruth Etting is no longer on the radio pages but her name still figures in the news. She retired from radio three years ago. Gertrude Niesen and Helen Morgan, who were popular on the radio, are back with the night clubs. Mildred Bailey is heard only occasionally.

Others That Are Missing.

Other songstresses who seem to have disappeared so far as Chicago radio is concerned include Ethel Shutta, and Deane Janis and Maxine Gray, both of whom were long with Hal Kemp; Dorothy Page who went into pictures and then tried radio on the west coast. Also Jeannie Lang who used to be featured with Buddy Rogers, and Irene Taylor, who sang with Charlie Agnew, and Emory Ann Lincoln, who followed her.

Jane Froman, missing for several seasons, is now on an eastern network at 6:30 p. m. Sundays. But there is no local outlet for her show.

Among the sister teams that disintegrated are the Pickens, the Boswells, and the Neils. [The Vasses are still doing well together, thank you.] Jane Pickens still sings on the radio occasionally; the other two are married.

Death Breaks Up One Team.

Though they had been inactive "Clara, Lu, and Em" were broken up irrevocably because of the death of one of the trio, Mrs. Howard Berolzheimer.

Ireene Wicker, who had such a long success as the Singing Lady, prospered less after she went to New York. Currently she is on the air on a New York station for a sponsor who expects to try her on a network in the fall. Whether she will have an outlet here has not been revealed.

Men Singers Missing.

Not much has been heard recently on the air of Arthur Tracy, the Street Singer. He, Morton Downey, and Carson Robison and his Buckaroos have been popular in England. Downey made a return to NBC last season after being gone for several years.

Wendell Hall is occupying himself with song writing; Cyril Pitts, long soloist on the Contented hour, went to New York and has been singing in groups but has not been featured. Phil Regan, who had a following several seasons back, did some picture work, but seems to have disappeared from radio.

Many New Orchestras.

In the orchestra field there are many new orchestras but most of the older ones are also still popular. Harry Horlick, so long a headliner, is now trying for a comeback. Morgan L. Eastman, pioneer Chicago orchestra leader, retired and is boating at San Diego most of the time. He visited Chicago studios last week.

Remember when Jack Pearl and Sharlie [Cliff Hall] were all the rage? Where are they now? Other comedians who had big followings are now out of the limelight. Among them are Joe Cook, Milton Berle, Bert Lahr, Ed Wynn.

Wons Making Fiddles.

Tony Wons, a great favorite for years for the sentimentally minded, has retired and is making violins up in Wisconsin. Alexander McQueen, the Nothing But the Truth Man, is writing advertising.

By the way, who knows what ever happened to Graham McNamee?

Meanwhile Rudy Vallee, Amos and Andy, Kate Smith, The Lone Ranger, Lum and Abner, Guy Lombardo, Quin Ryan, the National Farm and Home hour, Little Orphan Annie, Painted Dreams, Eddie and Fannie Cavanaugh, and a few other hardy perennials keep right on going.

Mark Love Gets Ready Early for Opera Season

Mark Love, W-G-N and Mutual basso, is getting a head start on the opera season. He has already started studying for his rôles with the Chicago City Opera company next fall. Among the parts he is working on are Ramphis in "Aida," Sparifucile in "Rigoletto," Lothario in "Mignon," and Raimondo in "Lucia." Love is singing fourteen major rôles with the opera company during the season.

A Namesake

A young visitor at W-G-N's studios was three year old Joyce Kay Chase, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Chase of Janesville, Wis. Little Joyce came to see Kay Chase, who plays the part of "Joyce Foster" and also writes W-G-N'S sketch "Painted Dreams." The child was named for Miss Chase and the radio character she portrays.

TECUMSEHSPEECH TO HARRISON TO BE RECREATED

Tecumseh, the great American Indian chief, known and feared for his fighting ability at the turn of the nineteenth century, was also a great orator.

The chief was killed at the Battle of the Thames on Oct. 5, 1813. Four years previous to that time Gov. William Henry Harrison of Indian territory purchased a large tract of land from the Indians about sixty miles from Vincennes.

Tecumseh resented the transaction. On Aug. 12, 1810, he met Gov. Harrison in full council at Vincennes and delivered a speech that has come down in history as a masterly oration.

The speech will be recreated on "Gems of American Eloquence" over W-G-N at 10 p. m. on Friday. The dramatic background for the address will also be presented on the program. The part of Tecumseh will be taken by William Rath.

JUDY TALBOT IS GUEST SINGER ON SUNDAY DATE

Bob Hannon Scheduled on Music Counter.

"Your Sunday Date," directed by Harold Stokes, will present modern music with songs by Judy Talbot, Lawrence Salerno, and the Four Shades of Blue from 8:00 to 8:30 p. m. today on W-G-N.

Judy Talbot, who has appeared with several dance orchestras, will sing for her solo, "Wishing," and will join the chorus in "Don't Worry 'Bout Me."

Salerno will sing the title song from the operetta, "The Desert Song," and with the chorus, "The Lamp Is Low."

Other numbers by the orchestra and chorus will include, "The Best Things in Life Are Free," "I Got Rhythm," "Gypsy Sweetheart," and "There's a Rainbow 'Round the Moon."

"On a Sunday Afternoon," conducted by Mr. Stokes, offers a half hour of the latest hits from 2:00 to 2:30 p. m. today on the Mutual network.

The Four Grenadiers will sing "I Get a Kick Out of You," and "Papaya." The Four Shades of Blue will do "I Cried for You," and one of the hits from "The Streets of Paris," "Is It Possible You're Possessible."

Bob Hannon, Miss Talbot, the Four Shades of Blue, and the Grenadiers will be featured on "The Music Counter," from 9:30 to 10:15 p. m. Wednesday, July 5, on W-G-N and the Mutual network.

A medley from Irving Berlin's "Second Fiddle" will be sung by Miss Talbot, Hannon and the chorus, including, "Back to Back," "Song of the Metronome," "I Poured My Heart Into a Song," and "When Winter Comes." For his solo, Hannon will sing "I Guess I'll Go Back Home This Summer," and Miss Talbot, "This Is No Dream."

ELSON, BARBER, HELFER SET FOR ALL-STAR GAME

Bob Elson, Red Barber, and Al Helfer, three of the most popular baseball sportscasters, will describe the annual All-Star baseball game on W-G-N and the coast to coast Mutual network Tuesday, July 11, at 12:15 p. m.

The contest will be played in Yankee stadium, New York. Game time will be at 12:30 p. m., but Mutual will give a fifteen minute preview description of the crowd and incidental highlights.

Bob Elson is well known to W-G-N-Mutual listeners for his record of ten years at the microphone. Bob has covered every world series game since 1929, the only announcer to hold that distinction, and he has described every All-Star baseball contest since the first one in Chicago in 1933. Red Barber, formerly with WLW, Mutual's Cincinnati affiliate, is now covering baseball at Brooklyn on WOR. Al Helfer, also at WOR, assists Barber on the Brooklyn game coverage.

PETER QUILL IN UNDERSEA DRAMA ON W-G-N FRIDAY

"Deep Sea Death," another episode of the Peter Quill series, will be broadcast from 8 to 8:30 p. m. Friday on W-G-N and Mutual.

The story depicts the battle of Peter Quill [Hugh Studebaker] to prevent spies of the Red Circle from wrecking a new submarine. The Red Circle conspirators, ordered to stop the craft from joining its squadron, tamper with its machinery before it leaves port.

The cast includes Alice Hill, who plays the part of Secret Agent Gail Carson; Reese Taylor, who will be heard as Commander Osborne; George Neise, as a submarine officer; Marvin Miller, as Monk of the Red Circle, and Genelle Gibbs, as a secret aide of Gail Carson. The program will be broadcast from the main audience studio of W-G-N.

AMERICAN FAITH IS SUBJECT OF MIDDAY SERVICE

The theme for discussion on the W-G-N Midday Service for this week is "The Faith of an American." The program, directed by Dr. John L. Dickson, is broadcast daily except Sunday at 12:35 p. m. from the W-G-N studio. Speakers for the week are:

Monday—The Rev. A. Wayman Ward, Bethel African Methodist church.

Tuesday — President Timothy Lehmann, Elmhurst college.

Wednesday—The Rev. Charles H. Hightower, First Lutheran church, Mount Morris.

Thursday—The Rev. D. L. McNary, First Presbyterian church, Freeport.

Friday—The Rev. C. H. Diercks, president, Chicago Methodist Preachers' meeting, pastor Euclid Avenue Methodist church, Oak Park.

Saturday—Judge John P. McGoorty of the Superior court.

Navigation Day Highlights to Be Broadcast on WCFL

Highlights of the observance of Navigation day next Sunday are to be broadcast over WCFL from 10 to 11 p. m. From land, lake, and air announcers will describe features of the celebration taking place along twenty-eight miles of Chicago's shore line.

HUMAN BEINGS! BLESSED ABOVE ALL OTHER ANIMALS! YET THE MOST CRUEL OF ALL ANIMALS! HM-M-M--- WHY WAS THAT RIVER DIVERTED SO LONG AGO?
WHY WAS THAT ROARING WATER FALL CREATED BY THAT WALL? TO DROWN OUT OTHER SOUNDS? SCREAMS, PERHAPS?
LOOK! LOOK CLOSELY! THERE, ALMOST AT THE TORRENT'S BRIM--- IN THE WALL--TINY HOLES--TO CARRY AIR AND A LITTLE LIGHT TO DUNGEONS, PERHAPS-

DICK TRACY
[illegible] IN THE ELEVATOR [illegible] BY MEANS OF A [illegible] CHUTE SWINGS BELOW THE STALLED CAR, TRIPS THE AUTOMATIC DOOR OPENER AND ESCAPES TO THE NEXT FLOOR. TRACY AND THE POLICE ARRIVE ON THE SCENE AND THE CRIMINAL IS CHASED TO THE ROOF OF THE BUILDING.
WHAT DID HE DO TO YOU, DICK?
DON'T WORRY ABOUT ME — STOP HIM! USE YOUR GUN.
I LOST MY FOOTING ON THAT CORNICE — AND HE LET ME HAVE ONE ON THE CHIN BEFORE I COULD GET MY BALANCE — LOOK!
HE'S CRAWLING DOWN THAT ELECTRIC SIGN!
WAIT! NO! DON'T SHOOT! HE CAN'T GO FAR. THAT'S A FLAT WALL.
THIS SIGN GOES CLEAR TO THE MARQUEE. IF I CAN GET THERE, I'M OKAY.
HE'LL HAVE TO JUMP FROM THE MARQUEE AND WHEN HE DOES, WE'LL BE THERE! YOU STAY HERE, PAT, WITH MURPHY.
THE LETTERS GET SMALLER HERE, BUT I AIN'T TURNING BACK NOW!
NOW SHOWING
NOW SHOWING
TAKE IT EASY, CHUTE, WE'RE WAITING FOR YOU!
SUDDENLY, THE FRAIL SMALLER SECTION OF THE SIGN CAN STAND NO MORE! A BOLT PULLS FROM IT'S FASTENING..... THE SCREECH OF METAL PIERCES THE AIR....
OUT OF THE WAY!
YE GODS!
GOOD HEAVENS!
STAND BACK!
WATCH OUT THERE!
KEEP AWAY, FOLKS!
DEAD END KIDDIES

SMILIN' JACK
AS HOP DREW HIS BOW TO SHOOT JACK, HE BRACED HIS FOOT AGAINST A LOG--BUT IT WAS NOT A LOG! HEARING THE NOISE, JACK WHIRLED AND--- BANG!
AS JACK REACHED HOP, CHIEF NO-TALK SLIPPED UP BEHIND AND STARTED TO HURL A HATCHET AT JACK--BUT---
BANG
SO! YOU TOO! WELL, I'M TAKING YOU BOTH TO JAIL FOR ATTEMPTED MURDER!
JACK MARCHED HIS ENEMIES TO HIS PLANE WHICH HE HAD LEFT IN A CLEARING A FEW MILES AWAY --BUT BEFORE TAKING OFF, HOP MANAGED TO WHISPER A PLAN OF ESCAPE TO THE CHIEF-- I HATED TO REMOVE A PERFECTLY GOOD FRONT SEAT--BUT IT'S MORE COZY HAVING YOU TWO ON THE FLOOR HERE WHERE I CAN WATCH YOU!
HOP GAVE THE CHIEF THE SIGNAL---
OOOOH! ME SICK--- OOOH!!
YOU'RE PROBABLY JUST AIRSICK---- YOU'LL BE ALL RIGHT!
OOOOH-- ME DYIN' --OOH!!
SAY, JACK, HE'S IN TH' MARKET FOR A RAIL TO LEAN OVER--OPEN A WINDOW FOR HIM--QUICK!
MM-M-- MAYBE YOU'RE RIGHT AT THAT, HOP!
AS JACK OPENS A WINDOW FOR THE CHIEF, HOP SQUEEZES HIS SKINNY HANDS OUT OF THE HANDCUFFS AND GETS A GRIP ON THE FIRE EXTINGUISHER--
SUDDENLY THE CHIEF WITHDRAWS FROM THE WINDOW AND LUNGES AGAINST JACK---HOP STRIKES-- HOP SETS THE STABILIZER SO THAT THE SHIP IS FLYING HANDS-OFF FOR THE MOMENT-- HOP, HURRY FIND-UM ROPE SO WE TIE-UM JACK BEFORE HIM COME TO!
HERE'S ROPE IN TH' BAGGAGE COMPARTMENT, CHIEFY--- AND PARACHUTES TOO!!
ATTA PAPOOSE, CHIEFY--A PERFECT JOB OF TYING! HERE, GET INTO THIS 'CHUTE HARNESS!
HOP, WHAT WE GONNA DO NOW?
WE'RE GONNA BAIL OUT AND LEAVE OUR FRIEND, SMILIN' JACK, AT TH' MERCY OF A PILOTLESS PLANE!!

POOR LORD PLUSHBOTTOM! I FEAR THAT HE IS LOST IN THE WOODS.
NAW, HE TOLD ME BEFORE I GOT A RIDE THAT WE WAS WEST OF TOWN. SO WHEN THE MOON COME UP, ALL WE HAD TO DO WAS KEEP HIKIN' IN IT'S DIRECTION AND WE WOULDN'T GET LOST.
YOU MEAN TO SAY ALL HE HAS TO DO IS WALK TOWARDS THE MOON AND HE'LL FIND HIS WAY HOME?
THAT'S RIGHT
BUT WHEN THE MOON GETS UP RIGHT OVER HIS HEAD, HOW'S HE GOING TO WALK AFTER IT?
AND THEN IF HE KEEPS ON AFTER IT, HE'LL BE GOING WEST AND FIND HIMSELF RIGHT BACK WHERE HE STARTED FROM.
GOSH! I DIDN'T THINK ABOUT THAT.

WELL- WHO EVER HE'S INVITED, YOU CAN JUST BET HE'LL PROFIT BY IT-PROBABLY SOME BIG BUSINESS DEAL HE WANTS TO PUT OVER- HE WOULDN'T INVITE SOMEONE TO DINNER JUST FOR THE PLEASURE OF IT-
YOU SAID IT- THAT OLD SKINFLINT- HE DOESN'T SPEND A DIME UNLESS HE CAN REALIZE A DOLLAR ON IT-THERE GOES THE BELL- ANSWER THE DOOR, QUICKLY- JEROME!
YES, SIR!
IS MR. MANNING IN? HE'S EXPECTIN' ME-
HELLO, TIM- COME RIGHT INTO MY STUDY!
HI, MISTER MANNING!
STAMP
I BROUGHT MY STAMP ALBUM ALONG-
THAT'S FINE- SIT RIGHT DOWN- I'LL LOOK IT OVER BEFORE WE HAVE DINNER-STAMP ALBUM
PERHAPS YOU'D CARE TO LOOK AT MY COLLECTION- THE VOLUMES ARE IN THAT CASE BEHIND YOU-
GOSH- YOU MEAN ALL THOSE BOOKS ARE FILLED WITH STAMPS?
I'LL BETCHA IT TOOK A LONG TIME GETTING THIS COLLECTION TOGETHER-
I'VE BEEN COLLECTING THEM SINCE I WAS A BOY YOUR AGE- AND THE FUN I GET OUT OF STAMPS NOW IS AS GREAT AS IT WAS THEN-
I'D NEVER GET TIRED OF LOOKING AT THESE STAMPS- HERE'S A KEEN ONE FROM INDO-CHINA-
YES, TIM- THEY ARE FASCINATING- JUST LITTLE FRAGMENTS OF PAPER- BUT THEY TELL THE STORY OF THE WORLD-
THAT'S THE THIRD TIME I'VE ANNOUNCED DINNER- THEY DON'T PAY ANY ATTENTION TO ME-
WELL- THAT TAKES THE CAKE- A LITTLE STREET URCHIN TAKING UP HIS VALUABLE TIME-

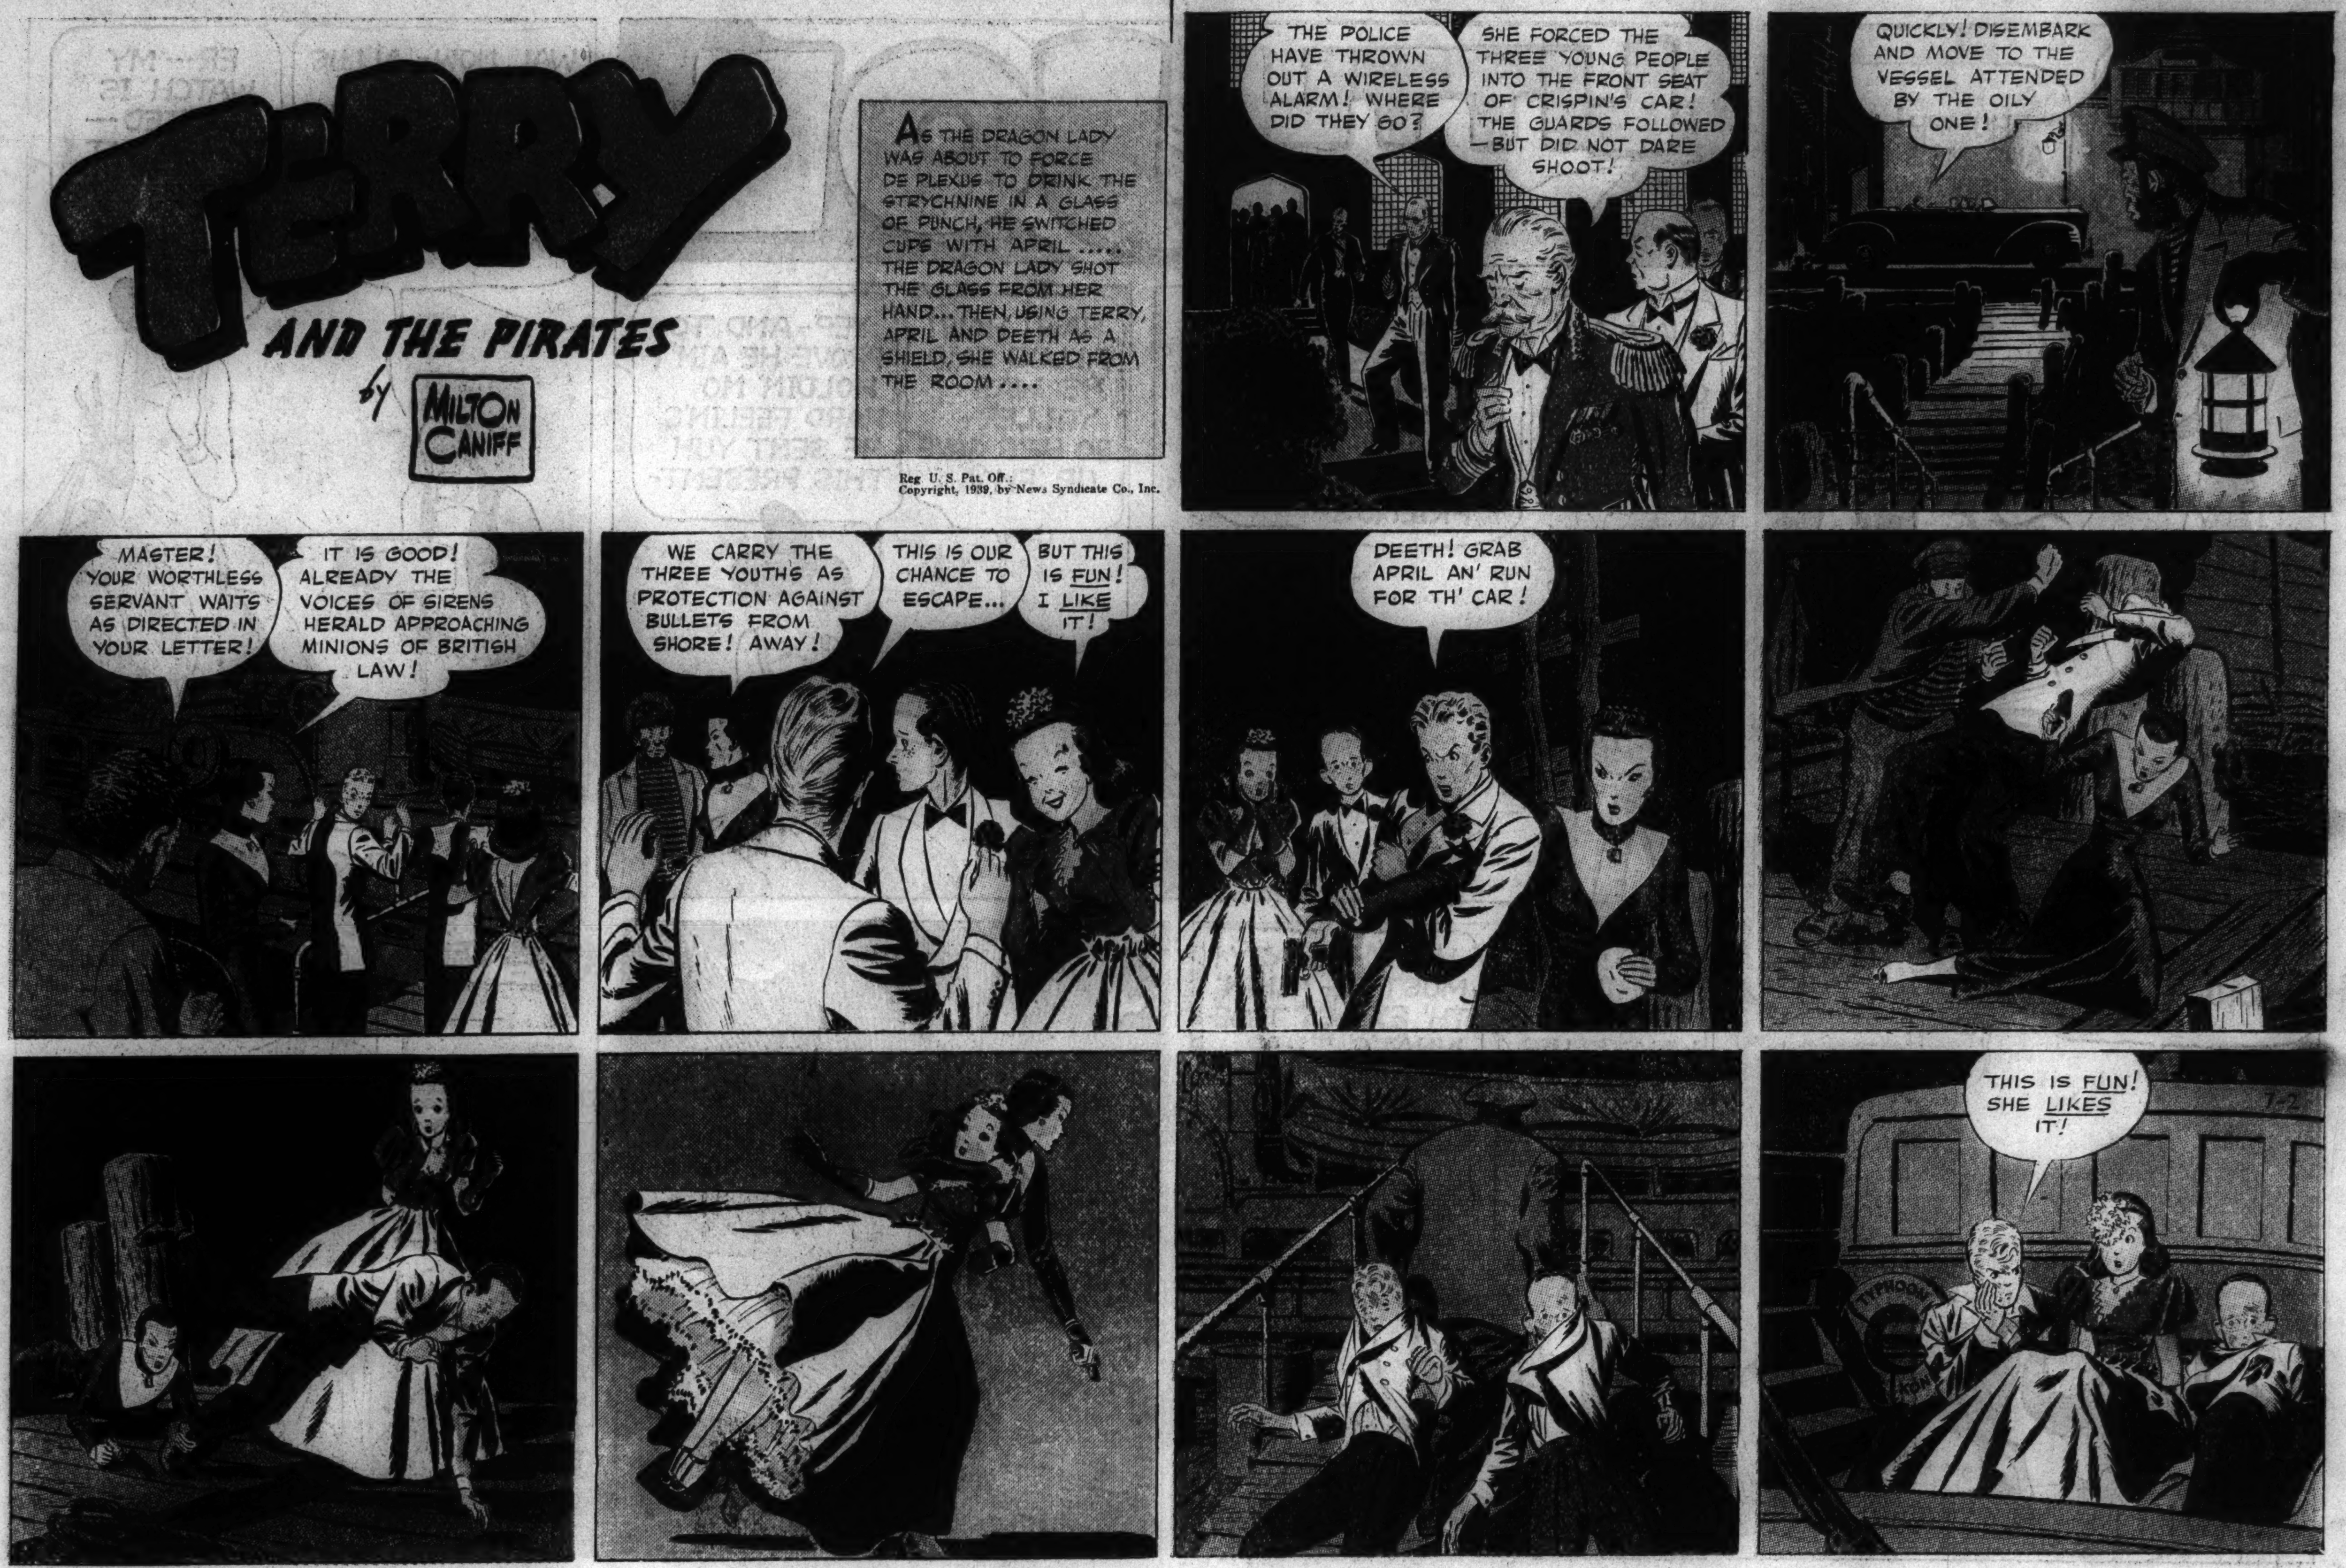
TERRY AND THE PIRATES

by MILTON CANIFF



AS THE DRAGON LADY WAS ABOUT TO FORCE DE PLEXUS TO DRINK THE STRYCHNINE IN A GLASS OF PUNCH, HE SWITCHED CUPS WITH APRIL ..... THE DRAGON LADY SHOT THE GLASS FROM HER HAND... THEN, USING TERRY, APRIL AND DEETH AS A SHIELD, SHE WALKED FROM THE ROOM ....
THE POLICE HAVE THROWN OUT A WIRELESS ALARM! WHERE DID THEY GO?
SHE FORCED THE THREE YOUNG PEOPLE INTO THE FRONT SEAT OF CRISPIN'S CAR! THE GUARDS FOLLOWED —BUT DID NOT DARE SHOOT!
QUICKLY! DISEMBARK AND MOVE TO THE VESSEL ATTENDED BY THE OILY ONE!
MASTER! YOUR WORTHLESS SERVANT WAITS AS DIRECTED IN YOUR LETTER!
IT IS GOOD! ALREADY THE VOICES OF SIRENS HERALD APPROACHING MINIONS OF BRITISH LAW!
WE CARRY THE THREE YOUTHS AS PROTECTION AGAINST BULLETS FROM SHORE! AWAY!
THIS IS OUR CHANCE TO ESCAPE...
BUT THIS IS FUN! I LIKE IT!
DEETH! GRAB APRIL AN' RUN FOR TH' CAR!
THIS IS FUN! SHE LIKES IT!

Prepare for the PROFESSION That Can Pay $50.00 A WEEK And More

BEAUTY CULTURE! That's THE profession for the ambitious girl and woman. Offers everything! Big money! Chance to be independent, to have your own business. Choice of positions always available. [Look at the "Help Wanted" ads now: note how many more openings there are for beauty operators than for girls in other lines.] Lifelong security too! As a beauty operator, you have a "meal ticket" that can never be taken away from you. Advancing years an advantage.

The Secret of Success in Beauty Culture Is—getting started right. Prestige of being known as a Burnham graduate is priceless. Gives immediate standing with customers. Opens doors of exclusive shops. Scores of leading shops depend on us exclusively for operators. More positions open than we can fill. Such a superabundance of positions enables us to place graduates in those bigger opportunity shops where established operators frequently make more than $50 a week. Your starting in a big name shop will help you all thru life. We can place graduates in such shops because they invariably make good on account of the superior training they received at Burnham's.

67 Years of Knowing Exactly How Best to Teach

—will transform you into the kind of operator which the better shops want. At Burnham's, you're trained under actual beauty shop conditions. On customers who must be pleased; not models. Under tutelage of experts, you're drilled in all-important knack of pleasing customers, selling them more bringing them back.

Burnham's makes you more than a beauty operator. Develops you into a hair stylist and coiffure artist, too. Scores of established operators, trained elsewhere, come to us for training in styling. Our methods give that certain something which makes an operator outstanding.

THESE EXTRA ADVANTAGES which Burnham's alone can offer, account for more students enrolling at Burnham's than any other school. You cannot afford to do without these advantages which mean more money for you from the start, better positions, quicker advancement. Investigate them.

Only $5.00 Enrolls You —then unbelievably easy terms.

Day or night classes. If now working, you can start at night, finish course by day. As we must have more graduates available to supply beauty shops depending on us, WE WILL MAKE YOU AN UNPRECEDENTED OFFER if you phone, call or write this week. Don't let lack of money hold you back. Come in and learn of this offer. Come any week day or any Monday, Wednesday, or Friday evening.

Houses Too Have Character

Haven't you often studied a person and, noting certain characteristics about his or her appearance, sized up the individual as being well-bred, substantial, a person of refinement? Character asserts itself, not only in people but in houses!

For instance, focus your attention on any house built by W. C. Tackett, Inc. Its good design, fine construction and tasteful decoration are immediately apparent. Every detail is carried out in excellent taste, with nothing overlooked which contributes to gracious, comfortable, and convenient living. This is true regardless of price.

In SCARSDALE there are a number of newly completed houses—6, 7, and 8 rooms; 1½, 2, and 3 baths, with one and two car garages. They are really remarkable values.

Any house may be purchased on terms you can comfortably afford, or any house may be duplicated on your own lot, anywhere within a fifty mile radius of Chicago.

See these houses today—you, too, will recognize the difference. It costs no more to live in a Tackett-Built house, so why be satisfied with less?

Sylvan Lake Homes

Homes, homes, and homes at Sylvan Lake: not just partially completed models, but habitable, comfortable, convenient homes built to meet individual tastes, requirements, and incomes and having a wide range in construction costs. Several built on especially large, well situated, wooded lots, are offered for sale now.

But there I go again following the lead of the other lake resort developers by emphasizing the HOUSING end of the deal. Their main reason for doing so is to concentrate attention on a construction bargain so that you will overlook most of the disadvantages of the lake and the lot concerned. I can build and finance at costs and terms as low as any other.

But what of it? That's only a minor consideration to the wise resort home buyer. His main consideration is that the natural and installed advantages of the lake and the homesite are what determine whether in ten years his home will be worth half, or twice what he paid for it and will meanwhile provide little, or great satisfaction and happiness. It is location excellence that increases the value of the whole. I won't list Sylvan Lake's numerous superiorities here. See Sylvan Lake and dare to tell me of any lake where your money will buy more value.

This will appeal to the shrewd thinking buyer who considers the future value of his property. Spend a few hours here today and see why Shoreland Acres is the most unusual summer home property offered in years. As little as $1,500 buys a one acre tract with riparian rights. Day by Day on the Farm

July 1, 1939.

WE walked over to look at one of the big silos on the farm last week to see whether any of the birds or insects were interested in the dark colored, sweet tasting fluid that is trickling out of that high structure. This silo is filled with freshly cut alfalfa to which molasses was added, thus making a type of silage for feeding the stock on the farm.

The combination of molasses with the juices of the green vegetation naturally has caused the base of the silo to exude many gallons of a dark brown liquid. This is so sweet that we thought certain birds and insects might be attracted to it. But apparently this midsummer "brew" from the big silo is not to their liking.

On our walk back from this silo we passed by the cow barn where we heard the radio going. The herd of cows has its own private radio, which is turned on part of the day. Music [played when the animals are in their stalls] is supposed to increase the flow of milk.

Ball Game for Cows.

But once in a while the broadcast of a baseball game seems to break into a late afternoon radio program in the cow barn, and then the usual rapid fire comment on balls and strikes, long distance hits and close decisions is wafted into the cow's ears.

Apparently the animals like it, too. So we wouldn't be surprised if the farm had "cow ball fans" before long, followers of the pastime that will moo their displeasure when one of the players strikes out with the bases loaded.

After visiting the dairy barn the other day, and envying the cows and their afternoon broadcasts, we drove into the barnyard and got another surprise involving the life of farm animals It was a very warm day, and there was no breeze. The flockmaster commented about the close humid weather as he went about the job of feeding the poultry.

Inside the cottage farm women were baking bread and pies in a hot kitchen. When we walked around the barnyard we thought we heard the buzz of an electric fan, but couldn't believe our ears.

Electric Fan for Chicks.

After a little investigation we found a fan swishing fresh air in through a window of the brooder house to keep the chicks cool. The flockmaster explained that the fan in the brooder house was not often operated, but that because of the hot, muggy weather he felt it was needed.

For the second time this season a pair of bluebirds is renovating a nest in an old apple tree near the barnyard. Several weeks ago a pair of these cheerful songsters made a nest and reared a family in a hole in the tree. Now their youngsters have grown up and are on their own. During the past week bluebirds again have been visiting this hole as if they were going to use it for a nest.

Birds Feast on Cherries.

The birds are in the midst of one of their most enjoyable seasons now that the cherries and mulberries are ripe. We sampled some of the sweet mulberries near one of the farm homes the other day and noticed that the robins were sharing the fruit.

The birds are eating all the ripe cherries they want, too. When we visited one of the homes we found that the women were getting plenty of fruit for canning purposes. One of the farm wives has put up 25 quarts of cherries and 12 pints of delicious cherry jam.

SAVE TIME! DON'T SHOP! SEE US! We lend on homes—frame, stucco, brick—up to 30 years old; also 2 to 4 apartments, large apartment buildings, stores, garages, and factories. We also place FHA loans up to 80% of the value up to 20 years, also place 90% construction loans. We advance funds to settle estates, taxes, liens, and to redeem property. If even our top loans won't do we will see your mortgages or bondholders' committee to cut down overly large debts to present day levels.

Our records prove that we have saved many thousand of dollars for our clients and prevented or settled many foreclosures.

Mind! We make no promises, but if conscientious ability, knowledge and experience can solve your mortgage problem, our first rate organization being in direct touch with the vast resources of Banks, Insurance Companies, and Building & Loan Associations will be of great help to you.

MOTORS—TRAFIC—HIGHWAYS

LEGISLATION FOR SUPERHIGHWAYS NEW IN FINANCE

Recognizes Gas Tax as Pavement Revenue.

PLANK No. 2 in The Tribune's editorial platform is "Build Deathproof Highways." This newspaper's advocacy, year in and year out, of such construction was cited in debates before the legislature last week in passing Chicago's $60,000,000 superhighway bills. The present automobile editor has had an assignment since July 1, 1929, to promote safety motorways.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., June 29.—The construction of a superhighway system in Chicago, about to be undertaken by the city, county, and state, calls for a new conception of roadway engineering and economics.

The enabling legislation, passed by the assembly here this week, is a novelty in public finance, in that it recognizes the motor fuel excise as a revenue from pavements. The revenue is to retire $60,000,000 in anticipation notes. The prosecution of the building program must be just as free from antiquated precedents.

A primary principle to be followed in the construction work, varying from previous practices, requires that the first steel and concrete shall be laid in the central business district, where the congestion is most acute. The extension of each of the routes shall be from the center of the city outward.

Gradually Extended to City.

In other years, new highways have been laid in the country and gradually extended into the city. This procedure was convenient to the engineers. It is easier to design and to obtain right of way where property is cheap and more readily available. More work, worry, and money are involved in built up areas.

As a consequence, motorists are familiar with the error of the old practice. A broad, rural pavement becomes progressively more congested and more annoying as the driver approaches the heart of a city.

By building from the center outward, the first sections of the superhighways will be at locations where they will be of the most use, where the trafic risks and delays are today most acute.

The downtown terminals of these superhighways will be the heart of the system, to consist of one route directly west, one northwest, one southwest, and extensions of the north side and the south side outer drives. The ultimate utility of the entire system probably will be measured by the adequacy of these downtown connections.

Individual Responsibility.

For transportation to and from the loop, the superhighway system will be no better than the ramps and approaches to and from the business district. These ramps will fix the capacity of the express routes.

Another primary principal, favored both by city and the county if not also by the state, is that each of these governmental agencies shall assume complete responsibility for individual projects. For instance, one might build the northwest elevated highway, another might undertake the job due west, and the third might work on the southwest route. Of course there would be coördination in the planning of the system.

Joint construction work in others has not been entirely satisfactory. With the state and a county or city engaged on a single job, there has been a tendency for officials to pass the buck for delays or for mistakes. The state would blame a county for not clearing the right of way. Or the county would charge that the state was stalling in putting an O. K. on blue prints.

Not a Local Improvement.

In the location of the routes and in the acquisition of the right of way, officials recognize that an express trafic facility is not a local improvement. A busy pavement is about as advantageous to abutting residential and retail property as a railroad track. And, unless it is physically isolated, almost as dangerous, noisy, and smelly.

In laying out the superhighway routes, engineers will be seeking to isolate the express trafic from abutting property. In 1893, Chicago had the same problem with its railroads and solved it by elevating the tracks. These elevations, especially the one northwest from the loop and the one west from the loop, today offer possible sites for superhighways where the hum and rumble of tire impact would not detract from realty values already exposed to the roar of steam locomotives.

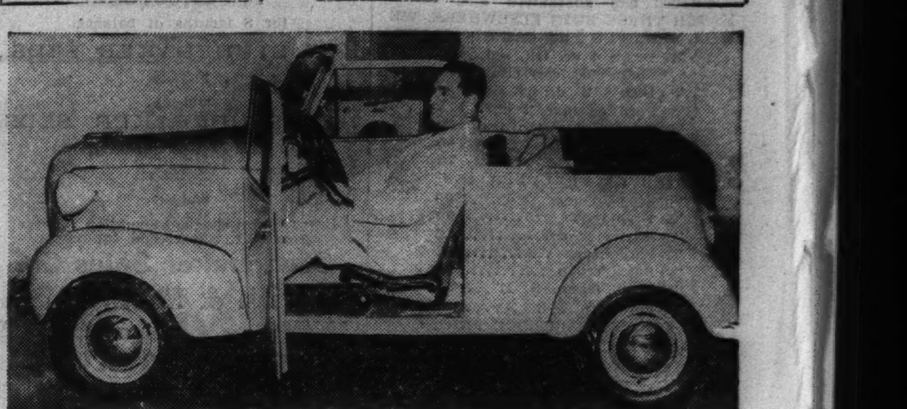
First May Be Northwest.

It is pure speculation, but still not a bad guess, that the first of the superhighway routes to get under construction will be the one to the northwest. Its location, abutting the existing railway embankment, has the united endorsement of civic clubs in that section of the city. The local organizations have been active for the last decade in advocating the improvement.

Residents of the northwest now have a choice of using narrow and congested diagonal streets or of detouring the way of the lake front for their trips to and from the central business district. The route also is needed as an urban connection for the fan of state highways, including Skokie road, which approach the city from the north and northwest.

However, a superhighway directly west from the central district is needed more than any other. Accident records and studies of trafic delays label the west side as the most difficult and dangerous for auto travel of any neighborhood in the city.

New Crosley Comes to Chicago



Leon Mandel in the new small Crosley automobile. This new car, planned for economy in operation, has a two cylinder engine and is said to have a gasoline consumption of 50 miles to the gallon. It has a speed of 50 miles an hour. The car weighs 925 pounds. Gear shift and steering arrangement are similar to the larger cars. It is ten feet long from bumper to bumper on a wheelbase of eighty inches. The new Crosley will be sold in Chicago by Mandel Brothers.

ILLINOIS WILL SEEK BUSINESS FROM TOURISTS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., July 1. America today is indulging in its favorite recreation—automobile touring. The week of Fourth of July marks the peak of the summer vacation season. Judging from reports from throughout the country, this is a big season, perhaps a record-breaker for volumes of long distance motoring.

Catering to this recreational driving has become a major industry in this country. The American Automobile association last year estimated that four billion dollars was spent in pleasure touring. This year the figure probably will be exceeded.

Michigan, Wisconsin Profit.

Michigan and Wisconsin are two of the leading states in profiting from entertaining vacationists. Economic surveys have indicated that the annual gross revenue from pleasure visitors in these states with their cool woods and lakes, approximates $400,000,000.

Under a bill awaiting Gov. Horner's signature, Illinois is going to bid for a larger portion of this tourist business in the future. The legislation appropriates $250,000 for advertising the attractions of this state during the next two years.

Stretching from the foot of Lake Michigan to the Ohio river, Illinois is in the path of much east and west cross-country travel. Its reputation for "prairies gently rolling" has not invited many to tarry on their motor journeys.

Campaign Will Inform Public.

In a national promotional campaign, the touring public is to be told of much in this state that is worth a stop the entertainment available in Chicago, the Lincoln memorials in and near the capital here, the state parks, and such. The state is not all prairie. Rivers with wooded bluffs form much of its boundary and through its center flows the Illinois with scenery from highways comparable to the better known Hudson river drive.

With little or no promotion in the past, the annual gross receipts from recreational motoring in Illinois have been estimated at $75,000,000. Advertising by other states has brought about a measurable increase in their revenues from this source. Sponsors of that $250,000 fund for Illinois argued successfully to the legislature that only a small percentage of increase in Illinois' tourist business will justify this expenditure.

NEWS AND VIEWS

The 1939 Chicago Automobile show will have for one of its features a used car section, the show committee announced yesterday. Decision to include the section resulted from the success which met the experiment of selling used cars at last year's show. M. J. Lanahan is chairman of the show committee. This year's show will be held Nov. 4 to 12 at the International amphitheater.

Cadillac salesmen in the Chicago district will hold their annual golf tournament at the Briargate Country club on Tuesday, July 11. Players will tee off at 1:30 p. m. Prizes will be awarded to the salesmen on a basis of new cars sold during June. Cadillac sales executives have been invited by the salesmen to be their guests at the dinner after the game.

Nash reports the development of a new type of welding gun for use in the building of its car bodies which will cut costs and give a better product. The new gun, which was developed at the Seaman body plant of the Nash-Kelvinator corporation, was perfected after 12 years of experiments by Nash engineers. The device is said to make it possible to obtain 275 welded spots per minute compared with 90 to 125 spots with conventional welding equipment. The new system, which eliminates several steps in welding and thereby cuts costs, is said also to speed up the manufacturing operation.

Chevrolet reports that the new vacuum gearshift has scored one of the biggest successes with the public of any automotive feature it has ever brought out. Approximately 90 per cent of 1939 Chevrolet purchasers have taken cars equipped with the new type of gearshift. The device is called a safety medium because it enables the motorist to drive without removing either hand from the wheel. The shift operates with the flick of a finger, the vacuum booster supplying 80 per cent of the effort.

A group of 12 factory executives of the Dodge Truck division of the Chrysler corporation left Detroit last week for a series of sales meetings throughout the country. Included in the group are Frank J. Timmens, general sales manager; Tom W. Moss, director of truck sales, and Don T. Stanton, also a sales director. The action reverses the usual procedure of calling in the field representatives to the factory.

The Metropolitan Chicago Buick Salesmen's association at its second annual meeting at the Knickerbocker hotel elected M. J. McCarthy, with the Gordon Buick company, president. Dan Marteeny of the West Side Buick company was elected first vice president, Frank Pirotte of the Broadway Buick company second vice president, and Wallace P. Smith, with the South Shore Buick company, secretary-treasurer.

VOICE OF TRAFIC

APPLAUDS SAFETY LANES.

Chicago, June 28.—I have noticed letters criticizing the Chicago safety lanes. May I raise my voice in protest?

[a] The correspondents complain of waiting, that is obviously their own fault for delaying a trip to the inspection stations. During March and April my car was inspected three times, one rejection, one pass and a courtesy test. In each case, the total time spent was less than five minutes. These late comers have had that opportunity, but have failed to make use of it.

[b] There are complaints of discourtesy. Well, who can blame the testing men, overworked as they are, due to the stupidity of the late comers, who are responsible for the overwork. As a matter of fact, I found the men to be exceptionally courteous and helpful. They apparently went out of their way to be nice to me.

[c] There are complaints of poor quality testing. I am a fair mechanic, and I will gladly say that the testing machinery used was the best I have ever seen, and that the men operating it obviously knew their business. One large sales and service company assured me that my brakes were excellent, as tested on their machine, yet the city rejected them. Well, a simple application of the brakes on the road showed strong unevenness, one of the wheels skidded long before the others began to work. Now who was right, the city or the private garage.

[d] There are suggestions that private garages do the work. This is done in Maryland and in Massachusetts, in both of which states I have owned cars. The results are unspeakable, officially adjusted headlights are glaring, officially adjusted brakes won't hold. It is not possible to give these private garages the supervision necessary to insure a thorough test such as Chicago now actually gives. Maryland and Massachusetts are about the worst states I have ever driven in for headlight glare; Illinois is unquestionably the best.

I am, as you can see, thoroughly in favor of the Illinois system. Only, may the inspections be more frequent and more severe. ERIC DURAND.

REGULATE STOP LIGHTS.

Chicago, June 28.—The need for improved facilities for trafic to the west of the city is admitted by all. It will probably be another ten years or so before anything is done to open up one way streets or effect other major improvements.

Meanwhile much could be accomplished without any expense by so regulating the stop lights that cars could travel at uniform speed of twenty-five miles an hour without being held up every few blocks. It is next to impossible to drive either way on Washington boulevard during the rush hours between Laramie and Crawford and not be held up two or three times by the red lights. This is especially true of the lights at Keeler, Kildare, Kostner, and Karlov. If the intent is to stop all trafic at these intersections the job can't be improved.

Another great gain could be effected by enforcing the ban against parking on the boulevards during the rush hours. This would give drivers the benefit of all four lanes for travel instead of being reduced to two. All that would be required to accomplish this would be the regular systematic and persistent arrest of offenders.

In no very long time these parking hogs would learn that this regulation really meant something. B. T. ROBERTS.

NORTH SIDE CURBS.

Chicago, June 19.—In the street improvements now going on on the near north side, incident to the subway construction and the widening of Grand avenue, it is noted that nothing is being done about eliminating the high curbs which have always been a particular public nuisance in this section.

Chicago is notorious internationally for this particular form of civic insanity. Particularly in the loop and contiguous territory the curbs are so high in some places that walking becomes a hardship, the pedestrian having to hoist himself from a foot to a foot and a half at every street and alley intersection, an unnecessary waste of energy, as a high curb serves no useful purpose.

It would seem that where the streets are being revamped and new paving is being laid this imposition could be corrected permanently. CHARLES GRANT.

Here Is a List That May Help to Solve Problems in Home

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

[Copyright: 1939: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

ARE you perhaps inwardly disturbed or really distressed about something? If so, that fact may account for the annoying or even the seriously undesirable behavior of your children.

Whether you are disturbed or not, here's a list that I think is well worth scanning. It's not exactly a questionnaire. You might call it a "perhaps-maybe" list:

1. Perhaps without realizing it (or with realizing it!) you're jealous of your husband's devotion to the children. Perhaps you begrudge the time he spends on them. He may be more father than husband, and perhaps you're so constituted that you're more wife than mother.

2. Perhaps you have a special hate for housework and it continually rubs you the wrong way, spoiling your disposition.

3. Or perhaps (we're working the perhapses hard today) you were used to a great deal of physical freedom and outdoors or lots of social life before you were married and the confinement of housework and the care of babies irks you and makes you feel "trapped."

4. Perhaps your husband's people make life miserable for you.

5. Or possibly you are stirred up by some highly personal emotional conflict.

6. Perhaps your husband gives you no companionship, lavishing everything on his business or outside interests. Or you may be suspecting or imagining another woman in his life.

7. Maybe you've gotten into a habit of nervous apprehension because the children have been sick so much, so that your ability to deal calmly with them is impaired. Or you may not be well yourself and are doing nothing about it except fret.

8. Possibly you've gotten into the way of never going anywhere and never getting away from the children.

9. Or you may spend so much of your vital energy on being a perfect housekeeper and on keeping the children spic and span that you've none left to enjoy them, and to be a cheerful, wise manager of them. You can't use tag ends on the children; they're far too trying and important to thrive on left-overs of energy and emotion, as well as of food.

10. And as the last that we'll attempt to define today, you may have some art or craft or other occupation that you love, and the care of your children may make it impossible for you to have even a minute for it.

Such emotions seething or simmering within you may cause conflicts which impair your happiness and efficiency as a mother.

I don't believe in too much self-analysis. But when things are going badly between yourselves and your children, when their behavior is chronically bad, something has to be done. One important thing is to find out whether the trouble is within yourself, whether the reason for your not being able to function well as a mother is because you're all "tied

Parisian Stylists Find the "Heroine" Mode Hard to Kill

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS.—[Special.]—We're feeling pretty romantic in these hectic days when war clouds hang in both the eastern and western skies. There's no moment as romantic as that when danger is an active threat, and the ladies, God bless 'em, respond by doing their best to look like the heroines they feel. This probably is the chief reason behind the crop of "heroine" clothes which refuse to die out of the midseason styles, in spite of many dressmakers' attempts to oust them.

There are Empress Josephine evening gowns, crisp, corseted, rustling, and lace trimmed dresses that look the Edwardian lady to the life, and have all Queen Alexandra's queenliness, when designed for evening. There are, in the Balenciaga show, lots of evening gowns that ape the Spanish Infanta, with their enormous skirts that have panniered hipline effects and insignificant bodices. At Alix's there are slinky frocks that remind you of the ancient queens of Egypt. And, all over the place, you can pick and choose among the filmy, bouffant frocks, inspired by Empress Eugenia, which, although not news, still are going strong. "Every woman a queen" is the idea, apparently.

Daytime dresses that are romantic in a less exalted way carry on the spring fashions for very full daytime skirts and fitted blouses, with plenty of lace, embroidery, and ribbon for trimming. Summer coats in the Lucien Lelong collection are made of crisp taffeta and lined and revered with crisp white dotted swiss, edged with lace. They simply spread romance on the summer air. Molyneux's calico printed silk frocks, in luscious pastel colors, with their gathered skirts and white embroidery trimming, do the same. Paquin's heavenly blue velveteen coats, lined with stencil printed cotton batiste, and paired off with lace trimmed frocks of the batiste, are in the same spirit.

Not since Queen Alexandra's day have Paris dressmakers shown summer coats and jackets made of course ecru lace, like those seen in Schiaparelli's show and Lucien Lelong's. And those incredible linings inside Balenciaga's full daytime skirts are a positive incitement of romantic situations.

Schiaparelli's cartwheel hats with melting, transparent brims that completely cover the face, make any woman look like a heroine, and her toques that are covered with currants, cherries, grapes, and wine leaves introduce a bacchanalian note into the new styles. Chanel's floral hats, like sweet pea borders in an old fashioned garden, worn with pink or mauve taffeta ensembles, give summer afternoons their full quota of the romantic. Balenciaga's ostrich plume toques and ostrich handbags, as well as his velvet gloves and canteen handbags, are appropriate details for this intensely romantic mode.

Touches of coral velvet, in the shape of bows and bands, are seen on simple summer dresses. Old fashioned flesh pink comes back to make summer jackets and sheer chiffon blouses worn

So often I am asked for weight and measurement figures and this is the season we women are most figure conscious, too, or should be if beach addicts, that I think it well to give you all the best information I have available on the subject so that you may arrive at some conclusion about what your figure measurements should be. So, without further preamble, here goes:

To Catherine Van Rennselaer, director of physical education, American Woman's club, we are indebted for matron's figures as compiled from actual statistics in the department.

YOUNG MATRON.

Average.	Perfection.
Age, 28-35 years	Age, 28-35 years
Height, 5 ft. 6½ in.	Height, 5 ft. 6½ in.
Weight, 134-138 lbs.	Weight, 134 lbs.
Arm, 11⅛ in.	Arm, 11⅛ in.
Bust, 36 in.	Bust, 35 in.
Waist, 29½ in.	Waist, 29 in.
Hips, 38½ in.	Hips, 37 in.
Thigh, 21 in.	Thigh, 21 in.

OLDER MATRON.

Average.	Perfection.
Age, 35-40 years	Age, 35-40 years
Height, 5 ft. 6½ in.	Height, 5 ft. 6½ in.
Weight, 143½ lbs.	Weight, 138-140 lbs.
Bust, 36½ in.	Bust, 36 in.
Waist, 31½ in.	Waist, 28 in.
Hips, 39½ in.	Hips, 38 in.
Thigh, 22½ in.	Thigh, 21 in.
Arm, 12¼ in.	Arm, 12 in.

The Hollywood type runs to this pattern: Measure your wrist and multiply the result by six. Measure your hips. If the measurement is the same as your wrist's circumference times six, your hips are in perfect proportion to the rest of you. By the same scale, your waist will be four and a quarter times your wrist; and your chest, five and a half times; your thigh, three and a half times; calf, two and a quarter times; ankle, one and a quarter times. For your bust take the chest measurement, made just under your arms, and add one and a half to three inches. For your height, you needn't worry what it is, as long as you have good proportions for your size.

We must add, however, that the Hollywood standard is thinner than most doctors advise because of photography's trick of thickening the figure.

These are measurements of one of the most successful models. Although she weighs only 124 pounds [she is 20 years old], according to life insurance statistics she should weigh 135 pounds. Her height is 5 ft. 6¾ in.; head size, 21½ in.; neck, 12 in.; upper arm, 9½ in.; bust, 34 in.; waist, 24 in.; wrist, 6 in.; hips, 34 in.; thigh, 19½ in.; calf, 13½ in.; ankle, 8 in.

Another popular model's measurements [same age] read: 5 ft. 8 in.; 135 lbs.; bust, 35 in.; 36½ in. for hips, and 25 in. for waist.

The famous "Rockettes" usually are given a place in the scheme of arriving at good figure measurements. We learn from this source the measurements generally accepted in this famous lineup:

Height, 5 ft. 6 in.
Weight, 125 lbs.
Bust, 34 in.
Waist, 26 in.
Hips, 36 in.
Thigh, 20 in.

HEALTHY TYPE.

The following table is the average weight for women according to height and age. It is based on the medico-actuarial study of more than 130,000 insured women, as compiled by the Metropolitan Life Insurance company.

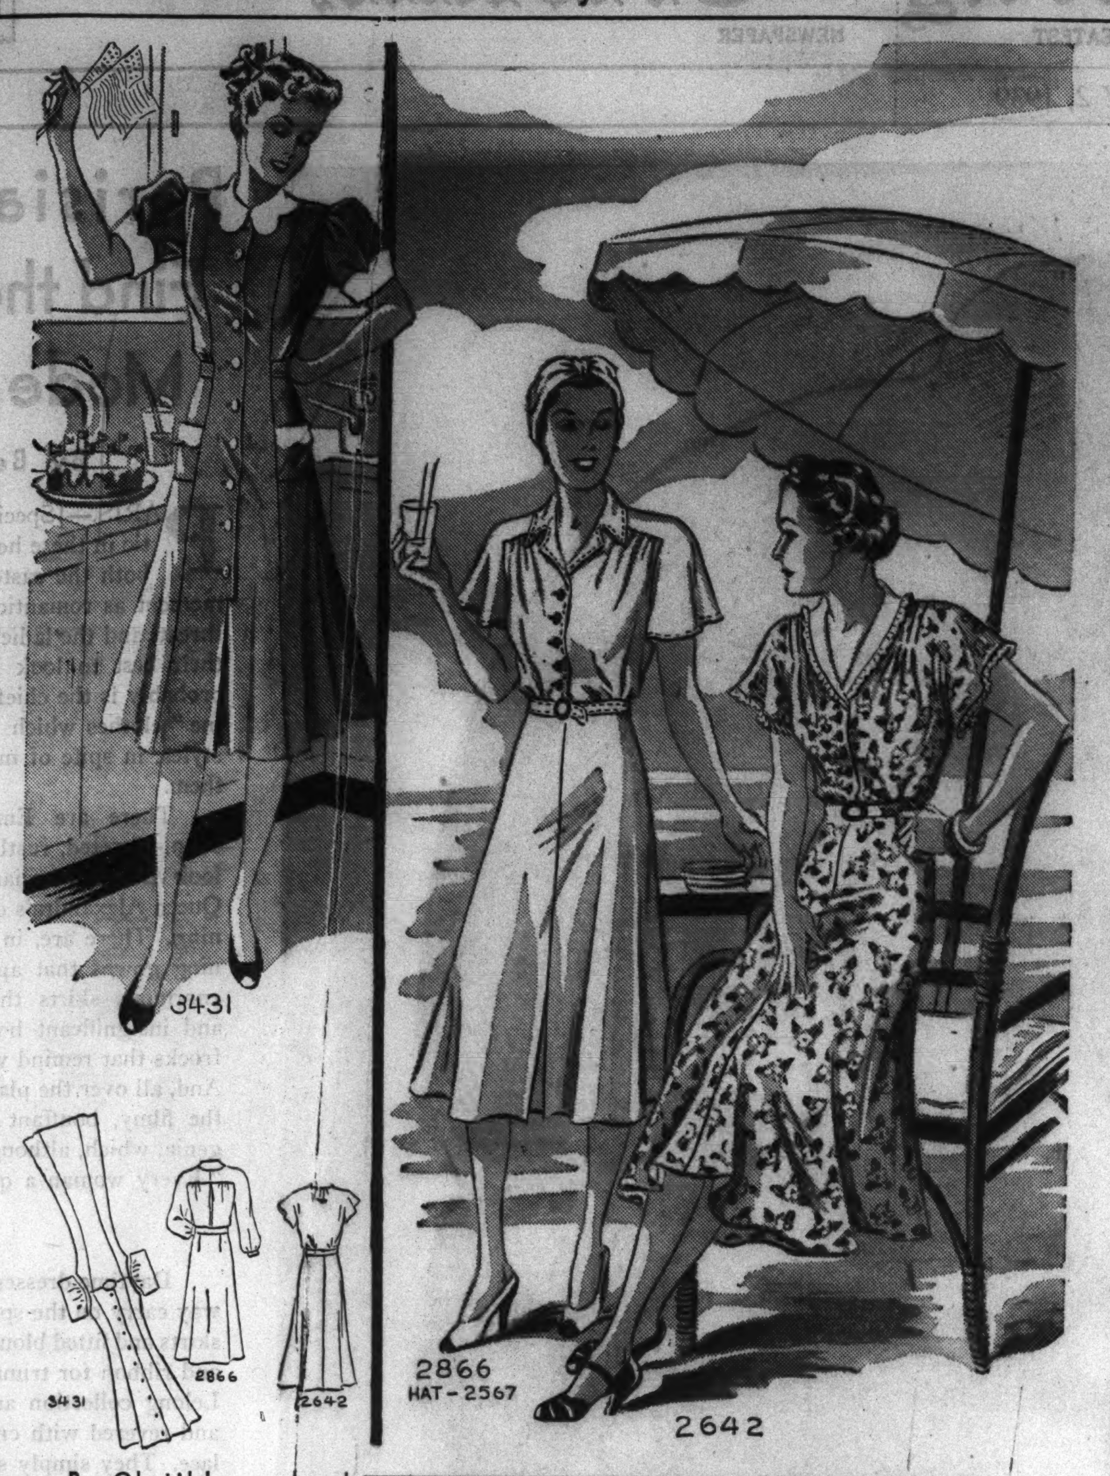
Patterns by Clotilde



By Clotilde.

For your days of informal entertaining at home, at the country place, and for events in the afternoon at the golf club, you will need a variety of cool, semi-tailored, and washable frocks. Three patterns today should solve your wardrobe problem.

At the left, a modified version of the princess style, designed for slim as well as rather heavy silhouettes. The round neckline has a contrasting scalloped collar, matched by the cuffs on the short puffed sleeves. More of the same detail graces the two pockets. Buttons to match are used down the front. Paneling creates a grand line for this dress and an inverted plait, plus flare, gives the skirt grace.

Center, a modified shirtwaist frock with opened-up lapel collarline, sleeves cut in one with the shoulderline, and buttons down the front closing the softly shirred bodice. Stitching accents the collar, sleeves, closing and self-fabric belt. The moderately flared skirt has an inverted plait in the front. A hat to accompany this dress is made with pattern No. 2567, available in one headsize only, easily adapted to your needs.

Right, a rather dressy tailored dress ideal in handkerchief linen and other soft washable sheers. Floral-sprigged fabrics are dainty and feminine. You might give the organdy contrasting collar an edging of lace, and repeat the treatment on the kimono sleeves. The skirt is molded at the hip and flared at the hemline.

Quiz Offered to Help Solve Home Problems

up in knots" in your personal life. If you are, bring this thing, whatever it is, out in the open—face it—change it if you can, but if you can't, try to make the best of it.

But airing a thing, just bringing it out in the light of day, will often put you into a healthy state of mind and nerves, which will relieve tension and make you able to manage and enjoy the children. Then if, having put your inner house in order, you can see clearly that you don't quite know how to do this or to get that concrete result with them, it usually is easy to obtain help from outside sources, among which we will gladly list ourselves.

We can give you such suggestions on management as the following:

What to do about the small child's constant "No."

When to exercise patience.

How to obtain obedience without fussing or punishment.

What to do when your child brings home "bad" words.

How to understand and manage that difficult age—from 6 to 12.

What adolescence is, physically and psychologically, and how to handle your teen age boy and girl.

How to guide your small child who wants to touch everything.

What to do about poor mealtime habits.

How to put your child to bed and to sleep.

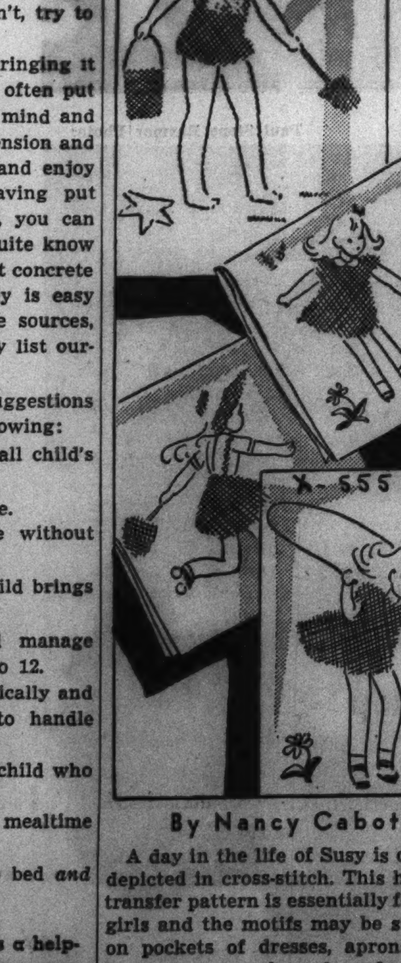
"Tips for Tired Mothers" is a helpful leaflet. In requesting this or any other information send a large, stamped, addressed envelope for each problem. Address Mrs. Gladys Bevans, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago, Ill.

Day in the Life of Susy Depicted in Cross-Stitch



By Nancy Cabot.

A day in the life of Susy is cleverly depicted in cross-stitch. This hot iron transfer pattern is essentially for little girls and the motifs may be stamped on pockets of dresses, aprons, bibs, or used on towels and as decorative motifs on a quilt or pillow.

For the cross-stitch transfer pattern of Susy's activities, No. X-555, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 5th avenue, New York City.

'Heroine' Mode Dies Hard; It's Still with Us

with black dresses and suits in the Bruyère show. Schiaparelli's musical handbags, that play sweetheart tunes of other days, induce, in the summer of 1939, the sweet sentiment of bygone days.

A Balenciaga "heroine" fashion is an ensemble of sparkling champagne satin, beloved by fashion forty years ago. It has a voluminous skirt and a very low cut draped bodice. A bolero jacket of ebony velvet makes the dress demure and proper in the open air, and the tabs at the front, passing under a champagne satin, tie-on belt, hold the jacket firmly in place. A toque of black ostrich plumes is tied on with narrow black velvet ribbons.

Balenciaga's black taffeta afternoon dress, with the fantastic skirt lining, has a circular skirt, with a ruched hem of the taffeta on the outside and a much deeper hem of the same type on the inside. Bows of coral velvet ribbon are scattered over the inside hem. The blouse of the dress is closely fitted with bias bands, making the wide waistline seem more fitted. A dickey of shirred taffeta has a coral velvet bow across it.

Paquin's strikingly romantic summer evening gowns of white organdy, striped from bosom to hem with graded bands of black taffeta, has short puffed sleeves and a high neckline with a demure bow of the white organdy. The skirt is very full, made so by circular cutting, and worn over a starched petticoat.

Lucien Lelong's dark blue taffeta coat to wear in hot weather has a full swing skirt and fitted top. It is lined with white cotton dotted swiss, which makes the wide revers and the narrow ruffle edges, and which shows down the skirt closing in narrow bands. The dark blue dress has three white dotted swiss bows down the blouse.

The summer flower salad suggested in the first menu is the most unusual of the foods in these plans. It makes a very attractive special occasion salad with its decorations of real flowers.

Use individual round molds or a large star-shaped mold for this salad. For individual molds you'll need a fresh pansy or daisy apiece. It will take ten flowers to decorate the points of the large star mold.

Here's how: Make a lemon gelatin mixture using plain or flavored gelatin and following instructions on the package. Coat the molds all over the inside with the gelatin mixture, and chill until the coating is firm. Dip fresh, carefully washed and perfect flowers into the gelatin mixture. Place one face down in the bottom of each individual mold, pressing petals down firmly.

For the star mold, press a flower firmly against each side of the star tips, arranging one side at a time. Chill until firmly anchored. When flowers are set arrange honeydew and watermelon balls in the bottom of the molds and pour in enough gelatin to cover. Chill again until firm. Add remainder of gelatin and chill. If the melon ball layer isn't firm when the last of the gelatin is added the fruit is likely to float.

When this salad is turned out the flowers are beautifully exposed.

I don't usually approve of combining the nonedible with the edible for the table, but this salad is pretty and appetizing, and the flowers really aren't an impediment to eating.

It's a Help to Me, Says—

Teresa M. D., Chicago: I keep lemon juice on hand in hot weather and find that by putting a few drops in a glass of cold water your thirst is quickly quenched. Some of my family prefer vinegar, just a few drops, of course, but I react to that with a wry face and can't quite manage it. Lemon, however, does help.

Edith Butler, 1912 Lincoln Park West, Chicago: To avoid starch showing on dark clothes, I turn clothing inside out and carefully lay them in starch, squeezing it through from the wrong side.

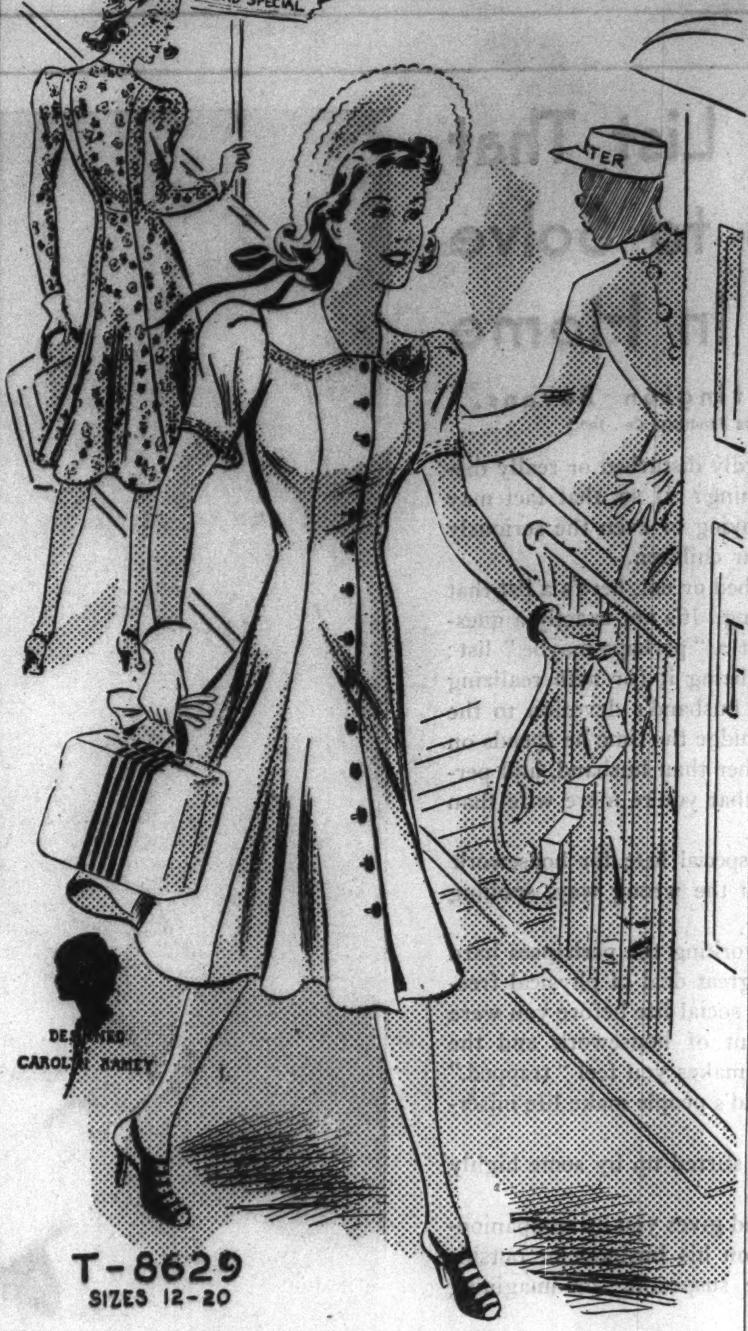
Co-Ed Patterns



By Carolyn Ramey.

This is the season of week-ends. What happens during the week doesn't seem to matter so much, from the social point of view, because usually activities are of a serious nature, with co-eds planning next year's courses, or reading like mad all the books they've wanted to read and couldn't during the school year. Business girls, too, work all week and spend the week-ends out at country homes and on visits to friends in other cities. All this leads up to my week-end special, a trig little princess frock whose destiny in life is to remain smart and fresh during train, plane, and motor trips. It's such a simple dress that you can make it yourself some evening you've devoted to a home facial and a session with the tin curlers.

My own "week-ender" is of wheat colored linen, with the stitching around shoulder yoke and sleeves in japonica. The buttons are japonica, too. The kerchief in the little left pocket is NOT japonica, however. It's a third color note, bright green!

You may, if you wish, use a printed instead of a plain fabric for this dress, and linen is not the only good fabric, by any means. I think gingham an excellent choice, and pique is tops for crispness. There are the seersuckers, too, patterned and plain, that absolutely refuse to be crushed by the weather or by travel.

Silk mixtures would make up well, because there are no plaits in this dress that would require endless pressing. But the material you select must be heavy enough to hang well, since the simplicity of this dress demands that its grooming be impeccable.

Style No. T-8629 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20. Size 16 requires 3⅝ yards of 39 inch material.

Clotilde Children's Patterns

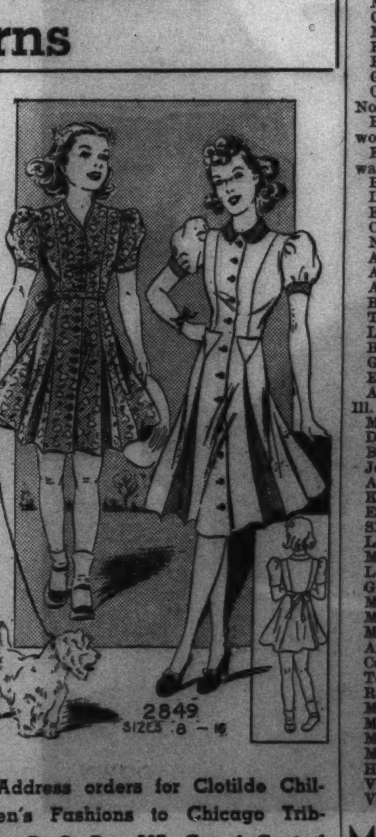
Girls between the ages of eight and 16 usually look especially well in princess frocks, because the lines flatter the rather angular proportions of growing-ups. Youngsters under 12 like frocks of this type for Sunday best and other social occasions, and those around 16, having their first real fling at being adults, prefer this style for "dates" because it is definitly dressy in spite of its simplicity. The princess frock offered in our pattern today has several new details that lift it out of the ordinary.

The neckline may be V and simply bound, or high and round with a contrasting Peter Pan collar. Buttons down the front may be arranged in an even row or be grouped in duets, trios or in any other way that strikes your fancy. They are important factors in color contrast, too. If you use the contrasting collar, give the short puffed sleeves some cuffs to match. Pockets, if you like them, are provided for. They are triangular in shape and cleverly styled. A self-fabric belt may be used around the waist, if you so prefer.

Further use of contrast is afforded by the plaits. Notice, in the sketch at the right, that the front plaits are lined with the material that fashions the collar and cuffs.

Linens, cottons, and wash silks of all types make up well. Prints and plain shades are equally popular, and combinations of both are fashionable.

Style No. 2849 is designed for sizes 8, 10, 12, 14, and 16. Size 12 requires 2¾ yards of 39 inch material, with ⅝ yard of 39 inch contrasting.



Address orders for Clotilde Children's Fashions to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Sally's Second Party to Be at Baseball Game

By Sally Joy Brown.

Activities of the Sally Joy Brown department are sponsored by Tribune Charities, Inc.

Can't keep the good news a minute longer, boys and girls! It's time for the announcement of our second party, and I have no doubt about how you're going to like it!

Having conducted these parties given by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE for many years, I have a pretty good idea what you youngsters like, and I know very well how you feel about nine good innings of baseball.

On Thursday, July 13, the Chicago White Sox will meet Philadelphia at Comiskey park, and here's the best part—100 boys and girls will be invited to see the game with me!

J. Louis Comiskey has kindly provided tickets for 50 boys and 50 girls. If you'd like to be in that group, get busy and don't let anything silly such as a firecracker get in the way.

I know all you White Sox fans are anxious to see your particular favorites, so just sit right down and tell me all about it. I want to take as my guests the youngsters who'll enjoy the party most. I can't judge that unless you tell me, and the best way to do that is to write a letter. Tell me anything you think will help to prove that you really want an invitation to this party, and don't forget to include your name, address and age in your letter or out it goes! All mail must be on my desk by next Thursday morning at the latest. I'll read every last one of them, and choose the boys and girls I think are most anxious to come.

Next Sunday, just one short week from today, this column will carry the names of the lucky youngsters who've won invitations, just as today the following list will tell you which of all the boys and girls who wrote in are invited to see "Goodbye, Mr. Chips" with me.

I'll tell you more about our big baseball party tomorrow, but don't wait to send that letter off to Sally Joy Brown, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago. Better do it today, because with an extra holiday such as the Fourth of July coming along, you just might forget until too late.

Here's the second bit of good news for you boys and girls, that is, for the youngsters whose names are included in the following list. They're winners, and each and every one of them will receive a personal invitation to "Goodbye, Mr. Chips" early next week. We'll see this fine picture at the Apollo theater on July 6. If your address is incorrect, please let me know immediately, so your letter won't go astray. Sorry I couldn't take every one of the hundreds who wanted to come, but you'll have plenty of time to try again. See you Thursday, boys and girls!

Evening Wraps Adopt Feathers and High Color

By Rhea Seeger.

Color contrast and fabrics, together with low price marks, make the current collections of flattering evening wraps for summer costumes alluring and irresistible to appreciative shoppers. Feathers, such as ostrich and marabou, come in delectable shades of wine, pink, chartreuse, blue, and darker contrasts such as mink brown, royal blue, and black.

Very spectacular boleros are made of tinted coq feathers in chartreuse, flaming red, and royal blue, while shorter capes and becoming short boleros are especially attractive because of the small price marks and the luxury look of the thick marabou. Curled and uncurled ostrich feathered coats clearing the hipline, long capes or shorter swaggers are dramatic toppers for clinging chiffons, slinky silk jerseys, or bouffant gowns of airy sheers.

New this summer are the dozens of pastel and high colored wool jackets cut with a flare in the back, long loose wide sleeves, and without collars. Some luscious affairs come in bonbon tints with the edges trimmed in a delicate quilted design. Other woolens, a trifle thicker, flash with the glitter of gold buttons. The fire truck red models take top honors! All kinds of cool white wools are excellent all-purpose buys, for they are cut with telling simplicity, and can be worn with every color.

Chiffon velvet is another summer charmer, the velvet almost as feather weight as thick silk or satin. High shades and pastels are plentiful. Some of these velvet beauties are colorfully stitched in floral designs like puffy quilting with the thread in the contrast color. Most of the coats of this material are cut in the same becoming flared style as the flannels and woolens. Likewise, the high colored taffetas and moires, with plenty of stunning all black finds available lined with either blending or contrasting thin silk.

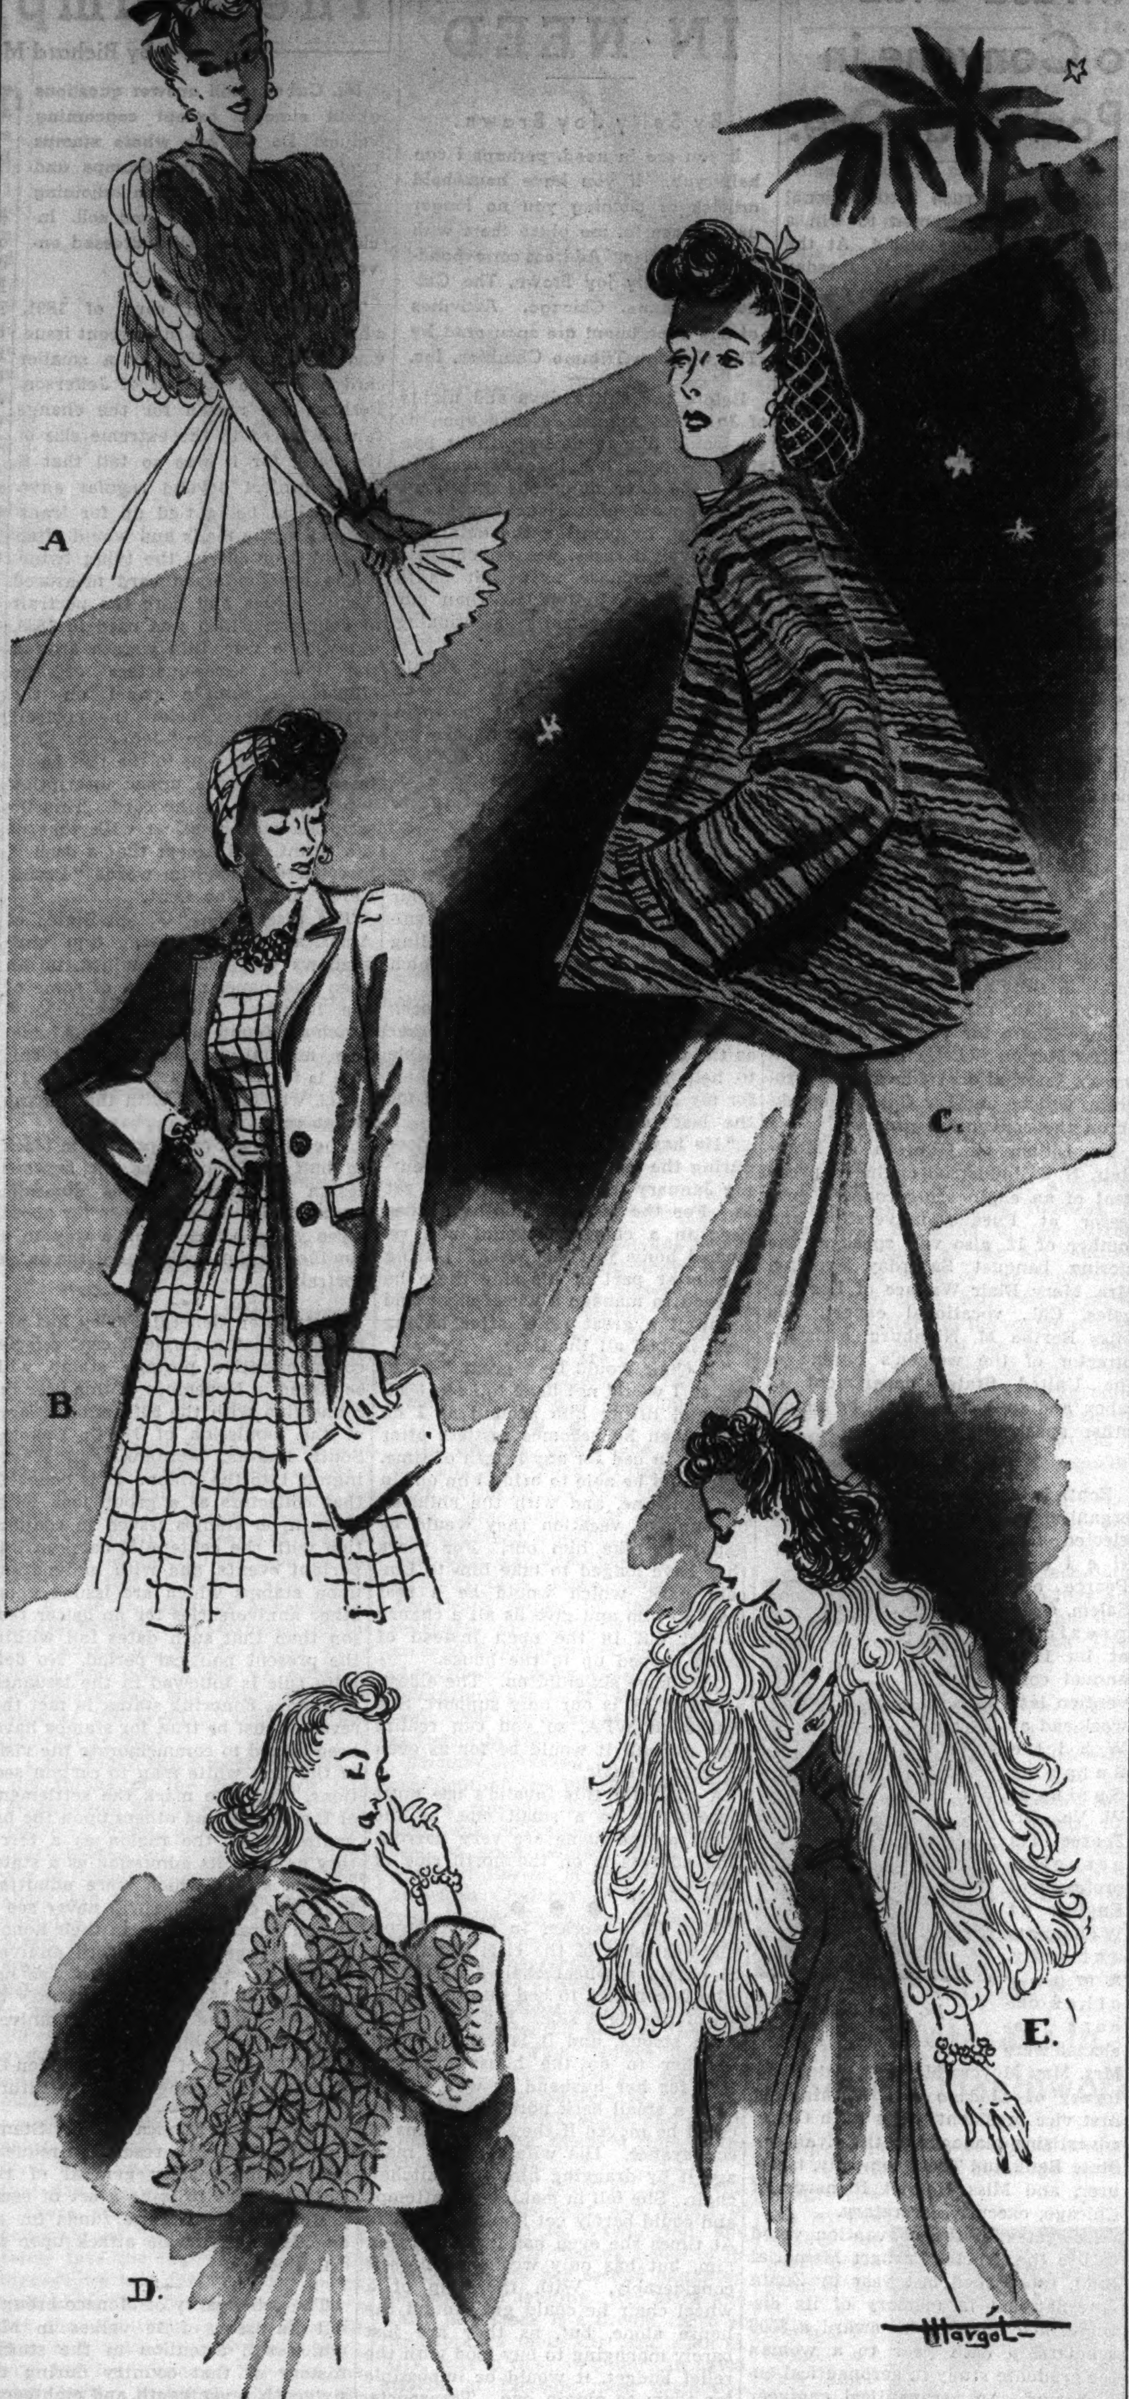
Snug little fitted evening jackets are made of old-fashioned fabrics such as corded silks and bengalines, the sleeves artfully puffed high at the shoulders, the jackets themselves fitted to hug the ribs and ending with a perky peplum not over four inches deep. Black, turquoise, oyster white, salmon pink, and lip-stick red assure a good color choice. Velveteen is always effective, especially in strong clear colors for contrast. Velveteens are featured in swaggers as well as boxy type longer models that can be worn with afternoon prints and chiffon daytime clothes.

While there are some long summer coats, the best finds are the young affairs cut short and with a flare in the back. Handsome dull white moires make some very effective long fitted models that are unlined, and also in the same long streamline are some ice blues. Short wraps and coats in spanking white sharkskin are tagged with extremely interesting price marks. These are the frosting tops for cool cottons, nets, and voiles of brilliant color, ideal for country parties throughout the season.

Five summer party and evening wraps have been sketched. Some are equal to good contrast service all the year 'round; others are just for warm weather.

Gala Accents for Summer Parties

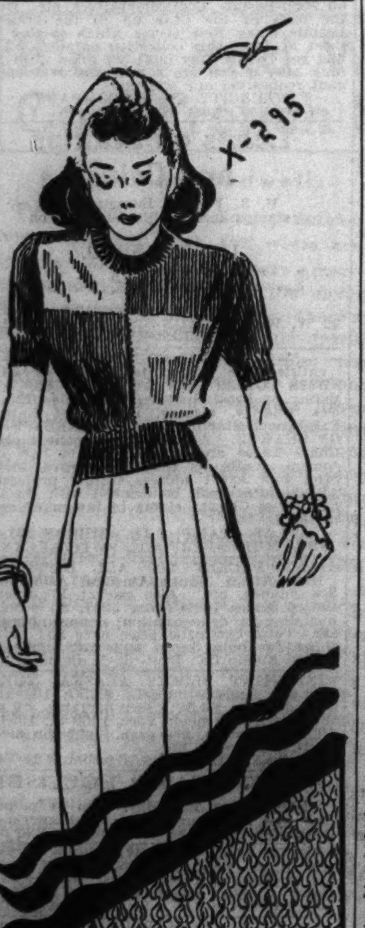


A—Short, picturesque, and colorful are the coq feather jackets similar to this new arrival. Three shades—chartreuse, royal blue, and scarlet—provide contrasts or accents for summer costumes. Such models are collarless and slenderizing. ● B—Smooth flannel, cut with smart simplicity, fashions this evening coat with shaped sleeves and a flare in the back. Comes in red, white, and a few pastels. ● C—Smart summertime toppers for cotton party clothes are the gay swing jackets of gypsy striped corded material. Stripes are very narrow and unusually cool and effective against the dull white background. ● D—Demure and charming, new summer velvet jackets feature unusual accents such as a delicate floral quilted pattern with outlines in colored thread. ● E—Most dramatic summer evening coats are of uncurled ostrich feathers attached to a chiffon foundation. In white, black, colors.

Grosgrain for Negligees.

Among new room robes and negligees on display in Paris are models in white grosgrain silk, in printed ribbed silk and in pale rose crêpe. The sheer crêpe model is incrusted with apricot satin in a sunray design on the bodice, falling into a wide panel down the front of the skirt. Wine colored moiré ribbon shirs in the waist and neck of the printed coat, and finishes in long front bows. The white grosgrain robe is paterned with white satin polka dots and fastened with gold filigree buttons.

Knitted Sweater Is Checked for Unusual Effect



By Jean Macdonald.

Easily the most distinguished hand knitted sweater on the style horizon this season is the utterly simple one, knitted of navy and white lightweight wool. The checks for the back of the sweater are the reverse of the front. And for another arrangement the predominant color may be white with only the checks of navy. It is a simple knitting job with instructions available in 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measurement.

For instructions in knitting the checkered sweater, No. X-295, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 5th avenue, New York City.

'New Deal' in France Runs Into Trouble

By May Birkhead.

NEW YORK. A sojourn of a few weeks in the homeland, after many years of residence in France, inevitably turns the thoughts to the common problems that confront the two countries. The recent leftish government in France, taking its cue from the promises of the American New Deal, began three years ago its program of trying to level fortunes, to reduce the hours of labor, to bring back prosperity by pump-priming, to arrange a huge program of social security.

Heavy taxing of capital was to be one of the means of raising money quickly in order to effect these changes. The result was to produce a great fear which soon extended not only to the rich but to those with modest savings. The experiment probably would have gone on longer, with an even greater demoralization in politics and general economy, had not the danger of invasion brought a change.

Then there is the smaller matter of betting at the races. Many years ago the pari-mutuel system was adopted in France, where it was recognized that betting on horse races would take place, laws or no laws. So the thing was legalized. About fifteen years ago the totalisateur machine was adopted, and it functions smoothly at all the important meets. To be sure, a few bookmakers ply their trade clandestinely on the courses, but the business they do is negligible compared to the crowds that resort to the machines.

In lighter vein we have known for some time that to convey the American term "streamlined," especially as applied to automobiles, the French had imagined aérodynamique. But, with so many places air-conditioned over here, we have been wondering how that would be phrased in France, where the process is, so to speak, virtually unused. But a French account of a lecture given recently by Frank Lloyd Wright, American architect, in Paris, speaks of a project for a building which is to be air superconditionné. This may not be the last word, however.

Just arrived here for a short stay, along with a number of French mayors, is M. Provost de Launay, president of the municipal council, or mayor of Paris. He was much in evidence last July when George VI. and his queen visited Paris, both when received by him at the Hotel de Ville, where Parisians were proud of his social graces as a host, and at the reception for the sovereigns at Bagatelle, in the Bois de Boulogne, in a verdant setting of ideal beauty. Enormous precautions were taken, it will be remembered, to insure the safety of George and Elizabeth during their stay in Paris, especially when they drove through the streets, but at Bagatelle, where admission was only by carefully supervised tickets, there was the most relaxed atmosphere of the whole stay.

British Recalling Women to Government Positions

Because compulsory military training is taking young men, the British treasury recently recalled women employés who had been dismissed when they married. Banks, businesses, and insurance companies are expected to follow suit.

July 2, 1939.

Not an especially good day for Sunday outings, but you can make it worth while if you actually do a little work today whether in the garden, around the house, or at your desk. It's a day to be constructive and practical. Those born on the 2d are home loving and domestic as a rule. They should find happiness in home life. Eugene Field, loved for his children's poems, was born on a 2d and is a good example of the characteristics of the type.

Through the Looking Glass

By Eleanor Nangle

[TRIBUNE Studio Photo.]

Like to spend your time this way? Then you'll like, as a guardian for your sensitive skin, a colorless, nongreasy liquid preparation that filters out the sun rays that blister and burn.

One of the favorites of the many preparations used to keep Mr. and M-. America from the folly of burning to a crisp as they lie on the sun baked sands is a liquid that, we're told, was developed six or seven years ago in Sweden. Skiers, as you probably know, can get terrific sun and snow burns, and their problem was a special one.

This preparation started in America in a small way. People who'd used it in Europe told their friends about it, and in almost no time it became one of the most popular of summer beauty and comfort aids. It's extremely easy to use, and dries quickly on the skin, which is a great virtue in the eyes of men and women who dislike the old method of smearing themselves with grease.

It's a thin liquid, almost colorless and virtually odorless. It is not a bit oily, and its presence on the skin isn't discernible. It films the skin, but invisibly, and the secret of its success is that it filters out those rays of the sun which blister and irritate. The sun worshipers we've asked to try it have been most enthusiastic about it. We ourselves have used it when on the water, which is a stiff test.

This liquid washes off in water. If swimming is your summer sport, apply it before you go to the beach. If your skin is very fair and sensitive, apply it at intervals during exposure. And always use it after coming out of the water.

To dry one's self in the sun after swimming always seems like a good idea on a hot day, but it's a fine way to get a dandy sunburn. By all means take a towel or two with you when you go to the beach. Dry arms, legs, face, and hair as quickly as you can. Then apply the sunburn preventive again. Let the sun dry your suit and your body, if you like, but don't let it sear your wet skin.

The big advantage of using a preparation such as this, especially for women, is that its use doesn't completely deglamorize you. An oily substance on the skin, aside from the fact that it picks up sand so irritatingly, is hardly attractive, even in the informal setting of a beach.

You might try this if you're looking for a complexion guardian that's efficient and inexpensive.

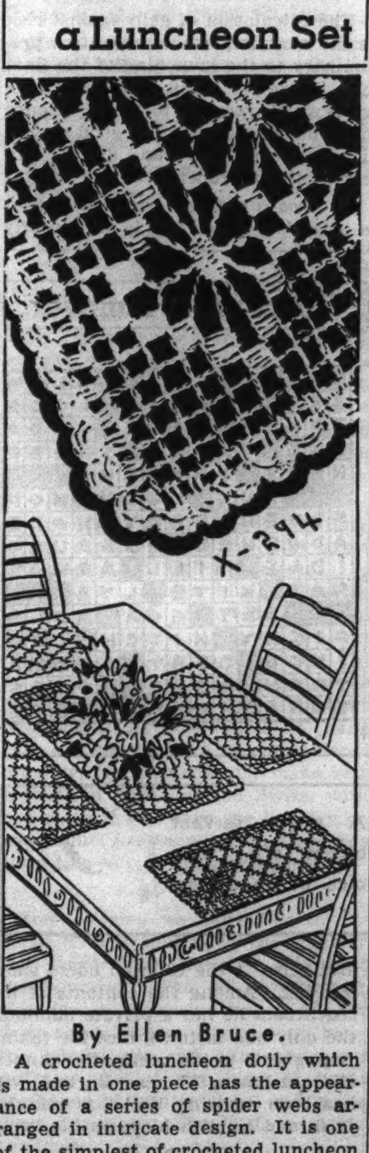
Effect of Spider Web Created in a Luncheon Set



By Ellen Bruce.

A crocheted luncheon doily which is made in one piece has the appearance of a series of spider webs arranged in intricate design. It is one of the simplest of crocheted luncheon doilies. The versatility of the pattern is recognized by starting out with one pattern and working on and on until a whole table cloth is made. White or ecru mercerized crochet cotton with a fine needle is used, but perfect results are achieved only with the use of the numbered thread and needles required.

For crocheting the spider web luncheon set in an all-over design, No. X-294, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 5th avenue, New York City.

Domestic, Personal Service Leads in Jobs for Women

There are more women working in domestic and personal service in the United States than in any other occupation.

Counselor Tells of Proposed Aid to Business Girls

Established business and professional women can help young high school and college girls to get jobs. Miss Mary G. Corre, director of the occupational research and counseling division of the Cincinnati, O., public schools, recently made several suggestions to members of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs. Miss Corre is a member of the federation's vocational advisory committee.

The obstacles which young girls must overcome in seeking jobs are lack of experience, marketable skills and business technique, Miss Corre pointed out.

Business women first can help to provide vocational guidance while girls still are in school. Then is the time, Miss Corre stressed, when girls can find what they want to do and are fitted to do. After high school or college a girl should be advised how to fit herself with additional skills. Experienced business women can tell a girl how to apply for a job through a letter or interview, Miss Corre suggested.

Miss Betty Lee Wilson Weds John K. Mitchell

Miss Betty Lee Wilson, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Alfred Lee Wilson of 4633 Greenwood avenue, became the bride of John King Mitchell, son of the Rev. and Mrs. A. Mitchell, on June 17 at the Kenwood church. The ceremony was perofrmed by the Rev. Wilson and the Rev. Mitchell. Immediately after the reception, which was held in the church parlors, Mr. Mitchell and his bride left for their summer home at Pon-she-wa-ing, Mich. They will make their home at 4633 Greenwood avenue until Mr. Mitchell graduates from the Presbyterian Theological seminary. The former Miss Wilson is a graduate of Wooster college.

Here's How to Lose Ugly Fat without suffering a hungry moment, or taking strenuous exercises or drugs

FROM coast-to-coast, you now hear women singing the praises of a thrilling new reducing method. A method which Dr. Damrau of New York demonstrated in tests among a group of intelligent and cooperative people who followed directions implicitly, was responsible for an average loss in weight of 7 pounds per month. Most amazing, this method does NOT call for special diet lists. You never suffer a hungry moment. Nor is it necessary for you to take strenuous exercises, or drugs.

All you have to do is eat sensibly, which means that you avoid overeating, and drink ¾ of a glass of Welch's Grape Juice, mixed with ¼ of a glass of water, before meals and at bedtime. Thus reducing the caloric intake considerably.

How This Pleasant Way Takes Off Excess Fat!

Nothing could be easier, or more pleasant. Yet!—this is what happens. First, this delicious drink satisfies your craving for rich, sweet foods. You have less desire to overeat fattening foods—but you do feel comfortably full. Second, the grape sugar in Welch's is quickly consumed, and by this process helps nature to consume excess fat.

Thus weight is lost naturally and safely. And this remarkable method is just as beneficial and effective for overweight men, as it is for overweight women.

NEW TYPE TOMATO JUICE THRILLS THE NATION

If you think all tomato juice is alike, try Welch's new vitamin-rich tomato juice for the thrill of your life. A noted chemist tested five brands and found Welch's Tomato Juice superior—larger Vitamin C content; as much Vitamin A as milk—and rich in Vitamin B. Welch's is so rich and thick, you can add ⅓ water, or ice, and still have a most delicious tomato juice. So it's economical to serve. Get Welch's Tomato Juice from your dealer today. It's pure, pasteurized, laboratory controlled and tested and approved by Good Housekeeping Bureau. Double your money back if you don't say it's the finest tomato juice you ever tasted.

Irene Rich, past 40, still has her lovely slenderness of 16. She recommends the easy Welch way to reduce.

Watch One Thing Carefully

Follow this proved way to take off excess fat. Eat sensibly, which means that you avoid overeating—and be sure to use Welch's pure, aged, full-strength grape juice before meals. Always made from the pick of the grape crop. No water added; no artificial coloring. Tested and approved by Good Housekeeping Bureau. Insist upon genuine Welch's Grape Juice for the results you want. For economy's sake—buy Welch's by the case.

Summer Drama Groups Housed in Odd Homes

By Judith Cass.

There are comparatively few summer theaters in this part of the world when one thinks of the many that New England and New York have, but there are some hereabouts. Of these few, the one at Williams Bay in Wisconsin has the most interesting home. It is in an old Mormon church that the Belfry Players hold forth during the warm weather months, providing entertainment for all the surrounding colonies, including Lake Geneva and Delavan Lake, both of which have large numbers of Chicago residents.

The Belfry Players opened their season on June 21 with Lawrence Riley's "Personal Appearance." The Belfry theater has lost little of its quaint atmosphere in being changed from a church into a playhouse. The ancient Moorish design wall paper still is on the walls and the seats are the original old wooden pews, divided by a wall down the center to separate the male and female portions of the congregation. The wall is still there, but the sexes are allowed to mingle at the performances. Incidentally, all experienced Belfry theatergoers carry cushions with them.

The old oil lamps have been wired for electricity and the pulpit now serves as a box office. The tolling of the bell, that used to call the Latter Day Saints of the region to worship, now signals the rising of the curtain. Young people of the nearby communities take part in the productions and their parents and friends fill the pews for each performance. Mrs. Henry Bartholomay, the Robert Whitakers, Mrs. William F. Petersen, Mrs. Albert F. Madlener Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Stevens, the Arthur W. Wakeleys, Mr. and Mrs. James C. Cox, Ernst C. Schmidt, and Richard G. Lydy are some of those who go regularly to the theater during the summer months.

The Oconomowoc Coach House theater takes its name from the fact that it operates in the old coach house at Danforth lodge, the Oconomowoc estate of Mrs. Patrick A. Valentine. The season this year will open on July 18 and will run for six weeks. "Hero Comes Home" will open the series of plays. It was the third prize winner in the theater's $250 prize contest offered to seasoned writers by Marjorie Montgomery Ward Baker [Mrs. Robert R.] of Chicago and Oconomowoc. Dorothy Dow Fitzgerald of Chicago wrote "Hero Comes Home." The first prize winner, "Ducks and Drakes," by Eleanor Chilton and Herbert Agar of Louisville, will be staged the week of Aug. 8, and the play that ranked second in the judges' estimation, "Wonder Child," is set for the week of July 25. It is the work of Leslie Edgley of Chicago.

The Daniel J. Schuylers, the Walter E. Faithorns, Mrs. Harry Hart, and Mrs. Valentine are among the Chicago backers of this little theater movement. Mrs. Frederick Thwaits of Milwaukee is the real angel of the productions, however.

Lake Zurich, nearer Chicago, has a summer theater this year also. The repertory company that played in Woodstock last year is giving plays in an old building that has been converted into a modern, small theater, seating 125 persons. The season opened last Friday night with "Three Cornered Moon."

Summer residents in the vicinity of Charlevoix, Petoskey, Walloon Lake and Ironton in northern Michigan went often last summer to the Ironton Playhouse, next to the Ironton ferry. The same group of players will be in the same place again this year.

Contract According to Culbertson

By Ely Culbertson.

[Copyright: 1939: By Ely Culbertson.]

Self-preservation is the first law of bridge, as of life. Safety therefore is the first and the last measure of any bid.

Avoidable loss comes from two sources: unjustifiable penalties and failure to make the most of one's opportunities. I have tried to show in previous articles how to grasp and sometimes create opportunity. In bridge opportunity knocks at every second deal and failure to grab it by the hair accounts for the invisible leak through which all the profits flow out.

Every bid is a bet. To be justified the odds of any bet must be proportionate to the probable risk. The following bid is an utterly foolish bet:

NORTH
♥ Q J 9 5
♦ K Q 7 4
♣ Q 7 4

WEST
♥ A K 7 6 4
♦ J 6 3
♣ 10 6 3

EAST
♠ Q J 10 8
♥ 8 3 2
♦ 10 9 8 5
♣ A J

SOUTH
♠ A K 9 5 2
♥ 10
♣ K 9 8 5 2

South opens the bidding with one spade and West, though vulnerable, overcalls with two hearts. There are a score of reasons why this bid is a foolish bet. If partner is weak West will be doubled and lose 800 to 1,400 points; the maximum he can gain is 620 points by scoring a game, a very remote possibility considering that South opened the bidding. Therefore he gambles at least 800 points to win a part-score.

Before making any bid the player should apply the following simple rule of risk and gain:

First step: Calculate roughly the reasonable maximum loss if the bid is unsuccessful.

Second step: Calculate the probable gain of a bid. Compare the two. The "probable" gain of a bid may be points saved or points scored.

In calculating one's risks the player should not, as a rule, expect the very worst: he should aim at the near-maximum. Except when bidding inferences so indicate, it is just as improbable to find in partner's hand an absolute blank as to find it teeming with aces and kings. Somewhere, somehow a trick or a humble trick-helper will be found in his hand and players who are in the habit of assuming a maximum possible loss undershoot the mark as widely as the incurable optimist overshoots it.

If I hold spades A K J 10 8 2, for the purpose of bidding I am safe in valuing the suit as five sure winners. It is true that I may lose two tricks in the suit if an opponent's holding is spades Q 9 7 4 3, but only timid characters expect such catastrophes. Always to expect a blank hand [or a blank head] is disastrous in bridge. Curiously enough, it is the gloomy super-pessimist who always gets this type of monstrous distribution.

The calculation of gain against risk is the most important precaution preliminary to the launching of the final bid. There are many other safety devices which years of bitter experience have impressed upon the good player. The following "do's and don'ts" are essential for proper habits of safety:

1. Always measure your bid against a possible double. This is particularly true against players who are quick on the trigger. Of course, when playing against weak opponents who do not like doubling anything short of five-odd, many liberties can be taken. In such cases the only limit is the patience of the opponents.

2. Never venture a risky bid when not backed by an "out." An "out" is a fairly safe bid to which a player can run in case his first bid is doubled.

For example, if you hold:

♠ 8 ♥ K J 6 5 2 ♦ K 7 3 ♣ Q J 8 7

and partner has opened the bidding with one club, which is overcalled by one spade, you can safely bid two hearts because if that is doubled you can run to three clubs.

It is not enough in bold or semi-psychic bidding to have a good "out" in the shape of a physical suit: the player must have also a psychological "out" with his partner. He must be certain that partner will not misunderstand him and carry the bidding to disastrous heights.

The stronger the "out" the more a player can cavort around. When there is no "out" a good player simply does not take chances. There is always another deal.

3. With doubtful hands keep the bidding low and thus avoid pushing your partner into a dangerous contract. You may hold and cannot afford to pass, but a bid of one spade would be very dangerous. The rebid, if partner's response is two hearts or two diamonds, is very hard to find. If you make an opening bid of one club no takeout can embarrass you.

♠ A Q J 7 ♥ 5 4 ♦ Q J 6 ♣ A J 9 3

4. Avoid misunderstandings with partner and respect the intelligence of your opponents.

The greatest single source of bridge losses is to be found in something far deeper and more imponderable than the transgression of mere rules and mechanics of the game. A bridge player, however careful and skilful, may still lose if he does not understand the spirit of cards.

Most card players treat a deck of cards like a personal slave. They try to build their own desires, fears, and hopes into a deck of cards. The veriest dub feels, at least subconsciously, omnipotent before a deck of cards.

Some players "push" their cards when in luck and "pull" them down when luck is running against them. One cannot push or pull the cards to suit his whims. Cards hate to be nagged or smothered with attention. They cannot be "managed" or forced. A wise player knows that at their own time and in their own way the cards will start to work for him. He has learned their greatest lesson—how to wait.

The bidding [both sides vulnerable]:

North	East	South	West
1 heart	Pass	2 no trump	Pass
3 diam.	Pass	3 no trump	Pass
Pass	Pass

West opened the spade six. East played the ace and returned the nine. Declarer covered with the jack and now, whether or not West won, the contract could not be defeated. As it happened, West won and led a third round of spades, hoping East had the eight spot. But declarer had that valuable card and could control the spade suit further, while knocking out the heart ace.

Could the contract have been defeated by any other line of defense? If so, how?

Answer: Yes, the contract easily could have been defeated if East had played differently at the very first trick. The play of the spade nine, instead of the ace, would have made declarer's position untenable. If declarer refused to win, East would continue with the ace and another spade, and West would establish his suit, while retaining the heart ace. Conversely, if declarer accepted the first trick with the queen or jack and then knocked out the heart ace, West would return another low spade. Now East would put up the ace and would return the three spot through declarer's Q-8 to West's K-10, thereby giving the defenders four spade tricks and the heart ace.

Kisses Marked Visit of Grant to Lake Geneva

By Rose Cour.

LAKE GENEVA, WIS.

A member of the early Chicago colony at Lake Geneva is Mrs. John R. Wilson, widow of the one-time publisher of the now extinct Chicago Evening Journal, a paper that under John R. Wilson and also under the earlier management of his uncle, Charles L. Wilson, did much to interest wealthy Chicagoans in the lake as a summer resort.

From the time of the founding of the Journal in 1844 by John Q. Wilson, father of Charles L., the latter was its publisher and editor, except for the civil war years when he was ambassador to England, appointed by President Lincoln. Lincoln and most of the notables of the period were Wilson's friends and many of these personages were his guests at Lake Geneva, including Gens. Phil Sheridan and William T. Sherman, Mrs. Abraham Lincoln [1872], and President Grant.

On the occasion of President Grant's unannounced visit, shortly after his inauguration, May 10, 1873, not only the town, but the whole county, then as strongly Republican as today, went almost hysterical with excitement, according to accounts in the Geneva Lake Herald of that time. "Armed with a scoop net and a cigar," the Herald says, the President came down Main street from the Wilson home and proceeded out on the lake with a large fishing party while crowds lined the shore and almost at once the roads into Geneva were jammed with horses and rigs of all descriptions. Later in the day the President kindly agreed to a reception in the St. Denis hotel, long since torn down, its site now in the throes of the erection of a new postoffice.

Until his special train left Grant not only shook hands with all men comers, but kissed the little boys and girls and also, it must be admitted, most of the big girls. The Herald states that many of the ladies after being thus tenderly saluted by the President, passed out the side door of the St. Denis and sneaked in the front door a second time in order to kiss Gen. Sheridan!

The present Charles R. Wilson possesses a number of letters from Sheridan to his granduncle and to his father, the late John R. Wilson.

Mrs. John R. Wilson, still a beautiful, snowy-haired woman, first came to Lake Geneva in 1875, a bride. At that time the Wilson summer home was a cottage on the main street, across the road from the George Sturges cottage which is now the Lake Geneva public library. The present Wilson summer home, "Sunset Ridge," was built on the lakeshore in 1890.

When Chicago Was Young:

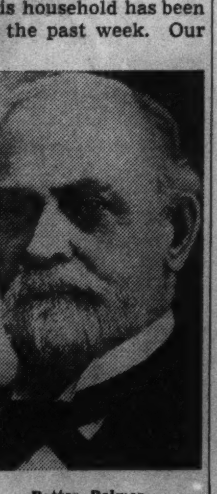
A major servant problem was the choice of coachmen.

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, Feb. 22, 1891.

Dear Julia: This household has been in confusion for the past week. Our good Michael has driven us for the last time. We are quite inconsolable for he seems a part of the family, he has been with us so long. For some time he has been ailing, but has insisted he was well enough to work. Last Monday Will took him to Dr. Frank Johnson for an examination and we learned that it was quite unsafe, both for him and for us, to let him continue driving. He has a serious heart trouble and must take great care of himself from now on. Will has pensioned him and he will go to live with a niece on the west side.



Potter Palmer.

This means, of course, that we must have a new coachman and Will has been interviewing men for the past four days. Ruddy-faced men, mostly with a cockney accent, have come and gone in our library. The early home of most of them seems to have been "Lunnun," where, at one time or another, they drove for the "dook of Edgebrook" or Lord Livingston of Leamington, or some such titled folk. They assure Will of their skill as veterinarians, boasting of their ability to detect and combat the ills that horse flesh is heir to. They demonstrate their skill with the reins, showing off the way they "bunch" them. Did you ever hear the word "bunch" applied to the mode of holding the lines of a harness? It means the way the coachman brings the "near-side ribbon" over the top of the forefinger and down across the palm, while the "off-side ribbon" passes between the second and third finger of the other hand. The hands, apparently, must be held just so, or you are a pariah in a coachman's world.

In seeking a successor to Michael Will has talked with several of his Chicago club friends, among them Cyrus H. McCormick, who has a fine stable and a coachman, Fred Lewis, pride of our neighborhood. Tall and fine looking in his handsome maroon livery, he attracts the eye as he sits on the box of the McCormick carriage. His father before him was a coachman in England and Fred himself could drive, says Mr. McCormick, before he was out of petticoats. He has two assistants to help in caring for the six horses in the stable.

The largest private stable in the city is that of Potter Palmer on the Lake Shore drive, and so Will asked him about a coachman. Mr. Palmer suggested that his head coachman, Fred Levy, should call here and give us pointers on selecting a man. Will reveled in Fred's horsy talk and in his account of the Palmer stables, of which he is inordinately proud. They have eighteen carriages of various kinds, including a "Grand D'Orsay," meaning a sort of state carriage, only used on special occasions; and a "curricle," of which I had never heard. It might have been a bird or a food, for all I'd have known! The curricle is the only one of its kind west of New York, says Fred proudly. The Palmer stables are inhabited by twelve horses, all roan in color, and there are five men, besides Fred, to care for them. The livery of the men is maroon and gold.

Gen. Joseph T. Torrence, millionaire railroad and steel man, on the Lake Shore drive at Oak street, has a most perfect stable finished in hard wood and furnished with an elevator, if you please! Gen. Torrence, with his four-in-hand and break, captured the first prize at the Chicago horse show last fall. Among the contents of his coachroom he has a private omnibus, the only one in town, nice for taking your guests to the opera after dinner. His coachman, Thomas Burton, who has been advising Will, has mingled Irish and English blood in his veins.

L. Hamilton McCormick has a fine stable, too, and he sent a candidate to Will. Mr. McCormick has six horses in his stable and three coachmen. The head man, Charlie Mann, whom Mr. McCormick brought over from England, is very, very British and most correct in his green and silver livery. Marshall Field's coachman, John Dunford, who heard we were looking for some one to succeed Michael, sent a man. So did Mr. Ira Holmes, who has a stable containing ten horses, with three men to take care of them. I feel quite bewildered with all the applicants, but Will seems to enjoy it, and I suspect him of prolonging the search so that he can talk with these men who love and take care of horses, for Will has always been crazy about horses himself.

We have been paying Michael $60 a month, with room and board, which seems to be the usual price. Some of the wealthier families give the head coachman as much as $100 a month.

I do want the matter settled before you come to visit us.

Much love,

MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

FOOTNOTES.

To Louis E. Burr of Chicago, a relative of C. P. Kimball, famous carriage maker of the '80s and '90s, we are indebted for information about the "curricle," which is a two-wheeled vehicle, drawn by two horses. It was a rara avis among carriages, as was the "Grand D'Orsay" which a few millionaires owned. The latter was copied from the royal carriages used in Europe.

Ira Holmes was father of Burton Holmes.

Altrusa Club to Convene in Portland, Ore.

Since 1924 Altrusa International has helped young women to win a place in the business world. At the 18th convention, opening Wednesday in Portland, Ore., this service organization of leading business and professional women will turn its attention particularly to the problem of the older woman and her readjustment to the changing demands of her field of work.

An experiment in counselling older women and in otherwise helping them to reëstablish themselves professionally has been carried on by southwestern clubs in the last two years. Results of the experiment will be made the basis for a nation-wide program to be carried on by Altrusa in behalf of older women.

Mrs. Edith Jarvis Alden, president of the Chicago Altrusa club, and secretary of the Burlington railroad, will report to the convention on the vocational conferences conducted by her organization for high school girls during the last year, with members as speakers.

The Chicago club will give a dinner for delegates from the east and south and Chicago members at 6:30 o'clock this evening at the Allerton hotel. A suite also has been engaged by the club this week-end at the Palmer House for visiting Altrusans.

Miss Marion Eckel, chairman of Altrusa's international educational program, will be another Chicago speaker on the convention program.

Dr. Lillian M. Gilbreth of Montclair, N. J., industrial engineer, president of an engineering concern, professor at Purdue university, and mother of 12, also will speak at the closing banquet Saturday evening. Mrs. Mary Blair Wallace of Los Angeles, Cal., vocational expert, and Miss Bertha M. Zonta International, another service organization of women executives, reelected Dr. Helen Pearce of Salem, Ore., president at its 19th annual convention last week-end at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va. Dr. Pearce is associate professor of English at Willamette university. Among other officers reelected were Mrs. May Moyers McElroy, patent attorney of Chicago and Washington, first vice president; Miss Ruth Gates, advertising manager of the Evanston State Bank and Trust company, treasurer, and Miss Harriet Richards of Chicago, executive secretary.

Dr. Helen Pearce.

Delegates to the convention voted to use the Amelia Earhart Memorial fund, established last year by Zonta International in memory of its distinguished member, to award a $500 scholarship each year to a woman for graduate study in aeronautical engineering. An aeronautical engineer and a representative of commercial aviation are to have a part in awarding the scholarship.

The completion of a $30,000 research fellowship fund named for Miss Marion Talbot, dean emeritus of the University of Chicago, was announced at the recent convention of the American Association of University Women at Denver, Colo. The Illinois and Chicago branches subscribed to this fund, through which awards will be made to women having doctor of philosophy degrees for advanced research work. Miss Talbot, a founder of the association, has pioneered in the bringing of academic and personal freedom to women students.

A FRIEND IN NEED

Before the sultry days and nights of July and August descend upon us we would like to do everything possible to make our invalids comfortable. We have numerous pitiful appeals for aid of various kinds, and hope that, by printing the details of a few typical cases, we can obtain a sufficient response to permit us to care for more individuals than our limited space permits mentioning specifically.

We could use an unending supply of wheel chairs. Because we have so many, many more requests for them than we can ever hope to fill, we try to supply those invalids who are permanently disabled in preference to those who have only temporary injuries.

Mrs. Z.'s letter is typical of the requests for wheel chairs which pour in constantly. Her husband is suffering from a progressive, crippling ailment, the cause and cure of which have not as yet been discovered.

"Dear Miss Brown: I have been referred to you by our social worker as the one person who might be able to help me out with a wheel chair for my husband, who has been ill for the last ten years.

"He has not been outside the door during the last five years except during January when a complication set in. For the last six months he has been in a charity hospital and returned home just last week. During the latter part of his stay there he learned to manage a wheel chair and found it a great relief after having been in bed all the time.

"A chair would be a great help to me, as I would not have to keep leading and lifting him around as I do now when he becomes restless after staying in bed for any length of time. We would be able to bring him out in the sunshine, and with the children on summer vacation they would be happy to take him out. For years they have longed to take him to Lincoln park, which would be a real treat to him and give us all a chance to get out in the open instead of being cooped up in the house.

"We have six children. The eldest, a girl of 19, is our only support. She works on WPA, so you can realize how difficult it would be for us even to rent a chair."

A chair for this invalid's use must necessarily be a small one, as the doors of the home are very narrow. The address is on the north side of the city.

Miss G., a worker in a district on the west side of the city, is anxious to obtain a wheel chair for Mr. X., who is confined to bed due to paralysis of the right side. His wife is far from strong, and it is very difficult for her to do the housework and care for her husband as well. They have a small back porch to which he could be moved if they had means of conveyance. His wife tried to manage it by dragging him on a kitchen chair. She fell in making the attempt and could barely get him back to bed. At times she even has tried carrying him, but has only weakened herself considerably. With the help of a wheel chair he could get around the house alone, but, as they are just barely managing to buy food with the relief budget, it would be impossible for them to obtain one. Transportation could be arranged.

Mrs. H. writes in behalf of a widowed mother of nine children. She is living on a meager pension and is unable to purchase any but necessary items. Illness has added to her troubles, and her doctor has ordered her to obtain a rubber stocking for her upper right leg. Can some reader help her?

Hospital Library Expert to Return to Presbyterian

Tomorrow Miss Selma M. Lindem will return to the Presbyterian hospital as librarian after a six month leave of absence during which she organized a central library project for hospitals in New York City. The Junior league sponsored the project.

Miss Selma Lindem.

Miss Lindem assembled and catalogued the central library, and developed plans for volunteer service under Junior league auspices in a number of hospitals. She also assisted in organizing or reorganizing library service in ten hospitals, and with the coöperation of the United Hospital Fund of New York made a survey of library service in twenty-nine hospitals. She then gave volunteers an intensive training course in hospital library work.

For nine years Miss Lindem has directed the library service at the Presbyterian hospital under the auspices of the woman's board. The board has built up a library of 7,000 volumes, and a bedside library service utilized by about 300 different patients each month. Mrs. Wilber E. Post is chairman of the board's library committee.

The Stamp Collector

By Richard McP. Cabeen

Mr. Cabeen will answer questions about stamps, except concerning values. Do not ask where stamps may be sold, as the Stamps and Coins advertising section adjoining contains offers to buy and sell. Inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

The large postal card of 1891, which was described in a recent issue, was replaced in 1894 by a smaller card bearing a portrait of Jefferson. Perhaps the reason for the change can be traced to the extreme size of the card, for it was so tall that it would project beyond regular envelopes when being tied up for transmission in the mails and would often be folded or cut by the tying twine.

The new Jefferson card measured 3¼x5½ inches and bore the portrait of Jefferson which was used in 1885, but with a very thin wreath around the lower three-quarters of the ellipse. A minute panel on the wreath, centered below the portrait contained the name "Jefferson." The value of the card, as in the 1891 issue, was found in the upper inscription across the top of the card. This inscription was identical with that of the Grant card except that a dash is inserted between the words "Postal Card" and "One Cent."

The inscription "United States of America" was in Roman type with shadows and was contained in an open end panel made up of some of the identical lines and ornaments which are found in the previous issue. The admonitory inscription, "This side is for the address only," with its panel, was identical with that on the Grant card.

The Jefferson card, printed in black on buff cardboard, was the seventh design for United States domestic postal cards. It was in use for about three years before it gave way to a modified design which used the same portrait.

Postmaster General Farley has announced that a single 3 cent purple commemorative postage stamp will be issued in November of this year in connection with the 50th anniversary of the admission of North Dakota, South Dakota, Montana, and Washington, into the Union. It is believed that collectors as a group look with favor upon stamps issued in connection with the centennial dates of important events, and with indignation upon stamps which are issued upon other anniversaries for no better reason than that such dates fall within the present political period. No definite rule is followed in the issuance of stamps honoring states, in fact the reverse must be true, for stamps have been issued to commemorate the visit of the first white man to certain sections, others to mark the settlement of the region, and others upon the organization of the region as a territory or upon its admission as a state.

Some states which were admitted too early or too late will never see a commemorative stamp in their honor. It is strange that the 25th anniversary of the youngest states was not observed in 1937, for stamps may be obsolete by the next major anniversary of that region.

IS IT HOT ENOUGH?

A familiar expression these days, but here's how to forget the weather. Come take a long cool drink at our stamp fountain! Iced with plenty of late commemoratives and sugared with good values, it's the summer's most refreshing offer for collectors. First we take an unused San Marino, 3 unused Will Rogers Commemoratives [the only set honoring the great humorist], 25 all different French Colonies, and mix them with 1 Inhambane stamp, 1 Netherlands Boy Scout Jamboree, 15 new and recent Greece, 3 Manchukuo, 2 Chinese War Provisionals, 1 Abyssinia, and 6 Italian Fascist commemoratives. Then we garnish the drink with 28 different Russia [Autocratic and Bolshevik], 1 Eastern Roumelia [cataloging 25c], 1 scarce Panama, 4 Ecuador 20th century issues, and top it off, instead of a bright red cherry, with a splendid packet of 100 all different stamps. This wonderful drink, containing 192 all different, all guaranteed genuine stamps, is all yours, if you're a new serious approval applicant, for only

Trade Leaders Reach Europe for Convention

PLYMOUTH, ENGLAND. New York was more hurly-burly than usual this summer, owing to the world's fair. Out in the township of Flushing, Long Island, some twenty miles from Manhattan, it has made New Yorkers fair conscious. They talk and rave about it, and eat and sleep upon it, however, much more than they seem to go to it. But they think all of us wild westerners should do our bit and attend the fair, rain or shine. My only night in New York before sailing was a rainy night, so there was a choice; dinner at the Rainbow room on top of Rockefeller center followed by a show called "Hellzapoppin," or dinner at the French pavilion of the world's fair, with a prowl later among the amusing features, if any. Rain clouds rolled back in a great purple curtain just in time for us to roll out to the fair gates in a taxi. It took forty minutes and cost $2.20. Another way, by train and taxis, seemed too complicated. Dining at the French pavilion isn't as easy as it sounds. You have to have a drag to get even a toe-hold in that nice terraced place. There is also a theory that a $5 bill must float from the masthead before you are seated. So there are many slips between arrival and seats at a reserved table looking down upon fountains, flowers, lights and the distant white domes that distinguish this fair from any that ever was.

We trotted not a little on our way to France. By Russia where loomed the giant male in trousers from the group that topped the soviet building in Paris in '37. And by Rumania, where I hear it is nice to eat; gypsy music, lunches at $2.50 and all that sort of thing. Charming polychrome murals on the outside and strains of wild music from within.

Finally the much beflagged terraces of France, lying at the front of the huge French concession, with its dressmaker groups from the great stylists, jewels, art, wine industry. Even the slow creeping elevators and their chauffeurs were of French make. At the top was the long queue of aspirants for dinner at the French pavilion, and a maitre d'hotel who seemed to be turning everybody down alike with great impartiality.

By good luck his eye fell upon a table in my name on the lowest row of the terrace. Next to that of Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Cartier it was and cost me no backsheesh whatever. We had a waiter from the Meurice in Paris, who served us with that peculiar air that French waiters have, of presenting food cooked especially for you in Heaven. We ate, I believe, melon, poussin, asparagus, on ice, and the tarif was $10. Round about us the women who looked best wore floral prints and small, small flower hats, but very tiny indeed.

We ate and ran from the French restaurant, for rain was in the offing. By chair we crossed the grounds and wondered at its great, wide open spaces, its canals, splashing fountains, the aisles of emerald trees. And everywhere were these white domes, the great white mass of the sphere, like a vast snowball against the off-white of a sky full of rain.

The lines of the white fair buildings have oriental simplicity. At night lights of many shades of blue and emerald flood these white Moorish walls and compounds, and the effect is lovely as a dream. Oddly enough, I had no wish to leave the chair and ramble. Way off on our left was the amusement park, far, far away, but rain was already falling.

Our taxi returned us over the giant Tri-Borough bridge, looming over the mysterious East river, dark, swift, and turbulent. The driver was a cheerful optimist, who told us his life story. He was a hunter of the African wilds, a catcher and tamer of cheetahs, out of a job with the depression. He hopes some day to drive a passenger, who, like himself, fancies cheetahs, and will finance him back to find more of them. But I was the wrong passenger, having known John Wentworth's cheetahs only too well.

The chauffeur let me out at the Gotham, opening the car door with a flourish. Then I discovered that he was one of the tallest men in the world [6 feet 11 inches] and topped by a face as roguishly adventurious as any cheetahs. In retrospecting the fair adventure, which lasted three hours and cost $17.60, we somehow found the cab ride home the high spot of the evening. Diverting and unusual at least.

I ask every one I meet what he or she thinks of the New York fair. Most people find it enchanting, if expensive. Foreigners think it too much spread out, accustomed as they are to jumbled expositions. And then there are those Sybarites who say that the long trip going and coming wears them down, and they have no stomach for sightseeing when in the grounds.

Sailing day and a bare half hour for shopping in my favorite Fifth avenue shop. On arrival one found all the sales ladies and gentlemen out upon the sidewalk whooping and screeching delightedly. One lone sales miss said that the mayor of New York was paying them a visit that day, hence the excitement.

There are two thrills for me at going abroad. The first, when wedged safely into the taxi piled high with luggage we turn into the high motor road along the North river. There lies the Aquitania, gallant if a bit lean and old-fashioned these days, with her four funnels. There in the next berth, beautiful, shining, romantic, the black swan, queen of the seas, la Normandie. One wafts her a kiss for dear memories of sapphire seas and fair dazzling lands beyond the equator for blissful hours of sun and sights hitherto unseen. Then comes the Washington, American boat, favorite of many. Here we turn in, find our cabin, are duly aghast at the piles of letters, wires, boxes, candy, flowers, and what not.

Up on the promenade deck are Mr. and Mrs. Silas Strawn selecting deck chairs for the long trip to Hamburg. Mrs. Jacob Baur comes along well orchided, and the Sterling Mortons, very gay and cheerful. We are all part of a large delegation of Americans sailing by this ship as delegates to the international congress at Copenhagen of the chambers of commerce of the whole world. The delegations are larger than ever this year, 1,800 delegates, as against 1,400 at Berlin in 1937.

Thomas J. Watson of New York is president of the international chamber, a splendid looking American, handsome, self-made, genial, and the best of good fellows. Eliot Wadsworth of Boston is president of the American Chamber of Commerce, a typical New Englander of the highest type. We have all met before, and it is fun to meet again, and there are new members of the delegation, too. Also chichi people traveling overseas by the Washington because they are diplomats, or New Dealers, or what have you. Mrs. Joseph Kennedy, American ambassadress to the court of St. James's, dark, slight, and pretty, comes down for the first time at the captain's dinner.

Mr. Kennedy takes all the credit for getting the king and queen of England to go to Washington, and Mrs. Kennedy is rushing home to introduce Eileen, her second daughter, the day after landing. Her black and white lace frock is a dream. Also at the captain's table sits Mrs. Alan G. Kirk, wife of the new American naval attaché at London, most attractive and alive. She will be presented at the court of July 12, and her two daughters as well, already arrived in London with Capt. Kirk.

The new minister to Latvia, S. Walter Washington, and his wife and family are aboard en route to Riga, and one of the prettiest women about is Mrs. James Cathcart, elder daughter of Silas Strawn, with her lovely young subdeb Patricia. It's a very social ship, and nobody seems to be high hat. Count and Countess Scherr-Thoss are passengers, a smart looking couple of German aristocrats. She was formerly Muriel White, daughter of Henry White, one-time ambassador to England.

Large cocktail parties are our main divertissement abroad. Mrs. Jacob Baur led off with the first for about thirty guests. On Saturday night Eliot Wadsworth entertained all the American delegates, and on Monday Mr. and Mrs. Silas Strawn gave a big party. On Wednesday Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Watson and two nice Brazilians from Rio, Mr. and Mrs. Valentin Boucas, collaborated on the largest party of all. The parties were held in the night club of the ship with its cunning little dance floor and the ladies flounced out on these four occasions in their prettiest chiffons.

Mrs. Sterling Morton has an amusing story on herself. She left at home two frocks, her very best, ordered specially for the gala festivities in Copenhagen, the king's reception, and a great dinner. They were left hanging in a closet in order to keep their freshness. However, by use of telephone and air mail, the divine costumes arrived safely on ship, jammed into a shoe box but perfectly fit.

Some friends from the American embassy at Rio are on the Washington, Robert and Anne Scotten, a charming couple. They are en route to their new post in Spain where Robert Scotten will be counselor of the American embassy. This is at present at San Sebastian, just over the line from Biarritz.

This morning we lay off Cobh in south Ireland for a while, convoyed on our way by flocks of screeching gulls. Beautiful were their white wings against the lowering gray clouds. A crowd of soft-spoken Irish peddlers came off the green shores in the tender and did fine business with shillelaghs, shamrocks, hankies of Irish linen, and roses. Such roses! Rarer than roses of Araby!

Black and White Unite in Cool French Summer Dress

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS.—[Special.]—You've noticed how important black and white are for the summer season. Smart American women have taken to the mode with enthusiasm, because there's something eternally chic and fresh looking about the combination, no matter what the season. The fashion began in Paris, and designers have steadily been making advances in perfecting the style for the duration of the season. One of the latest versions of the black and white mode is offered by this Paris pattern. It's adapted from an original that one of the smartest Parisiennes wore at the Auteuil races recently.

The deep V neckline has a wide lapel sort of collar in crisp pique, a dramatic and cool accent for the crisp marocaine used for the frock itself. Tiny white buttons decorate the bodice in the brief space between V and high waistline. The sleeves have a little puffing and the bodice has a small allotment of shirring, just enough to soften the lines without detracting from the essentially tailored effect of this afternoon dress. The high waistline gives way to a molded hip and a rather widely flared skirt.

You may use fabrics other than marocaine for this frock. Be sure the material you choose has "body" and resists crushing and temperature influences. And be certain that it's black, or at least midnight or navy blue. Vary the white accent, if you like, by choosing a delicate pastel instead.

Art and Artists

By Eleanor Jewett.

The reproduction department of the Art institute, which contains nearly a thousand reproductions of works in its private collections, receives many curious orders. One coming from Detroit about the first of June reads: "Because of a fussy teacher, it's very necessary for me to have pictures listed on adjoining sheet by Monday or Tuesday. They are most essential for my term paper. I have no order blank, so with the 15 cents inclosed and with 5 cents additional for postage, I hope they will be sent on time. Trusting you, with my Latin marks at stake, I remain gratefully yours. . . ."

A postcard received about the same time from Brooklyn reads: "Please send me illustrative material on myths. If you can't send it to me on or before June 14, don't bother, thank you. Yours truly. . . ."

Still another story from the Art institute is of a woman visitor who picked up a postcard of the "Song of the Lark" and asked "Where can I see this statue?"

The Goodman theater, Art institute, reports a very successful year. The school of drama gave 89 performances and played to a total of 52,621 persons. Its dance series gave 11 performances to 6,643 persons. The children's theater gave 22 performances of 12,500 persons of ages from six to eighty! It is a very popular feature with the children and their parents and grandparents, one of the finest diversions the institute provides. The Goodman will open for the coming season on Oct. 2.

◆

It may be of interest to some of our readers to note that Leon York, who is a handwriting analyst, is also a professional model, and a portrait of him [an admirable likeness, he says] may be found in the current student exhibit at the Art institute among the work of the commercial illustration class. Mr. York is shown facing a battery of microphones [had the artist realized he might have made this a battery of pens] with the figures 1940 in the background. The black and white sketch is in the southeast corner of gallery G-60, if you care to make Mr. York's acquaintance.

John Stenvall, Chicago artist, well known for his lithographs, water colors and oils—all modern in technique, and a member of the No-Jury and the Artists union and WPA, has been engaged to teach art at New Trier High school next fall.

A most amusing story is told by Frank Case in "Tales of a Wayward Inn" as coming from Godowsky, great composer, virtuoso, and wit, who, speaking of a painter friend, said, "Already he has many pupils, full of self-taught inefficiency." Chicago has the same sort, but perhaps it is comforting to know Chicago is not alone in having it.

According to reports, Dali has a surrealist dream house at the New York fair. Among its contents are "an eye with telephone tipped lashes" and a "seaweed-fringed piano with a chained woman as a keyboard, with the piano keys carved out of her rubberoid stomach." There are "three live mermaids who swim through flexible, rubberoid branches of trees, past long tendrils of typewriters." It sounds extraordinary, but we know Dali. Nothing to him is impossible.

Already the Dali telephone is appearing in Gertrude Abercrombie's chilly landscapes. Undoubtedly other of our modern painters will find the instrument useful, and now that typewriters and piano-ladies have been discovered as proper material for surrealist compositions we shall find our exhibits littered with them in 1940. We keep about six months behind Dali and Epstein. Epstein's "Adam," by the way, that grotesque and hideous ape man, will most probably be echoed on this side of the Atlantic next winter. It is not a hard piece of sculpture to improvise upon nor to imitate.

Irving Manoir has returned to Laguna Beach, Cal., after an absence of fourteen years. Mr. Manoir is well known in Chicago, being one of our most imaginative painters in a pleasant manner. He has taught at the Art institute and at the Chicago Academy of Fine Arts.

Katherine Evans and Mrs. L. Roebuck Keeler of Evanston are holding an exhibition of their paintings at the Clubwoman's bureau, Mandel Brothers. The exhibit opened June 27. It will continue on view through July 31. Both Mrs. Evans and Mrs. Keeler are well known in art circles in Evanston and along the north shore. Their work has been honored with prizes on several occasions. Mrs. Evans is showing 27 studies in oil; Mrs. Keeler has 35 studies in oil and 17 in water color.

The Traveling Art exhibit, which is sent out under the auspices of the Chicago Professional School of Art, is showing the work of three young Chicago men, Clifford Grube, industrial design; Bernard Weist Jr., cartoon, and Howard Miller, commercial art.

An exhibition of recent paintings by artists of the Federal Art project of Illinois is on view in their new gallery at 211 North Michigan avenue. It is interesting just now, when the WPA art project is more or less on the map in Washington, to be able to see for ourselves exactly the kind of art it is subsidizing. Our encounters with WPA art have been none too cheerful; we fail to get into the mood their painters strike. The current show is as we had expected, modern. It will be interesting to learn the public's reaction. Do you like the WPA art exhibit? The show continues to July 22.

Legion Auxiliary Aids Veterans in Selling Handiwork

More than $300 was turned over to the Veterans' Craft exchange at 203 North Wabash avenue when the past presidents of the Cook County council of the American Legion auxiliary held their semi-annual luncheon at Mandel's store. Nine district directors turned that amount over to Mrs. George Heckenkamp of Quincy, Ill., department president, who was a special guest.

Mrs. George Heckenkamp.

Through the proceeds from the sale of their handiwork at the exchange, hospitalized and home-bound veterans are enabled to become entirely or partly self-supporting. The Illinois department of the American Legion auxiliary founded the exchange several years ago, and maintains it.

On the House

By Louise Bargelt.

Something very new and different and manufactured for the summer months is a room cooler fan which is installed in a window and designed for small homes and apartments. [In larger homes, several rooms can be handled as separate units. This is a streamlined, attractive unit, easily installed, and portable, if you wish. The cabinet rests on window sill and hot stagnant air is exhausted by the fan blowing out. At the same time the fan draws in cool, outside air after sunset through open, outside windows and doors in adjacent rooms, to the one where fan is installed. Not expensive either!

A new and practical trend to consider, if you're building or remodeling this year, is the use of mellow finished pine paneling for stairway walls. This means easy removal of smudges and smears which are the worry of any mother, no matter how much she may adore her children.

* *

Built in time savers are hot water extension sprays which are now standard equipment on some of the new sinks. When not in use the hose slides into a hole until it's wanted again.

Decorate Your Bedroom for Summer Days

"Clever Tricks in Decoration," a new booklet by Claire Winslow, explains methods of making a large, small, difficult-to-decorate one appear larger and more attractive. Price, 3 cents by mail, 2 cents at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower lobby.

By Claire Winslow.

Even in the city it's possible to have a cool appearing, crisp, and fresh bedroom during the most torrid summer if you follow a few simple rules of the decorating trade. Of course, your color scheme will have a lot to do with the apparent temperature of your room. If you make use of cool colors, the place will seem cool and refreshing. If you use warm tones the opposite will be true.

The best colors for a restful atmosphere are the following: lime green or chartreuse; light blue-green; all the blues: powder blue, turquoise, gray-blue, and violet-blue; all the tints and shades of gray; all the tones of beige; mauve, and violet. For an added touch of coolness use white accessories with any of the colors mentioned. At the windows hang full, billowy curtains of embroidered organdy, for instance. Or make bedspreads of white dotted Swiss, with ruffles, or if you have the laundry on your mind, use seersucker. Then, the spreads won't have to be ironed.

Some women we know like to dispense with draperies in the summer and simply have Venetian blinds at the windows. This is an excellent idea for small rooms, for it makes them seem larger. If you don't have the blinds you can have charming roller shades of any kind of floral or striped chintz you like, and make them substitute. They'll do a lot for windows.

One of the cleverest decorating tricks and one that is sure of unfailing success is to have matching wallpaper and draperies, or matching paper and bedspreads, or all three!

The bedroom shown in the photograph today has been so treated.

The wallpaper has a charming, rambling pattern of cornflower blue posies on a cream ground. A fabric has been made to match it exactly and this is used for the simple, floor length draperies, and for the tailored spread and to upholster the head and foot boards, as well. This, of course, results in a feeling of unity in the room.

If space is small the design of fabric and wallpaper should be small, too. In this particular room a large pattern would have been impossible, for the area was no larger than that of the average city apartment bedroom.

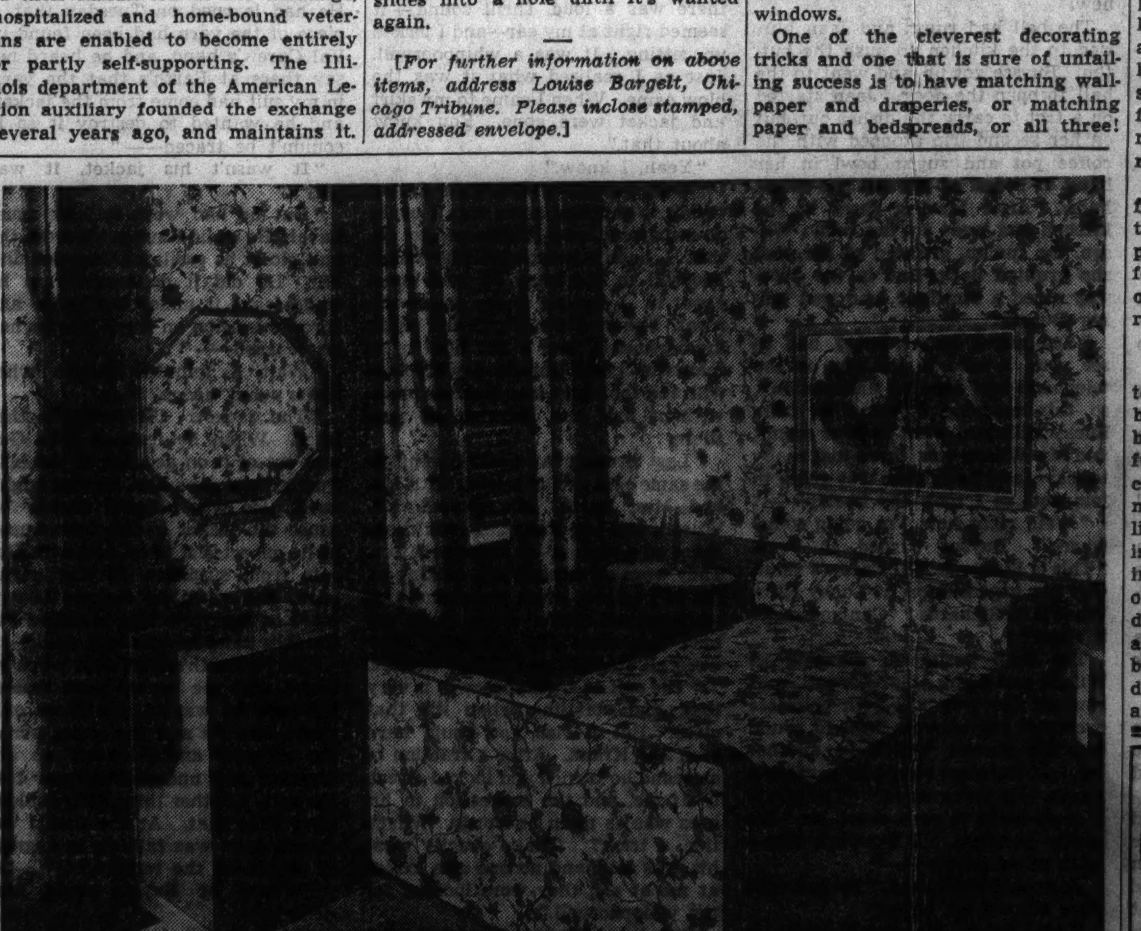
Note that the paper does not extend to the baseboard, either. A plain blue dado is used. The Venetian blinds are also of this color. The furniture in this room is made along conservative modern lines and is of mahogany which has been given a light beige finish. Flanking the bed is a pair of oval, tiered tables holding interesting crystal lamps. An octagonal mirror hangs above the chest of drawers. There are also a tall chest, a two-piece chaise longue in plain blue, and a slipper chair done in the drapery fabric in this room, but they are not visible in the picture.



In this charmingly furnished summer bedroom the bedspread, the head and foot boards, and the draperies all match the wallpaper and are carried out in a quaint flower design in blue and white. The furniture is of mahogany which has been given a pleasing light beige finish.

Politics to Be Curriculum of a New School

By Betty Browning.

An observer looking backward a century hence might well term this decade the self-conscious age of democracy. "Education for Democracy," "Working at Democracy to Make it Work," "Adjusting Democracy to Human Welfare," and similar phrases are echoed right and left. Nonpartisan organizations such as the League of Women Voters and the General Federation of Women's Clubs pioneered in popularizing like slogans with projects for citizenship training.

Mrs. Bertha Baur.

Now the Woman's National Republican Club of Chicago, in a similar spirit, sets a precedent for partisan organizations by announcing a "school for practical politics," to begin in September. The picturesque old mansion at Diversey parkway and Sheridan road will house the school.

A glance at the prospectus issued last week by the club gave the impression that the school intends to bear out Webster's definition of politics in the best sense rather than the, perhaps, more usual sense. A talk with Mrs. George M. Weichelt, secretary of the club, confirmed this impression.

The school is to be devoted to a study of politics, "the science and art of government," according to Webster's best definition. Vote getting, unquestionably, is an objective of the school, but it is only one of several objectives.

"There is a widespread need for information on government," explained Mrs. Weichelt. "Our club is equipped to make that information available, and so we are starting this school."

The political structure of the country, the correct way to vote, the duties of judges and clerks of election, the rôle of the precinct worker, registration . . . all are topics slated for study.

A special class will train women for public speaking during the coming campaign. Current legislation, the Republican program, and the program of the Young Republicans will be considered in other classes. For speakers the school will draw on authorities in and out of the party ranks. The school will be free to every one interested.

Business and professional women are to have special evening classes, to meet twice a month. The regular afternoon sessions will be held at least twice a week at first, then more frequently, as interest develops. Miss Jessie Hoagland, attorney, will be chairman of the business and professional women's classes, with Miss Jane Magan, former president of the Illinois Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, as cochairman.

Before she sailed for a summer holiday in Europe Mrs. Bertha Baur completed plans for the school with Mrs. Weichelt, Mrs. Harry Hart, and directors of the club. Mrs. Baur, who is Republican national committeewoman from Illinois as well as president of the club, has been appointed general chairman of the school. Mrs. Harry Hart, first vice president of the club, is assistant general chairman.

Mrs. Charles S. Dewey, Mrs. Hollis E. Potter, Mrs. John K. Russell, Mrs. Frank M. Specht, Mrs. Bruce Strong, Mrs. William H. Stuart, Mrs. Orville Taylor, and Mrs. Frederic W. Upham are among the directors of the club who are assisting in preparations for the school.

The club's headquarters are in the Palmolive building, 919 North Michigan avenue. Officers, besides Mrs. Baur, Mrs. Hart and Mrs. Weichelt, are Mrs. Clyde L. Day, second vice president; Mrs. Milford S. Sorley, third vice president; and Mrs. William R. Cubbins, treasurer.

Directors, besides those already mentioned, are Mrs. George Bates, Miss Marie Becker, Mrs. Leonard Brundage, Mrs. Ralph E. Church, Mrs. John Hemphill Coulter, Mrs. Raymond Fager, Miss Matilda Fenberg, Mrs. Albert F. Fihe, Mrs. Florence Grayling, Mrs. Edward D. Hall, Mrs. Daggett Harvey, Mrs. Thomas J. Houston, Mrs. Charles Krutckoff, Miss Magan, Mrs. Emma Martini, Mrs. Agnes S. McCartney, Mrs. R. Townsend McKeever, Mrs. Henry A. Mehrle, Mrs. Gerhardt Meyne, Mrs. Franklin M. Miller, Mrs. Emma Morrissey, Mrs. George F. Nixon, Mrs. Lewis Pollock, Mrs. Mary Berkemeier Quinn, Mrs. John E. Reidy, Mrs. George W. Reinecke, Mrs. Edward P. Rich, Mrs. Martin J. Rohen, Mrs. Ralph J. Sherman, Mrs. Frank Sims, Mrs. Bernice Vander Vries, and Mrs. Earl Warren.

Jean Lets a Cop Know What a Lady Thinks of a Man Who Doubts Her Word

THE STORY TO DATE

● Jean Farris, owner of a fabric business, is in love with a half Indian, Guy Carew, whose American millionaire father had been murdered a month back in the tomb he had built for his Indian wife, Tsianina. Before making a momentous decision Guy's father consulted Tsianina's spirit at the tomb. If the sun fell on her face he must give up his plan. If no light came in he should go ahead with it. At sunrise of the fatal day he had gone to the tomb to decide whether or not he should marry Portia Tritt, young stylist. Only three persons besides Carew were allowed in the tomb—an old Indian, Woodrow Wilson; Amory Buysse, curator of an Indian museum founded by Carew, and Guy, the son. There were four guests at Carew's Lucky Hills estate at Mount Kisco when the murder occurred—Amory Buysse; Leo Kranz, textile importer; Melville Barth of Wall street, and his wife. Clutched in Carew's hand was a piece of red bayeta yarn. Guy's alibi was that Portia Tritt was in his room from two a. m. until after the murder. There are tales of a former romance between them. At a fashion show at Mrs. Barth's estate all members of the fatal house party are present. Jean Farris is wearing a suit striped with red bayeta yarn Guy had given her. Guy arrives with Portia Tritt. Portia admires the suit. When Guy asks Jean to give him the suit she refuses. Alone in the garden, just as a whippoorwill calls, an unseen assailant knocks Jean unconscious. She wakes up to find her suit gone! Jean suspects Guy. He denies the attack and tells her he wanted the suit because of the thread clutched in his dead father's hand. Jean realizes that her assailant must be the murderer. A detective posing as a fashion reporter gets a sample of the bayeta from Jean's partner, Eileen Delaney. It is identical with the strand found in Carew's hand. Jean is arrested and undergoes an all-night grilling. Next morning Guy comes to headquarters and admits he had given Jean the yarn. To square himself with Jean he confesses his alibi of Portia Tritt being in his room was false. Guy is arrested for murder. Jean has Mrs. Barth invite the suspects to her home and enacts the attack upon her, hiring a man to imitate a whippoorwill, hoping to trap the guilty one. From the startled look Kranz gives her she knows he is the murderer. She confides in Buysse and Wilson.

IT WAS settled that Buysse and Wilson would be at Jean's apartment at ten o'clock in the morning Sunday, and they would proceed en masse to call on Bryan. Jean gave Buysse her address.

Buysse took his foot from the running board, but turned back to her to observe: "Look here, ma'am, something I think I ought to mention. You've really got it cinched in your mind that Kranz murdered Val Carew. That right?"

"Yes. I know he did."

"That's going pretty strong. There wasn't any whippoorwills in that tomb." Buysse shrugged. "Anyhow, you got a little excited up at Barth's tonight and told him to his face that you knew it was him that cracked you on the head. If it was him that killed Val he'll figure that you feel the same way sure about that, and, being a murderer, he'll imagine maybe that you know more than you do, and he might get himself worked up. What kind of a place do you live in?"

"Why—a flat. A walk-up. I told you the address."

"Any men around?"

"In my flat? Certainly not."

"Are you all alone there?"

"At night, yes."

"Well, I don't think you ought to be tonight. You told Kranz right down his throat that you know he's a murderer and you expect to prove it. For instance, I don't think you ought to leave your car in a garage and then go home alone. Wilson and I would be glad to trail along——"

"Nonsense! I'm not afraid. Nothing will happen."

"Really, ma'am, I don't want to——"

"No, thanks very much, it isn't necessary."

She won that argument, too, and three minutes later had said good night and was headed south along the post road.

SHE nearly fell asleep in the bathtub. It was well after midnight. The chicken salad which Oletha had left for her in the refrigerator, and the blueberry pie in the oven, had been attacked with ferocity and had been followed by two cups of tea.

The temptation was almost irresistible to fall onto the bed with her clothes on and let blessed sleep take her, but the thought of warm water caressing her skin was seductive, too, and she dragged herself to the faucet and turned it on.

She would lie there for ten minutes and consider the project of the morning. Often while in the bathtub she had got excellent ideas for designs; it seemed to loosen her brain. But it didn't work; instead she found herself trying to see Guy in jail, the kind of room he was in, what he was sleeping on; if he wasn't sleeping, what he was thinking about.

Then she was dreaming about an enormous door which kept opening and shutting, and every time it opened a whippoorwill flew out; and then she was dreaming that she had fallen into a lake of warm milk and some one was pulling her down by the feet and trying to make her swallow the milk.

She jerked up, spasmodically splashing, and spat out a mouthful of the bath water. "Good Lord," she muttered aloud, "I might have drowned myself." She opened the valve to let the water out and stood up and turned on the shower and got it cool. That revived her a little, but as she dried herself and got into pajamas and mules the drowsiness began to return and she realized that she had never been so played out in her life. After all, she reflected vaguely, walking across to the living room wall switch, there had been that blow on the head . . .

The doorbell rang. She stopped on a forward foot, startled. At this time of night? Eileen, Oletha? The police? Orlik had warned her that they would be after her again soon, something about a bond. She wouldn't open. Then they might ring all night. Then she would disconnect the bell.

There was a short struggle, and curiosity and courage won. She shuffled to the kitchen and pushed the button several times rapidly, and then hastened to the hall to make sure that the door was locked. She stood and listened, and in a moment heard footsteps on the stairs. They approached without. They halted, and the buzzer sounded.

She called, a little louder than necessary, "Who is it?"

"Telegram for Jean Farris."

It sounded like somebody with a sore throat.

She hesitated. "But—why didn't you phone it?"

"Marked for delivery."

Her heart jumped. It hadn't occurred to her, but it was quite possible that people were permitted to send telegrams from jail, especially those who had enough money to bribe somebody—because I love you——

She turned the knob of the lock and pulled the door open. A man came in with it, right against her, and she retreated a step, gaping. It was Leo Kranz.

The door was wide open, and he stood there in its orbit. Then, seeing her immobility, he stepped sidewise, reached for the knob, and swung the door shut. She recovered quickly enough to grab for it, but missed its edge, and it banged. She retreated again, two backward steps, stood straight, and told him: "I can scream. If you move I will scream. There are people above——"

"I know there are." He was motionless, staring at her. His voice wasn't steady. It didn't tremble; rather it vibrated like a tight wire. "There's nothing to scream about, Miss Farris. I only want to talk with you. Just a frank and friendly talk." He moved a few inches forward, she moved as far away, and his lips twisted with a smile. "I didn't give you my name because I knew you wouldn't let me in. Up there tonight I saw you looking at me—and then what you said—you were mistaken. You are making a mistake."

"Open that door and get out. I'll give you five seconds. I'll scream in five seconds."

"You won't talk? Then than means——" His hand stirred. Jean moved. The hand was still again. The wire of his voice tightened: "I tell you you're making a mistake. If I meant any harm to you I could have struck you when you opened the door. I only want to talk—to ask you——"

Probably if he had attacked her that instant, that split second, there would have been no scream, for Jean was momentarily dumb, stunned by a fantastic mixture of physical fear that gripped her stomach and an explosive impulse in her breast to burst into laughter. It had struck her, when his hand moved, that he was wearing gloves. On a warm August night, dressed informally. Dressed for murder.

The polite gloves told her politely, "Just in case I do harm you, in case I do have to kill you——" It was funny, pathetic, dangerous—deadly dangerous, like his voice. It was doubtful if he really knew what he was doing; he was desperate—he was a murderer—— She would have to scream—she must scream now—even if she screamed he might do it anyway with that stick in his hand—it would be better to leap for him, scratch at him——

The doorbell rang. Kranz's voice stopped, chopped off the tail of a word. She moved—she could back into the kitchen, but she didn't want to leave the hall, that was nearest to the world—she stopped. There was a fainter sound—that was the bell ringing in the flat above—and other faint sounds—some one was ringing all the bells in the house—should she scream now? Instead she held her breath and heard the outside door, two flights down, open and close. Then heavy footsteps running upstairs.

Kranz muttered something and made a movement. She paid no attention to it, but stepped forward and seized the knob of the lock and got the door open. The footsteps came nearer, on the second flight, then a man popped up at the stair head and strode along the hall. Below a door opened and a gruff and angry voice called:

"Who the hell is that? Who rang my bell?"

Jean moved out to the rail and called down: "All right, Mr. Lawson, it's a friend of mine! Excuse it please!"

She turned and saw that Kranz had stepped out, too, and stood there facing Amory Buysse. Neither man said anything. Kranz turned to her.

"You're quite popular tonight. And all the commotion—really——" He took a step.

"Wait a minute." Buysse was in front of him. "How about it, Miss Farris? Do you want him for anything?"

Kranz said: "I came to see Miss Farris. I wanted to have a talk with her."

"All right, go ahead and talk."

"No." It was Jean. "There's nothing to say. We'll wait here until we hear the door close behind you downstairs."

Kranz stared at her, then turned without a word and went. Buysse followed him, five steps behind, down both flights and saw him leave and heard the door click, and then went back up. Jean, standing in her door, said, "Come in." Then, inside, she closed the door, took him into the living room, and sat herself on the edge of a chair.

Buysse said apologetically: "I followed you again, but not so close. I figured that if Kranz killed Val he must be half crazy and he might do anything. I guess now he really did. I was hanging around across the street——"

"God bless you! Where's Wilson?"

"Over at my place asleep. What did Kranz say?"

"Nothing." Jean, sitting on the edge of the chair, shivered convulsively. "He just said he wanted to have a talk with me."

"Why did you let him in? I mean up here."

"He disguised his voice and said it was a telegram. I thought maybe it was from Guy. Then he stood—he said I was making a mistake." Another shiver ran over her. All at once she giggled. She bit her lip, gazing at Buysse, and giggled again. "He had on gloves! Did you notice? Gloves!" She burst into laughter. "Isn't that a scream? Isn't that funny?" Her head went back, then forward; the laughter was a rushing crescendo. "Gloves!" She rocked back and forth, the laughter rocking with her.

Buysse scowled down at her. "God blame it," he muttered, "she'll wake the whole damn block." He strode to the kitchen, came back with a glass of cold water and dashed it into her face. She gave a gasp and slumped in the chair and the laughter stopped.

Twenty minutes later she was in her bed sound asleep, and Buysse was on the couch in the living room with his shoes off, wiggling his toes in the dark.

AT HALF-PAST NINE Sunday morning Amory Buysse, with his face washed, his hair combed, and his shoes on, sat at a little table in Jean Farris' living room enjoying his second cup of coffee, having consumed two dishes of peaches and cream and four fried eggs with toast. He was enjoying the coffee but was nevertheless glowering at the tablecloth, for he was far from easy in his mind.

He had told this stylish young woman that he and Wilson would go with her to police headquarters, and they would, but he didn't like it. If he had ever seen a cop that looked like a cop it was Inspector Bryan, and in his opinion the cop who had put Guy Carew in jail was a hell of a man to go to to help get him out. He was wishing to God he had been born clever.

The door to the bedroom opened and Jean appeared. She had been up since eight, had prepared the breakfast—since Oletha didn't come on Sunday—and eaten her share of it. Had phoned three times to Inspector Bryan's office and had been at average pains to produce the sartorial effect which she now displayed.

Her summer dress, cream colored with tan stripes, was topped by a hip-length jacket of the same material; her straw falcon hat, the tan of the stripes, was at an angle that stopped before it touched the tilt of freakishness, and her brown suede pumps clicked with modish Dorian heels.

She approached the table demanding: "What do you suppose happened to Wilson? We mustn't be late. Didn't he say he was ready to leave?"

Buysse set down his empty cup and nodded. "He'll be here. We'll make it all right. Probably he's walking to save taxi fare—he sure hates to turn loose of money. There he is now."

The bell had rung, and Jean hurried to the kitchen to push the button. Buysse got up and went to the hall to open the door. Jean started on a trot to carry the dishes out, but on her second trip stopped with the coffee pot and sugar bowl in her hand at sound of a voice she didn't know. After leaving them in the kitchen she went to the hall. Wilson, the Indian, grunted at her, and she grunted back, and in the doorway stood a stranger who was telling Buysse:

"Yes, sir, I know, but I had to see you. I tried to get you on the telephone last evening and couldn't, so this morning I came in from Lucky Hills and went to your rooms, and Mr. Wilson was there just ready to leave, and he said he was going to join you, so I took the liberty——"

"Well, right now I'm going somewhere." Buysse turned to Jean. "This is Richards, Val Carew's valet. Guy has kept him on at Lucky Hills. What is it, Richards? Can you make it short?"

The man hesitated, glancing at Wilson and Jean. He was tall, narrow all the way up, with colorless eyes and not enough flesh to round out his cheeks, which in another hour at the most would be needing a shave. He stammered: "I'm afraid I can't make it very short, sir. It's quite—personal. I wouldn't like—with other people——"

Jean said brusquely, "He can wait here till we get back."

"All right, Richards? Will it keep?"

Richards hesitated. "The fact is, I've worked myself up to do this. It's really quite shameful. Absolutely shameful. I should hate to have to sit here—if there is any way of avoiding it——"

"What's it about? Has it any connection with the murder of Val Carew?"

"I hope not, sir—I sincerely hope not. But there is that to be considered, and that's why I came——"

Jean put in: "I said we'd be there promptly at ten, and it's a quarter of. Listen, Mr. Buysse, I'll go along with Wilson, and you come as soon as you can."

Buysse frowned. "I don't like the idea of Wilson——"

"It's all right." Jean moved. "I can take care of him as well as that lawyer could. You come as soon as you can. Be sure the door's locked when you leave." She touched Wilson's elbow. "Come on."

The Indian grunted and followed her.

Inspector Bryan sat at his desk with a mangled cigar between his teeth and watched the door close behind the departing Sergt. Burke. To his left, across the desk from him, Woodrow Wilson sat, in blue overalls and blue shirt with red tie, the slits of his eyes only two more wrinkles among the ravines of his leathery old face. To his right Jean Farris, though not so picturesque, was just as certainly a picture.

Bryan said: "You'll have to make it snappy. I'm seeing you only as a favor. The Carew case is back in the hands of District Attorney Anderson of Westchester county, where it belongs. But just as a favor to you, Miss Farris—what's on your mind?"

Jean took a breath, looked him straight in the eye, and said, "One thing is that I know who killed Valentine Carew."

"That's pretty good for a start." Bryan wasn't impressed. "Who was it?"

"Leo Kranz. Also he hit me on the head Thursday evening and took my clothes. Also he intended to kill me last night, and he probably would if Mr. Buysse hadn't come."

Bryan studied her a second, then leaned back. "Listen, Miss Farris. I've got an appointment at ten-thirty. You have no idea of the number of goofy stories that have been told in this room and the amount of rambling I've had to listen to. I didn't have you down for goofy, and I wouldn't have thought you were a rambler. If you really have got something you should take it to District Attorney Anderson—that's where it belongs—but I'll take it if it's short and to the point. First, Kranz murdered Carew. Go ahead."

JEAN shook her head. "No, first he hit me. I mean I'll tell you that first. There at Barth's, Thursday, I was lying on my back on the grass with my eyes closed, right at the edge of a thicket. Suddenly there was a loud, shrill sound—it seemed right at my ear—and I jerked up, sitting. It was a whippoorwill. Just as I realized what it was the blow came. When I came to my skirt and jacket were gone. You know about that."

"Yeah, I know."

"Well, yesterday afternoon I was trying to think of some way I could do something, and it occurred to me that I hadn't mentioned the whippoorwill to any one. No one knew about it. I decided to try an experiment. I phoned Mrs. Barth and made arrangements, and I got hold of a man who could imitate a whippoorwill and took him into Barth's place without any one knowing he was there.

"Last evening at dusk I went to the same spot by the thicket with Mr. and Mrs. Barth, Mr. Buysse, Mr. Wilson, and Leo Kranz. I took them there on a pretext—it doesn't matter. They were all close to me, looking at me as I talked, when the sound of a whippoorwill came from right behind me, from the thicket. They were all startled and looked around.

"The call of a whippoorwill is very loud and startling when it's that close. But I wish you could have seen Leo Kranz. After a fraction of a second he turned and looked directly at me, and the expression in his eyes was as plain as words. 'What's this, a trick?' That's exactly what his eyes said, and no one else looked at me at all; they were looking for the whippoorwill."

Jean leaned forward and her voice trembled with earnestness. "I know it, inspector, I absolutely know it: it was Leo Kranz who hit me!"

Bryan grunted. "Done with that?"

"Why—yes."

"Then Kranz murdered Carew. Try that one."

She shook her head again. "That comes last. And I said—they were looking for the whippoorwill—and one of them found it. Buysse. He dragged the man out of the thicket, and I had to admit I had brought him, and I was excited and I told them that I had learned who had attacked me at that spot. Kranz already knew that anyway from the way I looked at him when he looked at me, or at least he suspected it.

"Then I took the man away and put him on a train at Rye and went home. After I had eaten something and taken a bath it was past midnight. I was just going to turn off the light when the doorbell rang. I punched the button for downstairs, and when I asked through my hall door who it was he said a telegram. I opened the door, and it was Leo Kranz. He pushed in and closed the door. He had gloves on. He said he wanted to have a talk with he, that I had made a mistake, but the way he looked and the tone of his voice—if you could have seen him and heard him——"

Bryan was frowning. "What do you mean, he had gloves on?"

"I mean he had gloves on! An August night, and he was dressed in an ordinary sack suit, the same one he had worn at Barth's. I know it sounds silly sitting here telling it, but he had gloves on because he didn't want to leave finger prints at my flat. And he had his heavy walking stick."

"What happened?"

"Buysse came. He had followed me—I had had a talk with him and Wilson and told them about Kranz—and he had followed me and was watching across the street. He rang the bell, all the bells, just as I was going to scream, and he came up and I opened the door—and Kranz said he had only wanted to talk with me and went away."

Bryan said dryly: "Buysse was on the job, wasn't he? By the way, I thought you said he was coming here with you."

"He'll be here later."

"Okeh, go ahead."

"You——" Jean gazed at him. "You're so cold."

"Yeah, I know. I used to get overheated. This case is something special for you, Miss Farris. For me it's just part of the twelve hours. It has to be, or I wouldn't last. Go ahead. I'll comment when you finish."

"I guess that's all." Jean forced her voice to be calm and businesslike. "I mean, all the facts. I didn't tell you I could prove it was Leo Kranz, I only said I know it was. It's obvious that if he attacked me Thursday evening he murdered Val Carew. He had learned on Tuesday that a piece of the yarn had been found in Val Carew's hand, and he heard me say there at Barth's that the yarn in my suit had come from the jacket, and he wanted to destroy it so it couldn't be traced——"

"It wasn't his jacket, it was Guy's."

"But he had worn it! He must have! He could have got it from the hall closet as easily as Guy, couldn't he? He did it deliberately so he could leave it under the hedge and throw suspicion on Guy. Then when he learned——"

"Wait a minute. Leave what under what hedge?"

"The jacket. I'll come to that later. When he learned that Guy was out of it on account of the alibi Portia Tritt gave him, he was frightened. He was already uneasy because the jacket hadn't been found, as he expected it to be, and with Guy safe from suspicion he was frightened, and when he learned that a piece of the yarn was found in Val Carew's hand he was in a panic.

"So at Barth's that day, when he heard that the bayeta yarn was in my suit, he was in still more of a panic, and he saw me going across the grounds and followed me and knocked me unconscious and took the suit. Another thing, Guy couldn't have done that. At the time I was attacked he was talking to a group of people on the terrace."

"Wilson or Buysse could have done it."

"Me? Damn fool."

They were both startled; they had forgotten the Indian's silent presence. Jean ignored his contribution. "They could have, but they didn't, because I know it was Kranz." She spread her open hands. "Inspector, listen to me. I know I can't prove Kranz killed Carew. I can't prove anything. But haven't I told you—isn't this enough to make you doubt Guy's guilt? To make you think about it, to work at it?"

Bryan shook his head. "It's not my case any more, Miss Farris."

"You made it your case to put Guy in jail! Can't you make it your case to get him out?"

"The lawyers get 'em out; I don't. My job is to get 'em in."

"The right ones or the wrong ones? Don't you care which?"

"Sure I care." Bryan slowly scratched his head. Finally he heaved a sigh. "I promised to comment. Well, you haven't said a thing with any nourishment in it. Yesterday I gave it as my opinion to the commissioner and the district attorney that there was enough evidence to convince a jury of Guy Carew's guilt, and if I was asked for it again now I would repeat it.

"I like you, Miss Farris. Usually I get sore at people who hold out on me—it's part of my makeup—but I didn't get sore at you Friday night. I liked you then, and I like you now, and that's why I'm not a damn bit comfortable this minute, whether I show it or not. I think Guy Carew killed his father, and I think it can be proved that he did. You don't agree with me, and that's natural, but it makes me want plenty of corroboration for any statement you make."

Jean met his gaze with her lips pressed tight together. He tossed his mangled cigar into the cuspidor and went on. "And what is it you tell me? That you saw a look on Kranz's face when a man made a noise like a whippoorwill! Maybe you did and maybe you didn't; you're in a good condition for imagining things.

"Then you tell me Kranz came to your apartment and got in by saying he had a telegram, and he had gloves on because he intended to kill you, and Buysse appeared and saved your life. But all Kranz said was that you were making a mistake and he wanted to have a talk with you. That right? Did he attack you? Did he put a hand on you? Do you claim that he even threatened you?"

"No. Not in words. But if you had seen him——"

"But I didn't. And you know as well as I do that you're in no state of mind to see straight or hear straight. If I was inclined to bear down I might make it stronger than that. I've seen desperate people before, and some of them just as likable people as you are.

"You've admitted that you hadn't mentioned about the whippoorwill to any one. Maybe because there wasn't one? You sat around yesterday afternoon trying to think of something to do, and maybe you thought of the whipoorwill gag, and, frankly, I think you might have done better. It's too fancy——"

Jean flared: "But I—I wouldn't lie about it!"

"No? You wouldn't? Do you mean to tell me you wouldn't think up a lie if you thought it would save Guy Carew from the electric chair?"

"But I didn't have to——"

"But would you?"

Jean met his eye. "Yes, I would. Of course. But not a lie that would implicate any one else. Never. And I am implicating Leo Kranz."

"You sure are trying to. And I don't know—maybe I'm too old and got too thick a crust; maybe you can make a dent in Anderson up at White Plains. Go on up and try. He'll see you; in fact, he intends to see you, and I'm surprised he hasn't done so already. But if you want some unofficial advice, what you had better do is try it on Carew's lawyer. Sam Orlik knows how to make use of anything, even a whippoorwill." Bryan glanced at his watch. "And now—I'm sorry, but I've got an appointment——"

"But I'm not through." Jean sounded determined and looked it. "There's something else—and you can't say it's my state of mind or accuse me of lying about it, either. Because it's a fact. I know where the jacket was from the morning of the murder until the day Guy found it in his room and gave it to me."

"Yeah? Where?"

Jean turned to the Indian. "You tell him, Wilson. Tell him about the jacket."

The Indian stirred a little, then was immobile again. The dry rattle sounded: "Me. I have jacket."

The inspector's eyes shot to a new target. "Where is it?"

Jean said impatiently, "He means he had it."

Wilson asserted imperturbably: "I say I have it. My word's no good?" he grunted scornfully. "I have jacket many days. When my life come back that morning I work free, I look around, I see jacket on grass under hedge. I see tomb door open and go and find Tsianina's man dead.

"I no like jacket there, too much around; I hide him. Then I go tell Tsianina's son what I find in tomb. After many days, fifteen days, it come like lightning in my head, why, sure, I know about that jacket. That jacket belong Tsianina's son. Of course. Damn fool. I get jacket from cache, put it in his room on chair. Of course. Happy to remember."

"I SEE." Bryan, pulling thoughtfully at his lip with a finger and thumb, said that and stopped. He sat and stared at the wrinkled old face, his own forehead wrinkled as though in violent distaste. Finally, still staring, his hand reached out for the button on his desk, found it, and pressed. In a moment the door opened to admit Sergeant Burke.

Bryan said crisply: "I'll be busy here a little longer. Tell McConnell to take those two men, separately, of course, and get going. He'd better start with Pinkie Frick. I'll join him as soon as I can."

"Yes, sir. There's a man out there that wants in. His name is Amory Buysse. He just came."

"Keep him until—no. Send him in."

"There's another man with him. I don't know who he is."

"He can wait. Send Buysse in."

"Yes, sir."

The sergeant went. No one spoke. It was a minute before the door opened again and Buysse appeared. He crossed, glanced at Jean and then at Wilson, and looked without marked friendliness at Bryan.

"Good morning, inspector."

"Good morning. Pull a chair up."

Jean blurted: "Inspector Bryan says I'm lying about the whippoorwill and that Kranz came to my apartment last night just to have a talk."

Buysse sat down and put up his brows at her. "Well, you wanted to come here. I knew that was about what you'd get."

Bryan declared: "Miss Farris is exaggerating. Anyhow, we've passed that." He turned to the Indian. "Now you. You know what I can do to you if you tell me lies."

Wilson shrugged. "No lies. Plenty truth."

"Okeh. You say that when you came to that morning you were bound hand and foot. You worked yourself free and looked around and saw the jacket under the hedge. After you had gone to the tomb and saw what was there you hid the jacket before you went to the house to see Guy Carew. That right?"

The Indian grunted.

"Then fifteen days later you got the jacket from where you had hid it and took it to Guy Carew's room and left it there in his absence. Right?"

Another grunt.

"How do you happen to remember it was exactly fifteen days?"

Buysse said shortly: "That's your ignorance. Indians always count days for everything."

"Good. Good thing you're here, Buysse; much obliged." Back to Wilson: "How did it happen that you didn't tell the police about the jacket?"

"No one speak of jacket. No one ask."

"I'm aware of that. That was their ignorance. Why didn't you speak of it?"

"Not here." With his middle finger Wilson tapped his temple, then flipped his finger to the wind. "Clear out."

"Why did you hide it?"

"Not hide to keep. Me no thief."

Bryan's voice went up a little. "Why did you hide it?"

"Habit of Cherokee Indian. Everything put away."

"That's fine. And you say you didn't know whose it was, and fifteen days later it popped into your head like lightning that it belonged to Guy Carew, so you got it and took it——"

Jean broke in: "That's silly! It's perfectly obvious why he said that, and why he hid it! Because he knew it was Guy's jacket, and he thought Guy had killed his father, and he wanted to shield him! He told Mr. Buysse and me last night—that's when we learned about it. There's no sense in bullying him about anything as obvious as that."

She got up and went over and put her hand on the Indian's shoulder and bent down to face him. "Listen, Wilson. Don't be afraid of anything. Don't be afraid of the truth. The truth is going to come out, and we want you to help with it. Don't be afraid of it. I think it was wonderful of you to try to shield Tsianina's son. It was beautiful. Do you know the word beautiful?"

"Sure. Sun, water, fast cloud——"

"That's it. It was beautiful. And I promise you that no harm will come if you tell the whole truth—if you will accept my promise. I don't know much about a Cherokee Indian's opinion of a woman; I've only read about it in a book. Will you trust a woman?"

He shrugged. "Trust one day, maybe. Find out."

"Well, make it today. You can trust me, I swear you can. I swear it! Do you know what it means when I swear?"

"Sure. Damn, hell, and——"

Bryan snorted. "Okeh, Miss Farris. Fine. Did you rehearse it?"

She straightened and wheeled. "Rehearse what?"

"O, the little act. Sentiment and humor all together—very pretty. My God, do you think I'm a ninny? This isn't any better than the whippoorwill—in fact, it's even worse.

"I get the idea, of course. If Wilson found the jacket under the hedge it couldn't have been Guy who left it there, because he wouldn't have been fool enough to leave his own jacket on the scene. I'll admit there's a little subtlety to it, but——"

Astonishment stopped him, for Buysse suddenly roared, "Shut up!" Then Buysse turned to Jean. "I said he was a cop, didn't I? He's a cop, and he acts like a cop."

Jean, disregarding him, was standing against the edge of the desk, as close as she could get to Bryan, facing him, her eyes flashing. "Yes," she told him scornfully, "you are a ninny! You are a complete fool! You had the nerve to say you like me. God help the people you don't like.

"You have accused me twice of lying, of deliberately making up things. You accuse me of inventing this story for Wilson. Good Lord, if Buysse and Wilson and I wanted to invent something, couldn't we do better than this? If we were willing to endanger a man who might be innocent?

"I can invent one right now. When Kranz left the tomb after murdering Carew, Wilson wasn't still unconscious; he only pretended to be. He opened his eyes enough to see Kranz going by and leaving through the gap in the hedge after he had put the jacket there on the grass. He has kept still about it up to now because he was afraid to talk. Also Buysse, out of his bedroom window, saw Kranz going toward the tomb and coming back again, and he has kept silent because he didn't want to testify against an old friend. How do you like that?"

She hit the desk with her fist, and her eyes blazed. "I could do much better if I had ten minutes to think it over. And you are stupid enough to accuse me of making that up for Wilson! And of inventing the whippoorwill in an effort to put it off on Leo Kranz! You are a ninny!"

Silence except for Jean's breathing.

The Indian muttered, barely audibly, "Maybe good woman."

Weddings Draw Chicagoans to Pasadena, Cal.

By Ruth Billheimer.

PASADENA, CAL.

Arrivals from Chicago, inspired by Pasadena's summer weddings, have added a postseason glamor to the Crown City. One of the arrivals was a bride elect, Miss Jean Armour Ericson of Winnetka, who with her mother, Mrs. Chester Franklin Ericson, detrained at San Bernardino Monday, was motored to Aero lodge, the Lake Arrowhead retreat of her future mother-in-law, Mrs. Joseph M. Goss, and the two arrived in Pasadena in midweek to be the house guests of Mrs. Ericson's sister, Mrs. Armour Morris, in Linda Vista avenue.

Miss Ericson will be married here in the Church of the Angels to Norman Leffingwell Goss on July 14 at 8:30 o'clock. Only a small number of guests will be present, but a large reception will follow at the Morris residence at 9 o'clock.

Mr. Goss, who has been studying music in Paris, arrives July 6. On the same day, Mr. Ericson and son, John, are expected to arrive by motor and others from Chicago will come on or soon after that date including Miss Jean Tennant of Highland Park, who will be maid of honor; Miss Jean Pettibone of Winnetka, and also Miss Betty Bosworth of Denver, George Martin of New York and Don Lynch of Houston, Tex. The latter two will be ushers.

Barbara Morris and Suzanne Armour, cousins of the bride-to-be; Vail Goss, her fiancé's sister, and Polly Baer of South Pasadena, who attended the MacLeod-Wheeler nuptials this week, will be the other bridesmaids. Jack Binkley, uncle of Mr. Goss, will be best man; Armour Morris, another usher.

Mrs. Morris was to give an informal tea for Mrs. Ericson soon after her arrival and soon the parties for Miss Ericson begin. A house party at Arrowhead is being discussed and Mrs. F. S. Baer, mother of Miss Baer, will be hostess on the 6th. Mrs. Dudley Knight, who will have some of the bridal party as her house guests, will give a party. The bridal dinner is scheduled for July 12 at the Morris home.

An influx Monday at the Santa Fe station included the Albert Wadsworth Harrises, their son and his family, the Norman Harrises and daughter Josephine, who have been at the Huntington for the duration of the MacLeod-Wheeler wedding festivities.

The marriage of Albert Harris MacLeod, son of the Norman Langley MacLeods, and the grandson of the Harrises, to Miss Laura Wheeler, daughter of Mrs. Louis McLaughlin Blankenhorn, and the late Harold Sayre Wheeler, was a highlight of the week and an outstanding event of the season.

All Saints church was filled with guests Wednesday evening for the 8:30 o'clock rites at which Edward Anderson Wheeler, younger brother of the bride, gave his sister in marriage.

The bride moved in a cloud of tulle, a short, fingertip veil made from her mother's veil, falling about the shoulders of her exquisite tulle gown, made over a foundation of soft satin. The satin train was edged with lilies of the valley from Mrs. Blankenhorn's wedding costume and the bride carried a small, loose bouquet of the real valley lilies. A rose point lace coronet held her veil.

Young Mr. and Mrs. MacLeod kept their immediate destination a secret as they left on their wedding trip, but they will leave the west coast soon for New York to sail July 8 on the Conte di Savoia for three months in Europe. They will live in Pasadena after Oct. 1.

Green, Negro woman leader; Dr. Mary G. Schroeder, psychologist; The Rev. Harry C. Culver, and Dr. Richard C. Raines of Minneapolis, Minn. Turn-Table Chair Is Clever Device in Bedroom Grouping

At the recent summer furniture shows a clever device was used in the construction of a new bedroom grouping. The wood was an artistic, light finished maple in a beige-blond tone. The dressing table was especially good looking with its huge mirror and a center section of glass. The trick was in the accompanying chair, which was really a circular upholstered seat, and which revolved. Its base was of the maple.

Any woman fortunate enough to have such a revolving seat in front of her dressing table doesn't need a triple mirror, for she can turn at any angle she wishes, and a hand mirror will be sufficient besides the large one on the vanity.

This same turn-table device also made its appearance on a smart round cocktail or beverage table for the porch or terrace.

By Amy Lyman Phillips.

The White mountain resorts, always popular with Chicagoans, promise this season to have many representative patrons from the Chicago area, and not a few already have arrived to spend the summer in the hills.

Also at the same hotel for the season are Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Adams Lynde of Winnetka, whose summer home this has been for many years.

The Permanent "Guest" Must Never Meddle

Who chooses the wedding date? Helen Bartlett, Tribune etiquet editor, answers this and many other questions about wedding customs in her valuable booklet—"The Home Wedding." On sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower. Price, 2 cents; by postpaid mail, 3 cents.

By Helen Bartlett.

There comes to mind a little point of etiquet that never seems to be mentioned in the books on manners and behavior, and that is the conduct that a person should observe when he or she is a permanent guest in the home of a relative or friend. This suggests the in-law problem. And, while we don't hope to solve the problem, we do believe that there is much that a person in such a situation can do to make himself a welcome guest.

The principal secret is learning to mind one's own business and definitly to curb inclinations to alter any established routine, rearrange the furniture, or interfere with or undermine the disciplining of the children. An "adopted" member of the family should never lose sight of the fact that he or she is a guest.

It isn't expected by the understanding, tolerant men and women who may be the master and mistress of the house that such a guest be completely self-effacing and as lacking in personality as a robot. But any honest person will be forced to admit that it is the right of the person who pays the upkeep for the home to say how it will be managed. An outsider must abide by that routine, fit into the family groove, and must not complain or disapprove.

A sensible guest will learn when she can be of assistance to the mistress of the house and when her help is not wanted. She must not expect to be included in all the family affairs and should respect the privacy of the family and permit them to enjoy a normal family life with as few intrusions and interruptions as possible. One way of accomplishing this is to learn to use one's own room for the enjoyment of one's leisure hours.

The care of and disciplining of the children is one thing that causes more disagreement and disapproval than any other. And the following suggestion is one that must be adhered to. The persons who are responsible for the behavior of the children, the parents, must be given the full responsibility for their disciplining. It is wrong to undermine the authority of the parents by sympathizing with the children after a well deserved punishment. It is considered meddlesome by the parents to assume authority over the children, even if it is deserved, and it is extremely bad judgment to criticize the decision or the instructions of parents, particularly in the presence of the children.

The popular one is she who combines all the good qualities of an actual member of the family and of an ideal guest.

FOREIGN TRAVEL

Western Trip Leads Through Scenic America

By Seymour Korman.

George Sterling, the poet, sang of San Francisco, the cool gray city, and the traveler to the western metropolis this year will find the truth of the cadences exemplified in the Golden Gate exposition. And Sterling might have found rhythms and phrases for other stanzas on the road to San Francisco.

For steeped in tradition as the city is and inspiring as is Treasure Island, site of the fair, the destination need not be all for the traveler. On the way to San Francisco—westward by train from Chicago—is to be seen some of the most beautiful scenery in America.

The Exposition Flyer, a new train service placed in operation by the Burlington, the Denver and Rio Grande Western, and the Western Pacific railways, has its schedule so arranged that the rolling plains, the lofty mountains, and the rugged canyons can be seen in the daylight hours.

From the Union station in Chicago, the Flyer moves out across the fertile farm lands of northern Illinois. Through Aurora, Galesburg, past the Mississippi river, into Iowa, through Nebraska. Familiar territory to the resident of Chicagoland, perhaps, but a fitting prelude to what lies beyond.

Into Colorado, then, and the view of the front range of the majestic Rockies. Denver is well deserving of the traveler's time and scrutiny. From there the road rides the ridges toward the Continental divide, shooting through bores cut marvelously in the mountain sides.

The run through the Moffat tunnel is an unforgettable experience. This is one of the proudest engineering achievements in the world. It was completed in 1928. At its center it is 9,329 feet in elevation and 4,021 feet under the summit of James peak in the Continental divide. It is 6.2 miles long, and the train travels through it in darkness for fourteen minutes.

Leaving the tunnel, the road runs down the Pacific slope of the continent alongside the Colorado river. Gore canyon and Glenwood canyon demand the use of a camera; they are mighty clefts, prodigal in color, mystical in their natural grandeur.

Into Utah and Salt Lake City goes the route, and there is another phase of the American scene. Brigham Young and his followers built well. Their city has an individuality and charm. Particularly worth seeing is the Mormon temple.

On through Utah and Nevada the road runs. At Portola, Cal., is the eastern boundary of the Feather River canyon. For 120 miles the track parallels this chasm, the waters leading to the Pacific. The river took its name from wild pigeon feathers found on its surface by Don Luis Arguello in 1820. There could be another reason—the stream racing over the rocks has a foamy, feathery appearance.

The canyon opens into the Sacramento valley and the road strikes south to Sacramento, then to Stockton, and finally to Oakland. There the traveler boards a ferry for the brief voyage across San Francisco bay.

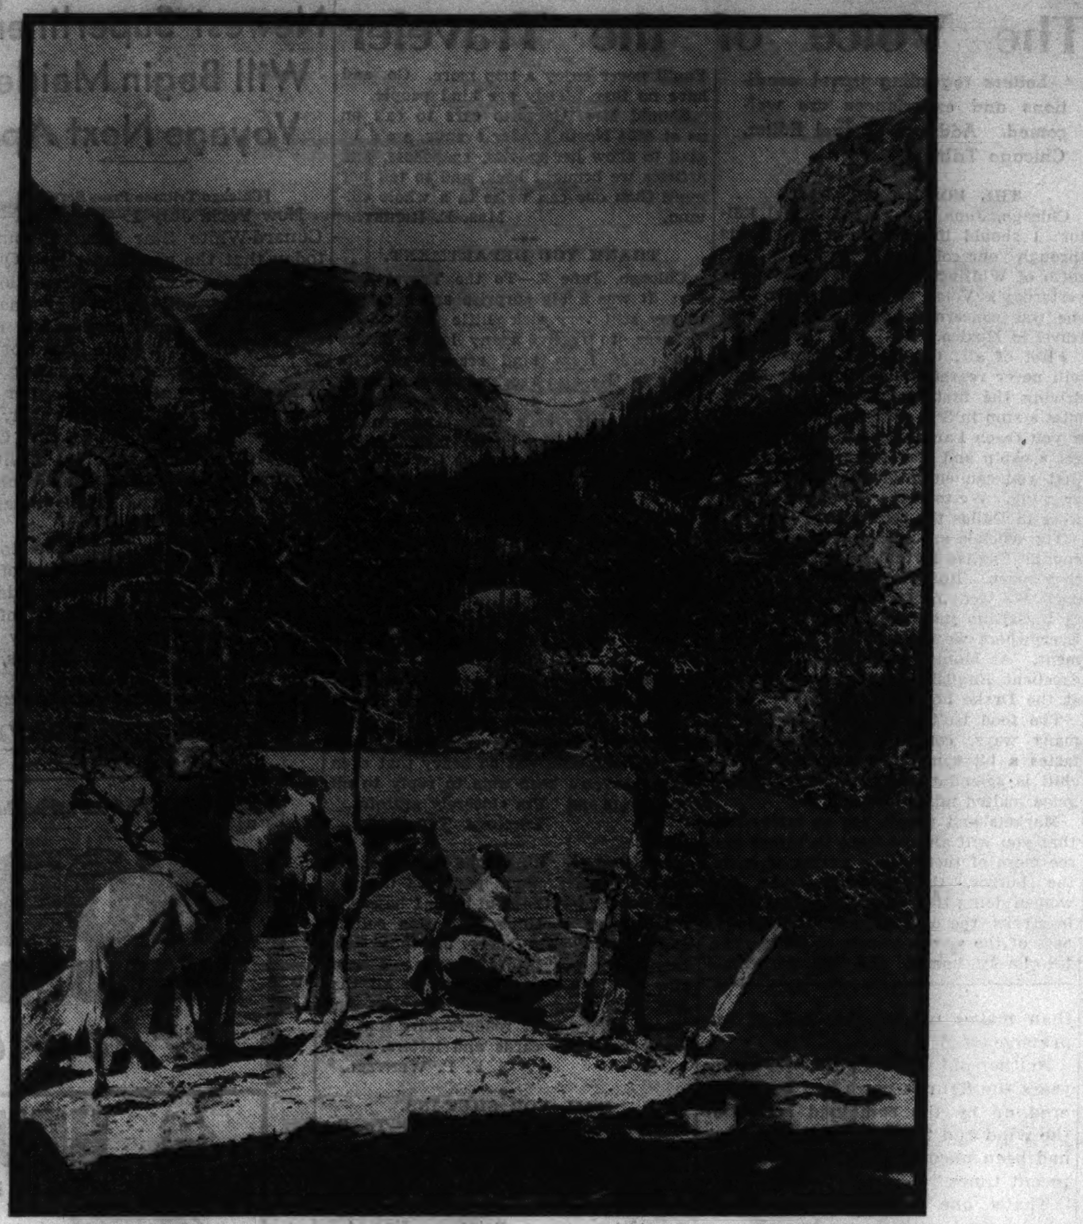
Alcatraz is passed, grim and impenetrable: Treasure Island, site of the exposition, is a welcome contrast. At night this man made island is a jewel with myriad flashing facets.

Having gone this far, the tourist has many other things to see. On the must list is Muir woods, home of the giant redwoods, in nearby Marin county. And the cities of Oakland and Berkeley are exceedingly picturesque.

On the return journey Sacramento should be visited. This year the city is celebrating its centennial and is in festive array. Roaring camp, erected on the site of Sutter's fort, re-creates the old west.

Eastward bound, th Flyer passes through the Royal gorge in Colorado, where the suspension bridge clings to the walls of the grand canyon of the Arkansas river.

Colorado Springs should be a stopover. It is a splendid city. Nearby are Cheyenne mountain, with the Will Rogers Memorial shrine nestling on it; Pike's Peak, and the Broadmoor hotel, with its artificial lake. From Denver, too, if there is time, a circuit trip can be taken by bus through Rocky Mountain National park. Estes park and Grand lake are favorite stops on such a tour.



FAR FROM THE SWELTERING CITIES

Loch vale, in Rocky Moutain National park, is typical of Colorado's scenic effects. Rugged mountains and virgin timber usually form the background.

Niagara Falls Set for Holiday Crowd

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y.—Vacation travel, slow in getting under way this season, will be in full swing by July 4, with thousands of tourists pouring into Niagara Falls.

Travel to this point has already been swelled by an unusual number of special tours by rail and bus. Organized groups are popular from midwestern cities.

Hotels, restaurants, and tourist homes have spruced up in anticipation of the largest volume of travel in years, if not in the history of the falls.

Marine Parade of Venetians Set for July 15

VENICE, ITALY.

With the summer season approaching its height and visitors thronging the seven miles of beach that have made Venice's Lido famous as a bathing resort, Venetians are preparing for the "Feast of the Redeemer," a great day for Venice and the Lido and one of the moving marine festivals of the world.

Already the people are looking about for some kind of floating conveyance, for the fiesta takes place on the waters of the lagoon. Every individual with a lira in his pocket will be there whether in a yacht, a houseboat, a gondola, a rowboat, or a sandalo, the "jitney" of the Venetian waters. Anything will do—even a barge or a raft—provided it floats, can be decorated from stem to stern with flowers, lanterns, and bunting, and will carry a generous supply of food and wines.

The gayety begins on the evening of July 15. At this time all who have managed to acquire a boat or obtain passage in one form the huge marine pageant that is illuminated by a fireworks display and by the brilliance of its own lanterns. After the last rocket has zoomed into the air and then floated down to the water, the boats and barges move toward the Lido to the sound of soft music and low singing voices, giving the fantastic impression of the entire city of Venice going to sea.

• • •

Arrived at the Lido, the participants spend the night feasting and singing on the beach. At dawn, observing the three centuries old gratitude that prompted the Venetians to give thanks to the sun upon being delivered from the plague, all walk out toward the sea in a gesture of homage and thanksgiving. This ceremony is followed by services at the Church of the Redeemer in Venice, with a religious procession crossing the Ginderca canal on a bridge of boats built each year for the occasion.

Nantucket Jack Rabbits Wary; Hunt in Offing

NANTUCKET, MASS.

Nantucket jack rabbits are sharpening their wits and getting into top racing form, for the Nantucket Hunt club is planning to hold its first hunt of the season early this month. To hunting enthusiasts this sandy island has one major claim to distinction, for it is one of the few places where hunting packs and riders may carry on their exciting sport during the summer months.

Foxes are not allowed on Nantucket, but the fleet jack rabbits, especially imported from Kansas for the purpose, provide the huntsmen and their dogs with a quarry worthy of their best efforts. No visit to the island is complete unless one has seen the hounds and gaily clad riders in hot pursuit of a speedy jack across Nantucket's rolling moors. And better still is the thrill of joining the mad pack in its breakneck chase, but this is reserved for experienced horsemen.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Y. Freeman of Chicago, and their son Donald, have opened their summer home on the cliff. Donald is looking forward to a busy summer as an active member of the Yacht club's tennis and sailing sets. Mr. and Mrs. Leeds Mitchell have arrived at their attractive harbor front home, Leedsmere. Commodore Donald Gifford of the Nantucket Yacht club has announced that the club will sponsor a long distance sailing race on Sunday, Aug. 6. This is the first event of its kind to be inaugurated by island yachtsmen, and it is expected to be a major yachting event of the southern Massachusetts area. The course will be about seventy miles long, and will be plotted around the numerous lightships in the Nantucket sound district.

Members of the summer colony regret that the Cyrus Hills and Mr. and Mrs. Hopewell Rogers will not be able to visit Nantucket this season. The Rogerses and their daughter, Miss Dorothy Counselman, who is a junior at Bryn Mawr, are making a tour of Europe, and the Hill family is summering in Minnesota.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick P. Boynton of Highland Park have opened their home on Sconset's north bluff. Mrs. Sydney H. Ball of Chicago and New York has arrived at her residence on Orange street. Next Thursday evening the popular Nantucket players will open the island summer theater season with Sutton Vane's currently successful revival, "Outward Bound."

Water Festivals Head Program in West Michigan

Sports events and festivals will hold the July spotlight for west Michigan visitors. Water events take up a good portion of the calendar, and there are such unusual events as the annual Indian naming ceremony.

Each year the Indians of Harbor Springs region select some white person whom they honor for what he has done for the Indian race and bestow upon him an Indian name amid ceremonies the beginnings of which are lost in antiquity.

The list of events include:

July 4—St. Joseph, Coast Guard demonstration.

July 7-9 — Muskegon, twenty-seventh annual resorters' golf tournament.

July 7-9 — St. Joseph, Great Lakes championship elimination races, star class.

July 10—Bay View, summer chatauqua and assembly opens.

July 12-14 — Traverse City, National Cherry festival.

July 17-19 — Traverse City, National Shuffleboard tournament.

July 22 — Petoskey, outdoor tea and community bridge.

July 23—Harbor Springs, Indian Naming ceremony.

July 29-30—Whitehall, Skippers' regatta, White Lake Yacht club.

July 30—Petoskey, Annual Sportmen's roundup.

July 30—Charlevoix, Venetian Night parade and water sports.

Two of us expect to visit Grand Canyon National park late this summer, and we are wondering what there is to do there. Can you tell us?

There is plenty to do in the park, whether one's visit lasts a day or many days. Within walking distance of the hotel there are innumerable vantage points for magnificent panoramic views, each one different from the other. There are bridle paths through the red shafted forest. There are saddle trails into the inner canyon, down to and across the hidden river, and to Phantom ranch, nearly a vertical mile below the hotels. Motor drives reach out to startling canyon vistas, but none has a more intriguing objective than the great Watchtower placed on the tip of Desert View point, near the eastern boundary of the park and some twenty-six miles east of El Tovar. It is there that the main canyon turns at right angles from north to west. One can see long stretches of the Colorado, 5,000 feet below. To the east of that point the Coconino plateau falls away into the Painted desert and the Hopi and Navajo Indian country. Southward one may look across the forest mantle for fifty miles to the San Francisco peaks, highest mountains in Arizona.

Sphinx Speaks; Secret of Its Age Revealed?

By Frederic Babcock.

The riddle of the Sphinx has been solved. The unspeaking sun god has spoken. After centuries of silence, it has revealed its origin and its age. Such, at least, is the claim of the archæologist, Dr. Selim Hassan.

CAIRO, EGYPT

Travelers—both actual and armchair—always have been told that the answer to the mystery was carved in a cold smile on the rugged face, but that the Sphinx refused to interpret the answer, and that no one else was able to do so. As E. M. Newman has said:

"There it sits, serene and majestic, the marvelous god of the morning sun, brooding over Egypt. Its age cannot be ascertained or approximated. Each new discovery plunges it back farther into the mists of time. It was there when Chephren built his pyramid, and probably dates from the pre-dynastic period. Thothmes IV., fifteen centuries before the Christian era began, cleared away the sand from it, and left a record of his work. Maspero, the Egyptologist, considers it the oldest surviving work of human hands. It has witnessed the rise of Egypt, Persia, Greece, and Rome, as it has observed the later centuries. And its eternally enigmatic smile remains the same. Presumably, it was covered with enamels, brilliant paint, and gold, but today there are only faint traces of the coloring, principally noticeable in the rouge on the cheeks."

"The armies of ancient and modern times have battered against the features of the Sphinx and mocked it," Mr. Newman continued. "It is commonly reported that Bonaparte permitted his soldiers to shoot at its nose. The Moslems had pelted it with rocks, and in their search for hidden treasure had caused many mutilations to the majestic figure. Fanatical Christians hacked at it, because of their zeal in destroying what they considered idols. It is likely that the nations feared its power as the great god that watched over and protected Egypt. Perhaps they attempted to level it to the sands. And when they failed to do so by artificial means, the winds assisted them and the desert sought to cover it; several times the latter has been fairly successful.

"But today there is the ancient question of its smile or sneer. The same question has been asked in recent times concerning the expression on the face of Leonardo's 'Gioconda.' It is interesting to note that this inquiry regarding the painting in the Louvre is merely a repetition of one that was made in the days when the patriarchs of Palestine were visiting Egypt for grain because there was famine in their own land. Maspero says the Sphinx may have been considered an antique at the time of Abraham's visit to the land of the Pharaohs."

Now comes Dr. Hassan with a new theory and new data to support that theory. He doesn't attempt to solve the mystery of the smile, but he does give the Sphinx's approximate age. The man-headed lion, he says, is some 4,700 years old. He has reached this conclusion after several years of excavations at the base of the figure. He believes he has succeeded where other scientists have failed, one after the other, for the last 3,500 years.

Construction of the Sphinx, says this archæologist, took place after the building of the second pyramid and associated structures, but prior to construction of several tombs of the late fourth and early fifth dynasties of the Pharaohs. These tombs were disclosed by his excavations in the surrounding amphitheater.

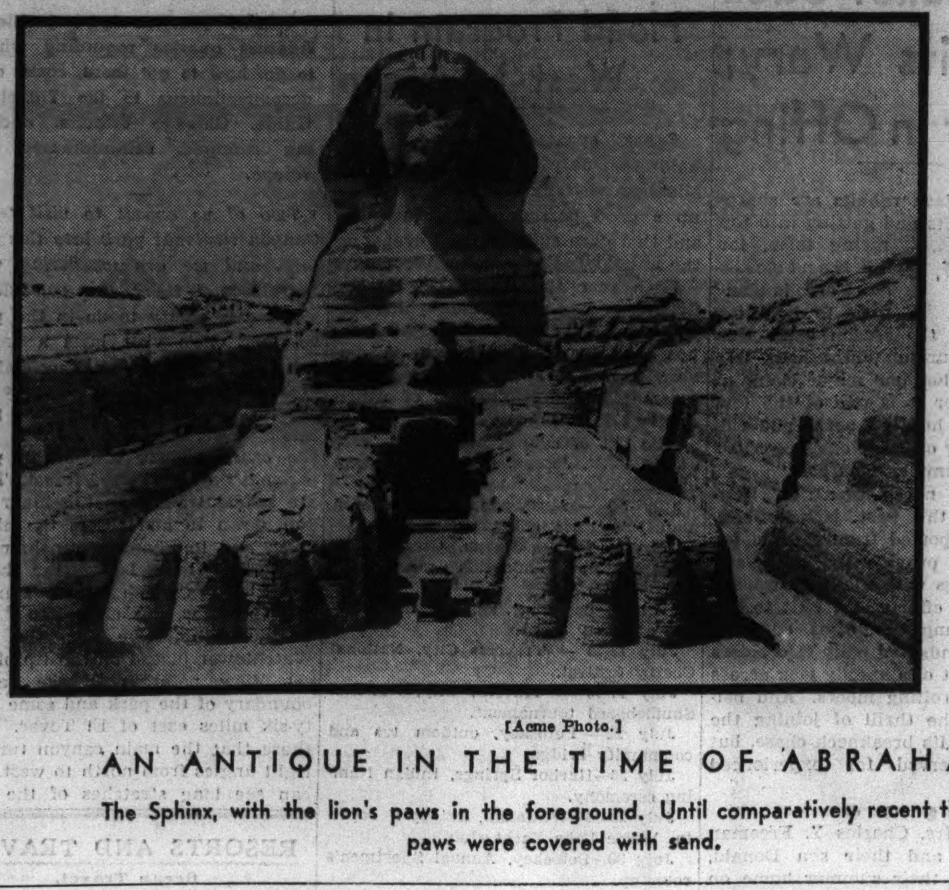
The fourth dynasty lasted from 2850 to 2700 B. C. The second pyramid was built in the course of that reign. Dr. Hassan's conclusion is based upon the fact that a trench about two meters wide and one and a half meters deep, extending along the stone causeway from the funerary Temple of Chephren, builder of the second pyramid, would have discharged its contents into the amphitheater. This, he contends, makes it evident that the trench pre-dated the Sphinx.



[Acme Photo.]

AN ANTIQUE IN THE TIME OF ABRAHAM?

The Sphinx, with the lion's paws in the foreground. Until comparatively recent times the paws were covered with sand.

"It is unthinkable," he says, "that the sacred enclosure of the god should become the receptacle for drainage water, even periodically."

In excavating the amphitheater he found several tombs cut in the northern cliff and facing the south—an unusual orientation for an old kingdom tomb. They usually opened to the north or east. Three others are crowded into the northwest corner, and thus face east. The other walls have never been used for burial, although tombs cut in them would have had the more orthodox orientation. Therefore, he says, it is safe to say that the Sphinx preceded these tombs. The ancient Greeks apparently had the idea that the precedence was the other way around. But Dr. Hassan points out that, as the tombs are mostly of the late fourth and early fifth dynasties, they add valuable evidence as to the precise dating of the Sphinx.

"In the season of 1934-'35," says the archeologist, "I came across a limestone fragment which proved to be of the greatest importance for the dating. This fragment was actually the base and forelegs of a limestone sphinx. Its paws were about the size of those of a living lion. From its position near the western funerary boat of the king, and the characteristic spacing of the joints of the paws, there is no doubt that my discovery relates to a sphinx of King Khafra [Chephren] and removes any question as to the existence of the main figure in the fourth dynasty. There is no doubt that this specimen belonged to Khafra, and there is evidence seeming to prove that this king was responsible for the building of the great Sphinx.

"If we are to regard the Sphinx as a representation of the king-god, we must look for its originator in the king whose pyramid and temples lie nearest to it, and here again the evidence points to Khafra. That he was responsible for the construction seems all the more probable when we study the plans of the Sphinx and the valley temples."

But Dr. Hassan doesn't insist he has positive proof. He admits that his evidence is circumstantial. He admits that there is not a single contemporary inscription connecting the Sphinx with King Khafra.

If all travelers were as ignorant as this one, they would be as greatly surprised as we were when we got our first view of the sun god. We had always supposed it lay on top of the desert, rather than in it. If we had ever read or heard about the amphitheater, we had forgotten it. So we were quite unprepared to find the Sphinx some distance below the surrounding terrain. [The amphitheater, we found, is not highly impressive. It doesn't differ greatly from a pit. But the man-lion in the center more than makes up for the lack of impressiveness.]

Neither did we know that for many years the figure's paws had been covered up by the combined action of the wind and the sand, and that they had been uncovered in comparatively recent times.

That's one benefit of travel. It teaches us how little we know!

The Voice of the Traveler

Letters regarding travel conditions and experiences are welcomed. Address: Travel Editor, Chicago Tribune.

THE FOOD ISN'T BAD.

Chicago, June 12.—To the Travel Editor: I should like to say a few words through your columns to Mrs. John Garzotto of Whiting, Ind., who indicated in yesterday's Voice of the Traveler that she was concerned about the safety of travel in Mexico.

First of all: Go, by all means! You will never regret it. Do all your heavy driving the first two days. And don't miss a stop in San Antonio. It is better, if you reach Laredo in the afternoon, to get a cabin and stay there that night so that you can enter Mexico early in the morning. We took the trip last year and were in Dallas the second day.

The officials are considerate and speak enough English so that you can get what they mean. Roads are good to Monterrey. We went no further, except to run up to Saltillo one day to buy our serapes. Everywhere we received the finest treatment. At Monterrey our bellhop spoke excellent English; he had once worked at the Drake hotel in Chicago!

The food isn't bad. They fix fish in many ways, coffee is tolerable, bread tastes a bit sour, butter isn't so good, chili is splendid, and you can always get a malted milk.

Markets and people are so interesting that you will always want to return and see more of them. The quaint ox carts, the burros, the thatched roofs, the women doing their washing on flat stones in creeks, the daily shower, the strangeness of the vacant streets at siesta time, the lovely homes, and the gardenias! You'll never enjoy a trip more. Go, and have no fear. They are kind people.

Should Mrs. Garzotto care to call on us at 4804 North Linder avenue, we'd be glad to show her movies, snapshots, and articles we brought back, and to tell her more than one can write in a whole column.

MRS. E. RICHEY.

THANK YOU DEPARTMENT.

Chicago, June 2.—To the Travel Editor: It was a big surprise and pleasure to my still very sick little boy, John Eckaros, to receive many lovely letters and cards from kind readers of THE TRIBUNE. He also received several charming gifts. I wish to express my sincere appreciation to each thoughtful reader, and to you, too, for having included him in your shut-in list.

MRS. G. ECKAROS.

Harrisburg, Ill., June 10.—To the Travel Editor: I wish to thank all those who have been so nice in sending me cards, letters, books, and other gifts. I have heard from so many I can't begin to answer them. May God bless you all!

JUNE SCOHY.

Fort Wayne, Ind., June 7.—I want to express my appreciation for the splendid response accorded my request for mail. My letter appeared several weeks ago, and the response was so heavy that even now I haven't been able to reply to all who wrote me. I'm sincerely grateful.

LEONORA TAGTMEYER.

La Grange, Ill., June 11.—To the Travel Editor: Your paper is doing a great work for the shut-ins. I hope you will always continue with this column and thereby help cheer up those who cannot get out into the open. I want you to know that I appreciate all that has been done for me. Travelers and others among your readers have sent me many beautiful cards and letters.

F. P. WENTZEL.

MAIL FOR SHUT-INS.

Crown Point, Ind., June 5.—To the Travel Editor: Please place these names on the list of shut-ins who would like to hear from travelers: Joan Pieter, Johanna Matis, and Maurice Chapman, all of Sanatorium, Crown Point.

Newest Superliner Will Begin Maiden Voyage Next April

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 1.—[Special.]—The Cunard-White Star Line announced today that the new superliner Queen Elizabeth, now under construction at Clydebank, will make her maiden voyage from Southampton on April 24, 1940, and leave from New York on May 3 for the eastward crossing.

The great hull of the liner slid down the ways last September, and is expected to sail down the Clyde early in February for final outfitting in Southampton. The trials probably will be held off the English coast in early April.

Designed as a sister ship to the Queen Mary, present holder of the speed record on the North Atlantic, the Queen Elizabeth will be of the same general type, but slightly larger and with only two funnels, one less than the Queen Mary.

Drama Critic Reviews Year's Stage Successes and Failures

Picks 'Mikado' as Major Hit of the Season

By Cecil Smith.

The time has come to take a backward glance over the Chicago theatrical season of 1938-'39. According to a division of time invented some years ago by Charles Collins and used ever since both on this page and in New York, the stage season each year dies an official death on Memorial day. This being as good a point of demarcation as any, I propose to follow Mr. Collins' precedent.

In actuality, of course, the 1938-'39 season has not ended yet. "My Dear Children," at the Selwyn theater, wherein John Barrymore makes light of life, love, and paternity, began in the twilight of 1938-'39, and bids fair to eat a big slice out of 1939-'40. The long term repertory project which brings Francis Lederer and Margo to the Civic theater tonight in "Seventh Heaven" began in 1938-'39 with "Petticoat Fever." "One for the Money," although a June entrant in Chicago, has enjoyed an almost uninterrupted career before the public eye since it opened in New York last winter. "The Mikado," returning to contribute its syncopated strains to the joy of local living, first saw the light of day in September, 1938.

But let us wave aside the fact that Memorial day occasioned no interruption in the city's theatrical activity, and to call to memory the course of events between May 31, 1938, and May 30, 1939.

A year ago on Memorial day only one standard commercial attraction was alight in Chicago. "Pins and Needles," the labor stage revue that sang a mirthful song of social significance, introduced its left wing wit to us on that very day, and remained in the Grand Opera house for a neat little run of six weeks. With the departure of "Pins and Needles" only the Federal theater was left to sustain the dramatic muse in America's second largest city.

July passed. August passed. The first eleven days of September passed. Finally the Group theater broke the tedious vacuity with "Golden Boy," in which Luther Adler, Frances Farmer, Morris Carnovsky, and others presented a miracle of coöperative ensemble playing.

The summer jinx now disfranchised, openings began to come along with agreeable frequency. Tallulah Bankhead and her company materialized out of the golden west with "I Am Different," a play that was not, alas, different enough. Because Tallulah herself worked so hard to deliver a good money's worth the play had an audience. But we were tolerant to take it as good naturedly as we did. After it left us "I Am Different" ploughed a swath through the south and saw its life snuffed out before it ever reached 45th street and Broadway.

The same week [three days earlier] the Federal theater project had coyly and vaguely announced the première of Gilbert and Sullivan's "The Mikado," acted and sung by an all Negro cast, with some of the songs treated in swing fashion. Since the entire advance publicity sent to this office consisted of two half pages of elusive and indefinite typewritten matter, I had no idea what to expect; nor did any one else.

The first performance was not much like those the company got to giving by midwinter. Not more than a third of the swing arrangements finally introduced were there. The cast had not much sense of its public, and the public was a bit confused by what it saw and heard. First nighters found "The Mikado" amusing, but hardly sensational. Yet the idea caught on, the performance began to move faster and faster, new trucking routines were introduced, and the show became the undeniable major smash hit of the season. When it was pulled off after five months it had hit such a box office stride that it looked as though the entire city wanted to see it.

Early in October Gertrude Lawrence appeared on the scene, preceded by the year's most efficient press agentry. "Susan and God" was a hilarious spoof, if not a powerful drama, and the citizenry crowded the Harris for twelve highly profitable weeks. Miss Lawrence was superb, make no mistake of that, and she and her cast became the toasts of the town.

The perennial "Blossom Time" came back in mid-October, with Everett Marshall as a resonant voiced Schubert. To those who liked "Blossom Time" it was an excellent revival, furnishing another opportunity to see some stage settings the Schuberts have probably used more often than any others in their possession.

"Of Mice and Men," with Guy Robertson revealing hidden talents for straight, hard punching playing, split the town's theatergoers into two camps, according to whether their stomachs were tender or tough. Many American Theater society subscribers complained.

Early November brought a rush of openings—a revival of "The Women," which I can easily be persuaded to forget; "Dame Nature," one of the year's tenderest plays, which we drama critics killed because our vocabulary was too crude to reproduce its gossamer delicacy, and "On Borrowed Time," that strange and touching fantasy about a little boy and an old man who got death cornered up in a tree. An extraordinarily beautiful play etraordinarily well acted by Dudley Digges, Frank Conroy, and a good cast, "On Borrowed Time" seems to me to have been the season's most unwaranted and tragic financial failure.

The greatest sensation of the fall was provided by George M. Cohan, Taylor Holmes, and the cast of the musical comedy "I'd Rather Be Right." Fully forewarned by unanimously lukewarm critical reviews that the piece was not so hot as sheer musical comedy and not terribly funny as satire on the federal government, the public still knew its own mind. Everybody wanted to see Mr. Cohan do the little song and dance at the end of the first act. The enormous success of "I'd Rather Be Right" in the big Auditorium theater [to the tune of over $150,000, the season's biggest total gross in only four weeks' time] was a tribute to Mr. Cohan and an earnest of the deep affection the American theater audience bears him.

A week after the Cohan opening Ethel Barrymore arrived in "Whiteoaks," a dramatization of one of the Mazo de la Roche novels. Miss Barrymore's playing of 100 year old Gran was a bit too much on the side of sheer personal virtuosity, and the adaptation was clumsily put together.

The last entrant before Christmas was "Amphitryon 38," with Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne. Here it was hard to tell which was the most perfect in the exquisiteness of its craft, the playing of the Lunts as Jupiter and Alkmena and Richard Whorf as Mercury, the incredibly pure taste of the settings and costumes, the incisive philosophic wit of Jean Giraudoux's play, or the miraculously turned translation by S. N. Behrman.

[To be concluded next Sunday.]

Revivals Postponed.

Leonard Stillman, Broadway producer who optimistically announced a series of revivals for New York during the summer, has abandoned the project due to the bad effect the world's fair has had on the theatrical business. He expects now to put on the plays in the fall, starting Sept. 5, probably at the Belasco theater. Critics throughout the country were polled as to their favorite plays, and Mr. Stillman will make his selection on the basis of the returns.

EUROPEAN ACTRESS

Although one of Europe's better actresses, Tala Birell's chances to display her talents in this country have been limited to the motion pictures. She has finally reached the American stage via "My Dear Children," the comedy at the Selwyn theater.

11th Symphony Season Opened in Mexico City

Three series of concerts are being offered by the Symphony Orchestra of Mexico, now busily engaged with its eleventh consecutive season which opened at the end of June. In addition to its regular subscription series the organization offers one set of free concerts for workers and another for children. All are presented in the Palace of Fine Arts, Mexico City.

Founder of the orchestra and its only regular conductor to this day is Carlos Chavez, whose reputation as a composer is of considerable proportions. There will be two guest conductors during the twelve week season—Otto Klemperer, director of the Los Angeles Philharmonic, and Pierre Monteux, director of the San Francisco Symphony orchestra. The latter will take over the baton for the first week of August and the former will appear during the following week.

Mr. Chavez, a champion of contemporary and native Mexican music as well as the standard classics, will continue his policy of offering the audiences new, significant works. Mexican premières this summer will include portions of Debussy's "Le Martyre de Saint-Sébastien," the Suite from Alban Berg's opera "Lulu," Sibelius' Second Symphony, Hindemith's "Nobilissima Visione," music for the "St. Frances" ballet, d'Indy's Symphony on a Mountain Theme, Chavez' Concerto for Four Horns, and the the Arbós transcription of Albéniz' "Triana." Items which have become standard fare in this country will be added to the répertoire of this comparatively young organization: Tschaikowsky's "Romeo and Juliet," Haydn's "Farewell" Symphony, two Vivaldi Concerti and a transcription of Bach's Toccata and Fugue in C major.

Mexican composers are not without representation on the symphony programs. Manuel Ponce appeared as soloist on the opening night in his own piano concerto. Candelario Huizar, Moncayo, and Rafael Adame will have their compositions played. Chavez' music for the ballet "Horse Power," has become a popular item in the répertoire and will be repeated. And "El Salon Mexico," a piece inspired by the night life of Mexico City, written by the American Aaron Copland, will get a hearing.

Two prominent soloists will appear towards the end of the season—Claudio Arrau, playing the piano part in de Falla's "Nights in the Gardens of Spain," and Joseph Szigeti, playing Prokofieff's violin concerto.

Nears Record.

On Saturday, Nov. 18, at the matinèe performance "Tobacco Road" will equal the long distance run set by "Abie's Irish Rose." The latter played 2,532 times before quitting its session on Broadway.

Senorita with Three Songs Is Broadway Hit

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—He is a wise showman who realizes that too little of a good thing stirs interest and stimulates curiosity. In the "Streets of Paris" revue Lee Shubert introduces a brisk breeze from Brazil. Her name is Carmen Miranda. She is a singer of songs, and she carries her own orchestra of six guitarists and gourd thumpers. But she only sings three songs—three short little Portuguese songs—and is gone.

As a result Señorita Miranda is town talk and the most sought after of the newer celebrities. Newspaper interviewers besiege her. Photographers dog her footsteps. Autograph fiends have to be pushed away from the stage entrance at the Broadhurst twice nightly. Which would be when she arrives and when she departs.

Seems strange that in all our good neighbor exchanges with South America we never have heard of Carmen Miranda before. She is, we now discover, a sensation in Rio de Janeiro, in Buenos Aires, in Montevideo and points south. And has been for years. As much a pet of the pampas as Raquel Meller was once a pet of Paris.

It was when he was making a cruise on the Normandie last winter that Mr. Shubert first heard Miranda sing. He had been hearing of her for some time from Claiborne Foster, whom you may recall as a popular ingénue and who was married to a Pan-American airways executive and is living in Rio. Hearing Miranda, Mr. Shubert was quick to engage her and her orchestra for this "Streets of Paris" appearance.

Last week the Waldorf-Astoria offered the young woman $1,000 a week to add a night club showing to her American experiences, but she refused. She is still too dazed, she says, to make up her mind. She will continue with her three little songs and that will be all for the present.

Miranda is young and good looking. Her costumes are flashing. She twists a gay ribbon about her head and smiles, an open, intimate, friendly smile. As she sings she sways her hips, but not brazenly as so many singers of exotic songs do.

The rest of "Streets of Paris" is a program of assembled vaudeville and modern burlesque skits. It is much in the manner of "Hellzapoppin," having been inspired and staged by the same Olsen and Johnson who have carried that revue through a winter of amazing popularity.

It is bold and naked, as was to be expected of a Shubert piece carrying a Paris title. Luella Gear, for exemple, arrives at a photographer's to have a passport picture made. Bobby Clark, playing photographer, poses Luella in a series of outrageous attitudes and, when she protests, explains that he thought she wanted postcard pictures.

A new team of rough fellows, Abbott and Costello, perform variously, coarsely and hilariously. They, too, are from burlesque, but recently made their way into higher stage society by being a happy hit on a Kate Smith radio hour. A chap billed as "Think-a-Drink Hoffman" pours any assortment and any quantity of drinks from apparently empty shakers.

The coarser items include a song called "Robert the Roue, from Reading, Pa.," for Mr. Clark, and another is a "History Is Made at Night" number. They are not nice, these incidents. Certainly they are not nice for junior and sis, and travelers should be warned. Being warned, however, "The Streets of Paris" is probably the show they will head for.

However, there is a new and clean entertainment on Broadway if any one is looking for one. "From Viénna" is its title, and it is a series of pleasant, homely, modestly amusing songs and sketches staged by a group of sixteen refugees who have been reunited in New York.

In Vienna, it appears, ten of the sixteen were associated with a Little Art theater that was in the habit of staging comedies and drama, satires and burlettas from time to time. As the Hitler invasion approached they became less and less popular with the authorities, partly because of the rising racial prejudice, though they were not all "non-Aryans," and partly because the politicians objected to their critical digs.

Finally, when the Germans arrived, the Little Art theater gave up. Its members scattered, but were pledged to a reunion in America if and when possible. They all managed to get here finally, and last winter began assembling a program of material they had used in Vienna, with the idea of seeking a sponsor.

Beatrice [Mrs. George S.] Kaufman became interested and was helpful in interesting others. Last week they gave their first public performance. "From Vienna," as said, is simple and disarming. The refugees begin with a choral number showing the company writing home about their American experiences, ending on an exultant note because they have found jobs.

They have a semi-serious moment with a fantastic sketch entitled "Journey to Paradise" in which an embattled worker and his girl, rebelliously talking things out on a dock, are joined by the spirit of invention, Joe Gadget in person, all done up in wires, switches, lights and such. With Joe as a guide the young people start walking backward through the ages. In their travels they meet the great discoverers — Franklin, Columbus, Galileo and Gutenberg. Each in turn is shown the results of his having given his discoveries to the world, and told of the misuse man has made of them. Each in turn decides not to go ahead with his researches.

Finally, the travelers arrive at the gates of Paradise and there plead with Peter to ask God not create man, seeing that man has made a mess of the world. But God sends back word that creation must go forward. It is within the power of man to improve the world if he will. The visitors then determine to continue the fight against all that is wrong with a slipping civilization with the idea of eventually bringing harmony and peace and lovable neighbors out of the mess.

I fear "From Vienna" will have to depend upon organized theater parties rather than run-of-Broadway trade, but it is entertainment entirely worthy of the support of the countrymen of the embattled Viennese and all their sympathetic friends.

We have had more than a little theater excitement on the side. The American Federation of Actors held a 2 a. m. meeting. It was presided over by Sophie Tucker, its president, and sought endorsement for its executives, who insist they have not misspent the union's funds. The actors, even after coffee and cakes, were belligerently inclined and far from polite to Miss Tucker. Along about 4 a. m. a chorus girl bit a comedian, and another comedian tossed a chair at an actor. By 5 the police had cleared the room and started most of the actors home.

About the same time Tallulah Bankhead, who is supposed to have a lot of influence with her kin in congress, headed a delegation of protest against the abolition of the WPA Federal theater.

Gordon Opera.

With almost three months in which to change his plans, Max Gordon announces that his first production for next season will be "The Happiest Man," in a version by Dorothy Parker and Alan Campbell. Two of the players Mr. Gordon would like for the play are Burgess Meredith and Ruth Gordon. Also on Mr. Gordon's schedule is Arthur Train's "Mr. Tutt Comes Home," based on the author's magazine stories. For this one Walter Huston would be in demand.

ON SOUTH SIDE

Woody Herman and his "band that plays the blues" are the attraction these nights at the south side Trianon ballroom.

Vaudeville

A major radio and screen comedian, in the person of Bob Hope, is to be seen at the Chicago theater this week. Appearing with him in the stage show are his radio partner, Jerry Colonna, known to air listeners as "The Professor," Dolores Reade [Mrs. Bob Hope], songstress; the Maxellos, and the Stadlers. On the screen is "Maisie," with Ann Sothern in the title rôle.

Bob Hope.

An unusually large show has come into the Oriental theater for the week. It is Earl Taylor's "Revue Glorified," boasting a cast of 15 Broadway singers, dancers, and comedians, and 30 of the prettiest girls of the season. Included on the list of performers are Terry Howard and Company, comedians; the Belfords, acrobats; Harry and Pinky Oliver, clowns; the Udell Triplets, comedy singers; Arnold O'Connor; Gladys Zimmerman; Roberto and Company, and many others. Because of the elaborateness and length of the show there will be only one film feature—"Society Lawyer," with Walter Pidgeon, Virginia Bruce, and Leo Carillo.

Louis Armstrong, the great "swing" trumpeter, is playing with his own band at the State Lake theater. The vaudeville bill also lists Midge Williams, singer; Sonny Woods, scat-vocalist; the Two Zephyrs, colored comics; Alma Turner, jitterbug dancer, and Gordon and Rogers, song and dance duo. On the screen Rochelle Hudson is to be seen in "Missing Daughters."

Garr Adds New Success to His Chicago String

Eddie Garr, whose versatility as an impersonator won him the leading rôle in "Tobacco Road," added another Chicago success to his ever lengthening list when he personally guided Bon Air Country club's new summer revue through its opening night and opening week performances.

Garr's crisp comedy and his complete command of any situation on a night club floor serve more to weld the Bon Air's ambitiously titled "Star Lane" show into a semblance of a musical comedy than do the revue's thin book and lyrics. Eddie's own act is familiar, with Richman and Chevalier and Groucho Marx and all the other oft-impersonated showmen popping in and out of the routine for their hilarious reincarnations.

Billed in starring position, Gertrude Niesen, sloe eyes, husky voice, blonde bob, and all, does a better job of entertaining than she had ever done previously on a Chicago club floor. Primed with new songs [particularly "Strange Enchantment," which fits perfectly her sultry style] and unveiling an unsuspected dancing ability during her Conga number, Miss Niesen more than earns her share of the applause

Grace and Nikko have an amusing dance routine that is a paradoxical blend of subtlety and slapstick. Johnny Barnes is a tap dancer who seems to use only his feet, letting his legs, arms, and body take it easy during some intricate and effective routines. Jackie Green, overshadowed by Garr, nevertheless does a yeoman's job of carrying what little story the show has in the images of Eddie Cantor, George Jessel, et al. The Belles of Bon Air, again in flashy costumes, are seen to advantage in a series of ambitious production numbers.

Four musical men and a beautiful girl have taken over the bandstand in the Congress hotel's Glass Hat room. Jeanne Carroll, the girl, sings in a low, persuasive way reminiscent of the bayous around the New Orleans country from which she comes. The Glass Hatters, as the instrumental quartet is called, offer substantial rhythms well suited to the intimate type of room, and team up in various vocal combinations for some effective entertainment.

An added feature of the Glass Hat program is "Ronda, the Blonda," who reads handwriting.

An unusual dance team was scheduled to open Friday at the Beach walk of the Edgewater Beach hotel. Frances Woods, born deaf, has developed an ability to follow the rhythms of an orchestra so well without hearing the music that she and her partner, Billy Bray, have won recognition in the show world as authentic dancing artists.

The pastoral setting of Villa Venice is the background against which an old timer in the popular music field is staging a comeback. Isham Jones was a Chicago and national favorite before the present crop of jitterbugs was able to differentiate between a down pillow and a down beat. Today, after a temporary retirement of several years, he is the feature of a lively show that is appearing nightly at the suburban spot. The band Jones left for retirement, incidentally, also is in Chicago—at the Trianon, under Woody Herman's direction.

Isham Jones.

No more "Sixteen Men and a Girl" for Jack Teagarden. The Blackhawk maestro has added two girls and a man to replace songstress Linda Keene. The newcomers are Dodie O'Neil, formerly with Artie Shaw; Kitty Kallen, and Bill Owen.

First Full Week of Grant Park Concerts Opens Tonight

8 Free Music Performances Are Scheduled

By Edward Barry.

Between tonight and next Saturday night the Grant park band shell will be the scene of no fewer than eight free concerts. In this first full week of the lake front music season a variety of orchestras, bands, conductors and soloists will brighten the schedule.

A word about the history and background of this mammoth project: The Grant park concerts began on a scale similar to the present one in 1935, when the Chicago Federation of Musicians put on a summer series on its own initiative. Later the concerts were taken over by the Chicago park district, with the coöperation of the federation. The series has grown in musical importance until it has become one of the country's most significant artistic ventures.

For these are no mere summer band concerts designed to give strolling listeners a taste of the delights of "Poet and Peasant." Without doing away with the lighter aspects of traditional al fresco music making, the sponsors of the Grant park cycle have introduced a vast amount of highly serious music and have been tireless of finding soloists of national and even international reputation. Now, one is more likely to run into a Borodin symphony than the "Poet and Peasant" overture. Cornet soloists occupy far less time than guest artists of the Lily Pons-Albert Spalding-Helen Jepson variety.

Public response has been tremendous. The excellence of the concerts and the undoubted lure of a free gate have resulted in attendance figures of an astronomical character. Since it is obviously impossible to make an accurate estimate of crowds which stream onto the field from every side, no exact count is available. However, one may say vaguely that several million persons have come to Grant park during the summers of 1935-'38, inclusive.

This year's plans call for sixty-seven concerts to be given nightly through Labor day. The only open date is Aug. 19, when the park district, in deference to THE TRIBUNE's tenth Chicagoland Music festival at Soldiers' field, will hold no concert. Matinées are scheduled for July 4 and Labor day. There is just a chance that these plans may not go through in their present form, for money is available to carry the concerts only about three weeks. Legislation now before the general assembly in Springfield will, the park district hopes, make it possible to continue the series to the end of the summer.

Orchestras scheduled to take part in this 1939 series include the Chicago Symphony, Woman's Symphony, Chicago Philharmonic, and Chicago City Opera, and the orchestras of MBS, NBC, and CBS. Among the bands are Cavallo's, Bainum's, Thaviu's, and Hand's.

The orchestras will be conducted by such men as Hans Lange, Izler Solomon, Henry Weber, Richard Czerwonky, Leroy Shields, Jerzy Jojanowski, and Carl Hohengarten. Andre Kostalanetz is to serve as guest conductor one evening. Among the soloists engaged are Edith Mason, Helen Jepson and Lily Pons, sopranos; and Albert Spalding, violinist.

The Grant park band shell is located on the lake front opposite 11th street. It may be reached by street car, bus, the Illinois Central railroad, and the elevated. There are benches ample for any normal audience. All of these seats are free and unreserved. On special nights the lawns and unlimited standing room will accommodate, in somewhat less comfort, crowds which may approach or even pass the 100,000 mark. Evening concerts begin at 8 o'clock sharp. The July 4 matinée is scheduled for 3.

GRANT PARK SOLOIST

Lilyan Sacks, Chicago soprano, will sing with the Glenn Cliffe Bainum band at Grant park on Thursday night, with Mr. Bainum conducting.

Current Music News

Continuing its series of outdoor concerts in the University of Chicago's Hutchinson court, the Illinois Symphony orchestra has invited Dr. Siegmund Levarie to be its guest conductor on Thursday. A native of Vienna, he is a graduate of both the city's conservatory and university. During the past season he has directed the University of Chicago's Symphony orchestra and Collegium Musicum concerts.

Dr. Siegmund Levarie.

Henrietta Chase, Chicago soprano and member of the resident opera company will be the soloist. Two operatic arias, "Non so piu" from Mozart's "The Marriage of Figaro" and "Pace, pace mio dio" from Verdi's "The Force of Destiny," will constitute her contributions to the program.

The remaining items of the concert are the overture to Weber's "Der Freischutz;" Haydn's Symphony in D major, No. 93, and three numbers by the younger Johann Strauss—"Perpetual Motion," "Pizzicato Polka," and the waltz, "Artist's Life."

Heniot Levy, pianist, and Stella Roberts, violinist, will share the faculty concert presented by the American Conservatory of Music in Kimball hall on Wednesday afternoon. Neither of them needs an introduction to Chicago's musical public, as they have appeared often and are distinguished teachers in their profession.

Mr. Levy will open the program with Brahms "Variations and Fugue on a Theme of Handel," later playing Schumann's "Davidsbündlertänze," his own "Variations on an Original Theme," Liszt's Three Concert Etudes, and the Schulz-Evler Paraphrase of Strauss's "Blue Danube" waltz. Miss Roberts has transcribed the Vitali Ciaconna for viola, with piano accompaniment, from earlier versions made by Ferdinand David and Charlier. This she will present on Wednesday together with William Walton's viola concerto which she performed with the Illinois Symphony orchestra last spring, giving it its Chicago première.

An organ recital will be played by Arthur C. Becker, dean of the De Paul university school of music, at the Saint Vincent de Paul church, Webster and Sheffield avenues, on Friday at 2 o'clock. Aside from well known pieces by Franck, Liszt, Mulet, Bach, Clokey, and Widor, the organist will present Dupré's "Four Antiphonies on Ave Maris Stella."

Half-hour organ and choral programs continue to be offered by the Rockefeller Memorial chapel, 59th street and Woodlawn avenue, on various nights during the week. Organ recitals will be played by Orrin Clayton Suthern and Fred Cronheimer on Sunday and Thursday, respectively, and the Olivet Baptist church choir will sing on Wednesday. All concerts start at 7 o'clock and are followed by carillon recitals.

If reports from New York are true devotees of Wagner's "Tristan and Isolde" will be in for something novel when that opera is presented at the Civic Opera house next season. For the Tristan will be none of your German, Scandinavian or Slavic tenors, but an Italian, known for his splendid interpretations in the works of his countrymen. Giovanni Martinelli, with a long career behind him in French and Italian opera has finally turned to the Wagnerian répertoire. Having studied the rôle of Tristan since the close of the Metropolitan season he has "signed" to make his debut in it next December with the Chicago City Opera company. The part will be sung in German; the Isolde will be Kirsten Flagstad.

As announced during the week, Vladimir Horowitz will make his first appearance in Chicago since his return to the concert stage on Feb. 5, 1940, at Orchestra hall. The Russian pianist's first American recital for the season will be on Jan. 17 in Newark, N. J. His first appearance with an orchestra will be made with the New York Philharmonic-Symphony under John Barbirolli on Feb. 15.

Cuban Opera.

"Baltasar," an opera by Gaspar Villate, a Cuban, was given for the first time in Havana not long ago. It was first heard in Madrid in 1895. The Italian libretto is by Carlo d'Ormeville and is based on a tragedy by Gertrudis Gomez de Avellaneda, Cuban poetess.

Novelties Add to Interest in Ravinia Fete

By Cecil Smith.

The second week's programs of the Ravinia festival are fresh and inviting. Sir Adrian Boult, noted director of the British Broadcasting corporation, continues as guest conductor of the Chicago Symphony orchestra in all of the week's concerts. Philip Manuel and Gavin Williamson, Chicago's most celebrated exponents of harpsichord music, will be soloists with Sir Adrian and the orchestra on Friday evening, playing Bach's Third concerto in C minor. On Saturday evening David Van Vactor, the young Evanston composer whose "Symphony in D" won the New York Philharmonic-Symphony society prize last year, will direct the world première of a new "Divertimento for Small Orchestra."

A number of novelties and near-novelties add interest to the schedule for the week. In his choice of unfamiliar music to present to the Ravinia audience, Sir Adrian naturally gives primary place to representative British items. He does not overlook American music, however. The first half of Saturday's program he turns into an all-American event by bracketing with Van Vactor's "Divertimento" the "Outdoor Overture" of Aaron Copland and Anis Fuleihan's "Mediterranean Suite."

Following the usual plan, the orchestra will play concerts Thursday, Friday, Saturday evening and Sunday afternoon. The specific programs, beginning with this afternoon's, are herewith appended, with a few passing comments:

This afternoon at 4—
"Brandenburg" Concerto No. 3, G major ....Bach
Symphony No. 99, E-flat major......Haydn
Tone poem, "Don Juan"..............Strauss
Fantasia on a Theme by Thomas Tallis ....Vaughan Williams
American overture, "Johnny Comes Marching Home" ....Roy Harris

Probably not more than a handful of this afternoon's listeners have heard the Haydn symphony numbered 99 in the revised Breitkopf and Härtel catalog. There are so many Haydn symphonies that a good many really excellent ones remain on the shelf for years at a time. Although the score reveals that this particular symphony is crowded with unusually beautiful themes, it has not been played in Chicago since January, 1904, when Theodore Thomas conducted its one and only recorded performance in the city.

The "Fantasia on a Theme by Thomas Tallis," played here by Hans Lange as recently as last winter, calls to mind the criticism of Cecil Gray, English critic, to the effect that Vaughan Williams usually has the makings of an extraordinary piece of music, but never succeeds in casting his material in satisfactory outward form. In this Fantasia the composer manipulates very subjectively, and often very movingly, the melodic and harmonic material of a celebrated hymn tune by Thomas Tallis, an important church composer of Tudor England.

Thursday at 8:30—
A London overture ....John Ireland
Two Interlinked French Folk Melodies ....Ethel Smyth
[First time in Chicago]
Symphony No. 4, B-flat major........Beethoven
A Siegfried Idyl ....Wagner
Film Music for "Things to Come" ....Arthur Bliss
[First time in Chicago.]

In this program three recent English works find themselves in the company of Beethoven and Wagner. Ireland's "A London Overture," with its theme derived from the inflection of a bus conductor calling "Piccadilly," was played by the orchestra under Dr. Frederick Stock last season. Dame Ethel Smyth's arrangement of two French folk tunes, a novelty here, was originally written as an interlude in the one act opera "Entente Cordiale." The music for "Things to Come" is from the film of that title, based on H. G. Wells' war-and-Utopia book "The Shape of Things to Come."

Friday at 8:30—
Overture to "Oberon" ....Weber
"Job," A Masque for Dancing ....Vaughan Williams
[First time in Chicago]
Concerto No. 3, C minor, for two harpsichords and strings..........Bach
Philip Manuel and Gavin Williamson.
Introduction and Allegro ....Arthur Bliss
[First time in Chicago]
Excerpts from "The Damnation of Faust" ....Berlioz

Vaughan Williams' "Job" is the score for a sizable ballet based on the famous William Blake illustrations for the Book of Job. Its scenario follows the familiar story of Job's temptation and victory. Costumes and choreography were devised with close adherence to Blake's style. The work has been seen in stage form in England and at the Lewisohn stadium in New York in 1931. Ted Shawn choreographed this latter performance.

Arthur Bliss is a lively experimentalist among British composers. While the "Introduction and Allegro," written in 1928, is a piece of "absolute" music, he had previously composed an elaborate color symphony pursuing an investigation of the relationship of color to music originally suggested by Scriabin.

Saturday at 8:30—
Outdoor overture ....Aaron Copland
[First time in Chicago]
"Mediterranean" Suite.........Anis Fuleihan
Divertimento for Small Orchestra ....David Van Vactor
[First performance]
The composer conducting.
Symphony No. 1, C minor............Brahms

Mr. Van Vactor has been busy at the score of the "Divertimento" for two or three months past, whenever his duties as flutist with the Chicago Symphony orchestra or as instructor at Northwestern university allowed a bit of slack time. The new work was commissioned by the Ravinia festival, who last year gave Mr. Van Vactor an assignment that resulted in a "Symphonic Suite," given its world première at Ravinia under the composer's direction.

Next Sunday at 4—
Prelude to "Hansel and Gretel" ....Humperdinck
Scherzo, from Octet for Strings.Mendelssohn
Andante, from Italian Concerto..........Bach
[Orchestrated by Mabel Wood Hill]
[First performance]
Oriental Suite, "Beni Mora"..........Holst
Symphony No. 7, C major..........Schubert

Philly for Stokowski.

Leopold Stokowski will return to his former post as conductor of the Philadelphia orchestra for eleven concerts next November. He may also conduct another series the following spring. Otherwise Eugene Ormandy will continue as the director.

U. of I. Creates a Division for General Study

By the Rev. John Evans.

The University of Illinois, taking cognizance of the trend toward a cultural background before specializing, has created a general division within the college of arts and sciences. It is designed to serve the interests of that annually increasing proportion of students which seeks a general education as contrasted with training for research or the professions.

Recent years have shown that individuals, with an education founded on an ample basis, often progress more rapidly in the definite field of their subsequent choice than those who specialize from the very beginning. The best engineers are not necessarily found among those whose early training has been purely technical, nor are the best doctors necessarily among these who started on pre-medical course immediately after completing high school.

Regarded as the most significant change in many years of the university's educational policy, this plan provides that the division and new curriculum be ready for operation in the first semester of 1940-'41. At the first it will take care of not more than 250 freshmen registered in the college. These freshmen will be subjected to a series of tests—I. Q., placement, aptitude, personality, vocational interest—and it would develop as part of its educational program the personnel work that goes along with the function of the division, which is to administer a new undergraduate curriculum in general education. If the plan proves successful it should eventually assume certain other closely related functions the most immediate of which will be the counseling of all freshmen registered in the general division.

The core of the new curriculum is to be a group of general courses, one course in each of these areas: Verbal expression, biological science, physical science, history of civilization, social science, literature and fine arts, philosophy and psychology.

These are intended to be nondepartmental courses, their content being determined more by the educational needs of the student rather than by the boundaries of existing departments. Each is intended to introduce the student to an important realm of knowledge, to make him familiar with the characteristics of this field, and to apprise the contributions this field might make to the amelioration of the social comity.

Dr. Ralph W. Taylor of the University of Chicago has notified Dr. Marshall W. Brown, dean of Presbyterian college, Clinton, S. C., that he has been awarded a general education board fellowship for study at the summer workshop in general education at the University of Chicago.

The American Council on Education arranged for fellowships to be given twelve southern educators recommended by officials of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. Dr. Brown was among those twelve selected.

Hugh Kendall of Rochester, Minn., president of the 1939 graduating class at Carleton college, Northfield, Minn., has been awarded a tutorial fellowship in physics at Northwestern university.

Family Festival

The Dolmetsch Festival at Haslemere, England, which annually devotes itself to concerts of ancient music, will be held this year from July 17 to 29. Arnold Dolmetsch, now in his eighty-second year, founded the festival in 1925. As was the practice at the beginning, performers for the coming event will be mostly drawn from the Dolmetsch family and instruments made by them will be used.

Of the twelve concerts comprising the festival, two will be devoted to the music of Bach. Others of the series are titled "English Music of the Golden Age," "Court Music of France," "The Italian Masters," "Purcell and His Contemporaries," and "Handel and Haydn." "Le Roman de la Rose," an old masque, will bring the concerts to a close. Works to be performed will include hymns from the Allison Psalter of 1560; fantasies by Pérotin le Grand; compositions by Byrd, Lawes, and Ferrabosco; Corelli's "Christmas" concerto; Handel's "Ode for St. Cecilia's Day"; songs by Mary Queen of Scots and Henry IV.; a concerto for recorder by Babell, and a sonata for two recorders by Telemann.

June Is a Kind Movie Month to Chicagoans

JUNE'S BEST PHOTOPLAYS:
GOODBYE, MR. CHIPS — JUAREZ
THE MIKADO — MAN OF CONQUEST INVITATION TO HAPPINESS
CAPTAIN FURY — BLIND ALLEY
YOUNG MR. LINCOLN

Honorable mention movies: Big Town Czar, The Gorilla, For Love or Money, The Oppenheim Family, The Kid from Texas.

By Mae Tinee.

Good Morning!

Next time we have our "bests" the Fourth will be over, August will be opening up and the kids will be grouching, "Aw gee, next month we hafta go back to school," while their parents will be thinking along the same line, though, with a different emotion. Summer's short, any way you look at it.

But it really IS being a nice, kind summer so far as movies are concerned. Take those at the head of the column, for instance:

"Goodbye Mr. Chips," I know you found charming! Said the original review "Robert Donat's depiction of the Hilton hero is one of the most remarkable achievements in makeup and characterization the screen has ever known . . . never did picture follow more tenderly and faithful"—a simple, beautiful, and deeply moving story . . . it develops easily, absorbingly, under grand direction. . . . You feel your world is nicer because 'Mr. Chips' has been part of it."

"Juarez"—with Paul Muni, Bette Davis, Brian Aherne, and a splendid cast—a great movie, greatly played. . . ."

"Young Mr. Lincoln" features Henry Fonda in the title rôle, and was thought by your reporter to be—"an intelligently produced and entertaining dissertation ON — YOUNG Mr. Lincoln . . . you'll enjoy the film if you're not a hound for accuracy. . . . The film was meant to be just a lifelike and warmly colored sketch of a human being who, I bet you, would have got a kick out of this movie."

"Man of Conquest"—"The colorful and many faceted career of Sam Huston, avenger of the Alamo, finds brilliant screen revival in 'Man of Conquest' . . . The Huston of Richard Dix is as splendid a piece of work as was his Yancy Cravat in 'Cimarron' . . . a virile, facile and, at the same time, restrained performance that never permits you to lose interest in or sympathy for the character portrayed. . . . 'Man of Conquest' will, I hope, be preserved in the archives for the pleasure and profit of another generation. . . ."

"Invitation to Happiness" — "A new, invigorating treatment of the prize fighter and the lady motif . . . psychological slant . . . Irene Dunne, Fred MacMurray, Charlie Ruggles, and little Billy Cook, splendid . . ."

"The Mikado"—English production and English cast with the exception of our own Kenny Baker as Nanki-Poo. . . . "Gilbert and Sullivan's fantastic treatment of the 'boy meets girl' motif is delightful as seen and heard again through the medium of sound and color cameras . . . technicolor exquisite . . . ideal summer fare. . . ."

"Captain Fury"—Featuring Brian Aherne. "An Australian 'Robin Hood' . . . lively and exciting melodrama staged in Australia . . . rushing action culminates in a satisfying finale. . . ."

"Blind Alley"—Psychiatrical thought food presented in tantalizing style. . . . Dr. Shelby discovers WHY Killer Wilson kills. . . . Ralph Bellamy gives a splendid performance as the doctor. Chester Morris found a rôle built for him as Killer Wilson. . . ."

Better see these yar pictures if you haven't a'ready!

S'long.

Mormon Concerts.

The Tabernacle choir of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints will present a series of religious, classical, semi-classical, and popular concerts at Sun Valley, Idaho, on July 22 and 23. J. Spencer Cornwall conducts the choir, which boasts 325 members. These particular concerts are being given with the hope of establishing a summer music festival at the sports center.

Drama Notes

Tonight's gala opening of "Seventh Heaven," with Francis Lederer and Margo, marks the beginning of a new subscription series of five plays at the Civic theater. Each play will run three weeks. Produced by J. Charles Gilbert, the series will offer at bargain course prices a variety of popular plays, acted by members of the resident stock company with the assistance of special guest stars. Donald Brian, Esther Ralston, Betty Hanna, and Leo Curley are named in the prospectus as important members of the resident company. The stage director of the Civic Theater Acting company is Addison Pitt, whose previous experience has included work with the Shuberts, John Golden, William A. Brady, and Sam H. Harris.

Mr. Gilbert, the Civic Theater Acting company producer, grew up in Chicago and was educated at Northwestern university. His interests and ability soon led him to the stage. The rôle of Franz Schubert in "Blossom Time" became his specialty, and he rolled up a total of more than 1,800 appearances in the part. Last summer he returned to Chicago, after a long absence, to take over the management of the Civic Opera house and the Civic theater.

By his popular price scale at the Civic theater, both for single performances and for the series [which provides a discount] Mr. Gilbert hopes to attract to the legitimate theater many young people who have no acquaintance with stage productions, and many older patrons who have lost contact with the theater. The new undertaking enjoys the cooperation of Oscar Meyer, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, and Mrs. Paul Steinbrecher, president of both the Drama league and the Woman's City club.

"One for the Money," the popular revue at the Harris theater, will substitute a special holiday matinée on Tuesday for the regular Wednesday one this week. This shifting of performances, incidentally, will give the casts of this show and of "My Dear Children" at the adjacent Selwyn theater a chance to see each other's productions.

Last Thursday the musical acquired a new performer, Dorothy Lee. She has already sung, danced, and clowned her way through several musical comedies and films. Among the latter, those in which she was teamed with Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey are best known. Miss Lee is replacing Grace McDonald, who is due in Hollywood for some picture making. Both of them appeared through Saturday sharing Miss McDonald's original rôle in the revue. Tomorrow night the part will become entirely Miss Lee's.

On Monday night John Barrymore and the other members of the "My Dear Children" cast will give the 100th performance of the comedy hit at the Selwyn theater. To celebrate the event autographed pictures of the star will be presented to all women attending that night.

When Francis Lederer concludes his engagement at the Civic theater in "Seventh Heaven" he will go to New York to replace Laurence Olivier in "No Time for Comedy," the S. N. Behrman play starring Katharine Cornell. Guthrie McClintic, director of the production, will come to Chicago to rehearse Lederer for the new rôle, bringing with him for this purpose Mary Drayton, understudy to Miss Cornell and Margalo Gillmore, also in the New York show.

This week's play at the Northwestern University theater is Pirandello's "Henry IV.," to be given nightly from Wednesday through Saturday. Chekhoff's "The Cherry Orchard" will be presented July 12, 13, 14, and 15.

Paul Robeson Back

After seven years' absence from American stages Paul Robeson returned this summer to play in a summer revival of "The Emperor Jones." The Eugene O'Neill play was staged at the new Ridgeway theater in White Plains, N. Y. Robeson came into the limelight in May, 1924, in Provincetown theater productions of the above play and "All God's Chillun Got Wings," also by O'Neill. His last appearance in this country was in 1932 as Joe in an all-star revival of "Show Boat" in New York. Since then he has played and sung almost exclusively in England. His recent return preludes an engagement on Broadway next season. His vehicle has not yet been chosen, but might be one of the following: Roark Bradford's play about his familiar character creation, "John Henry"; a drama by Dorothy Hayward, co-author of "Porgy," called "Set My People Free," or a revival of "The Emperor Jones."

Death at Cantigny!

A True Picture of Our Last War!

> "A moving, vivid, true picture of what men feel, how they act, what passes in their minds and hearts, living, fighting and dying in the trenches in the most awful war of all time."
> —R. L. Bullard, Lieutenant General, retired.

Reprinted from the book "Cantigny, a Corner of the War," by Capt. Jeremiah M. Everts, 18th infantry, 1st division, A. E. F., by courtesy of the author and Charles Scribner's Sons, the publisher.

By CAPT. JEREMIAH M. EVARTS

(Copyright: 1938: By Captain Evarts.)

CANTIGNY lies about four kilometers north of Montdidier in the beautiful rolling country of Picardy. During April and May, 1918, the sector was very active and scarcely a day passed when the official army communique failed to record "heavy bombardment at Villers-Bretonneux and north of Montdidier" or "heavy drum fire north of Montdidier and at Villers-Bretonneux."

The variation seemed irrelevant to the occupants of the sector. The sector was wholly disorganized. Front-line trenches found their places on the map if "over two feet in depth." There were no dugouts in the front trenches and no communication trenches. My platoon occupied about 200 yards of front in which there were three small trenches. The largest was possibly seventy-five yards and contained seven or eight bays. The ground of that trench was very chalky, and each man experimented in finding cover by digging a hole of some variety in the side of the trench under the parapet. It was better than being rained on. Sometimes a direct hit on the parapet from a 77 would bury the occupant undamaged under a couple of feet of earth. Anything larger than a 77 meant no further worry.

Men lived in that sector the most extraordinary game of life and death ever invented—lived on their wits, their nerves, and that sixth sense which combined all other senses, and were assisted to live once each twenty-four hours—if the chow party was lucky—by a slice of meat, a spoonful of sou[illegible] mashed potatoes, a canteen of water, a canteen cup of coffee, a half loaf of bread, a beautiful country, and sometimes a [illegible].

One beautiful [illegible] early part of [illegible] at about 10:30—[illegible] bombardment from beyond G[illegible] Montdidier began. It was heavy enough to be unusual, and therefore one awoke. Anything [illegible] such as quiet an[illegible] wake in a state of apprehension. On this particular morning I came to with a start as a 155 ripped out the end of the next bay at the corner of the traverse. I crawled out and moved a sentry to what I thought was a safer position, and saw a volley of 155s make direct hits in the deepest bay in the trench (about four and a half feet), at the extreme western end, next to some woods. I knew there were three men in that particular bay. I met Sergeant James on the way up and we went along together.

The air in the bay reeked of high explosive. Fortunately for two of the men, they had dug their holes exactly opposite the bursts. They seemed so peaceful that one could lift off their helmets and almost believe that they were asleep. The third was wounded beyond all hope, as he told us over and over again while we tried to bind his wounds. But he had more than twenty bad ones, and finally we only tried to talk to him as we gave him water and watched him die under the blue sky. We left the three as they were, and no one ever again even so much as paused in that bay.

Around noon things quieted down, and we lay down to try to sleep or whatever one did, but not [illegible] again with great intensity. How we survived that afternoon without even a wounded man I never understood. There were ten of us in the trench, and I think it was that afternoon that one man lost the heel of his shoe. I left my place to see if the sentries and the machine guns were all right and managed to get by some 77s and whizz-bangs on my way back, only to find that a 155 had demolished my hole and all my possessions, to my great disgust.

I poked around and finally found a Luger pistol, but I had no great desire to stay in the bay any longer, so I moved westward up the trench, alternately running, falling, pausing in traverses, and looking in holes to see if any one had caught a splinter. I met James coming back from the same errand at the western end. I told him that my place was gone and that I was going to crawl in with him. We crawled in his hole close to the traverse near the east end of the bay and talked incessantly for an hour about everything in the world. The sentry in the traverse stuck his head in once and shouted that some one, he thought, had [illegible] shells had landed in the same bay where the three had gotten theirs that morning. The bay had become a gully about five times its former width. The French had wisely built this trench with a slight curve, so that an absolutely perfect range on the extreme western bay would only be perfect on the extreme eastern bay. In the intervening fifty or sixty yards, what was left of us cringed in our traps in a more or less hopeless state of expectancy.

It was now past 3 o'clock, and we returned to James' hole. The bombardment increased. Another battery of 155s came into action on the platoon sector. Now we had two batteries in addition to what seemed an unlimited quota of 77s and whizz-bangs. The ground thumped and shook constantly and the air suffocated. The sentry in the traverse was relieved. He stayed in preference to the solitude of his hole. James and I had now reached the stage where we could only look each other in the eye and give each other what passed for a smile. James had large brown eyes of nice color but not very well shaped. In spite of the shape I thought how grand they were.

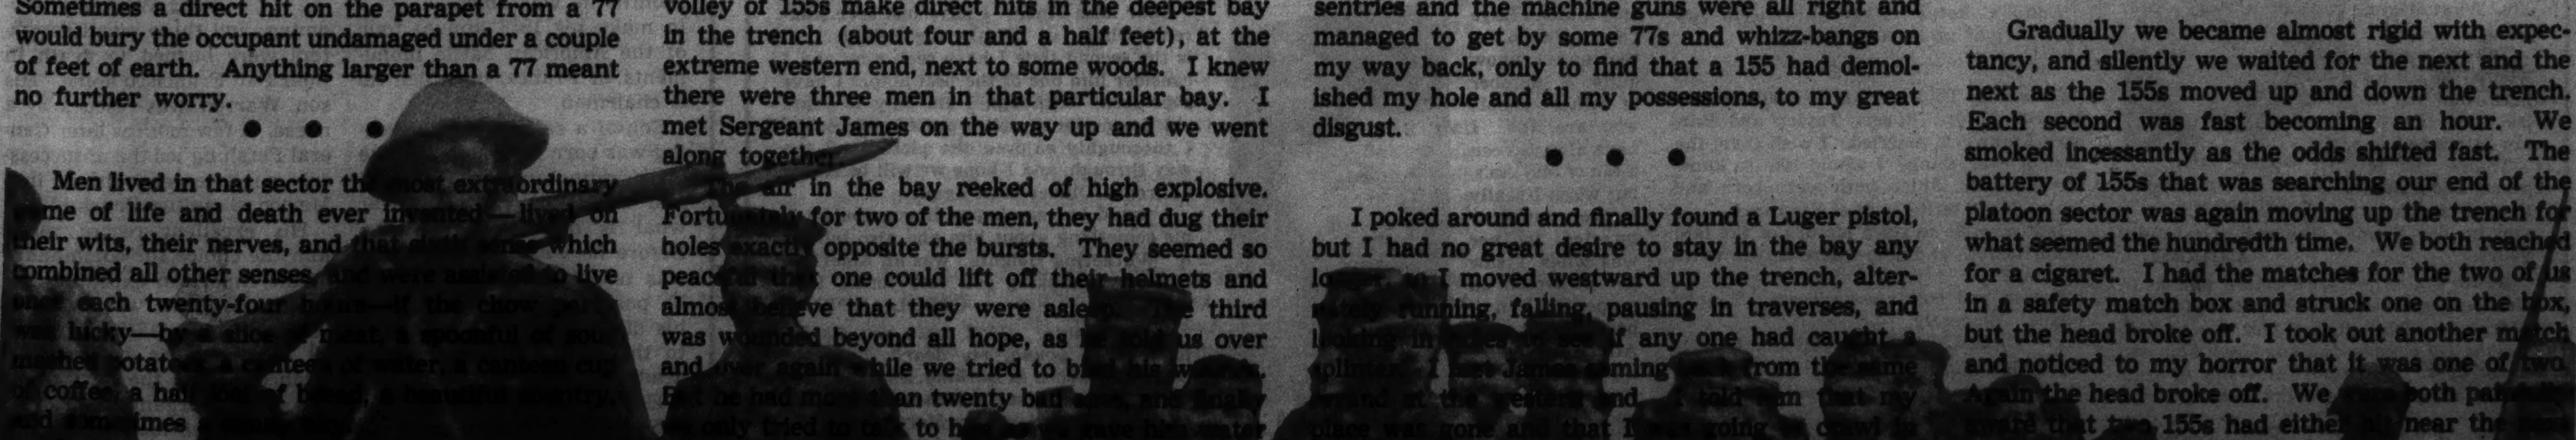
Gradually we became almost rigid with expectancy, and silently we waited for the next and the next as the 155s moved up and down the trench. Each second was fast becoming an hour. We smoked incessantly as the odds shifted fast. The battery of 155s that was searching our end of the platoon sector was again moving up the trench for what seemed the hundredth time. We both reached for a cigaret. I had the matches for the two of us in a safety match box and struck one on the box, but the head broke off. I took out another match and noticed to my horror that it was one of two. Again the head broke off. We were both painfully aware that two 155s had either hit near the next west bay or the further traverse of our bay, but there was no cry and the sentry said nothing. I took the last match and looked at it and the box and then at James and noticed that he was regarding the match and the box with as much interest [illegible]



Looking at Hollywood with Ed Sullivan

Crisp Is Old Reliable of Films

By ED SULLIVAN

Donald Crisp in a role of eighteen years ago.

As Burkitt in "Mutiny on the Bounty."

As Leif in "The Thrall of Leif the Lucky."

Hollywood.

IN "Daughters Courageous" the picture leans heavily on the characterization of the stolid, reliable town banker who falls in love with Fay Bainter and her family of four daughters, deserted by their husband and father twenty years earlier. The small-town banker could have been played in many ways. It was no accident that veteran Donald Crisp played it exactly as it should have been performed, because Crisp is the Old Reliable of films. He has been everything in pictures—lawyer, doctor, soldier, banker, family friend, judge, foreman of the jury, father, uncle—and he has never disappointed. He is one of that extensive coterie of Hollywood veterans who, without benefit of stardom, contribute mightily to the success of pictures—and to the success of stars more glamorous if less expert.

Within the boundaries of his own career Crisp contains the history of pictures, because in 1913 he played the rôle of General Grant in "Birth of a Nation," the D. W. Griffith early epic that was the start of an era. In 1939 the English veteran is still going strong. For twenty-six years he has been going to bat at the Hollywood plate and knocking out solid base hits, and if that isn't the label of a big-leaguer, then we all have another guess coming.

Donald Crisp checked in at the port of New York in 1906, at a moment when the crust of the earth was buckling and collapsing in a most alarming manner. The year 1906 was distressed by calamitous quakes in Chile, Formosa, and San Francisco. Throughout the following year, 1907, volcanoes were destructively active, with Ætna, Vesuvius, and Mauna Loa wiping out towns and cities; and 1908 followed up the two-year reign of terror with earthquakes in Sicily and Calabria and the financial panic in the United States. Crisp at least could not say that he wasn't getting action on a broad scale. At the time he was manager of the Fischer Riley Opera company and filling in for the tenor in such light operatic rôles as were provided by "Florodora" and "Wizard of the Nile."

From light opera he transferred to a Cohan-Harris company. He was backstage when the newspapers arrived with the story of Louis Bleriot's flight across the English channel, staggering the world by flying thirty-one miles from Calais to Dover in thirty-seven minutes, and he was on Broadway when the Hudson-Fulton celebration was staged. He already was in motion pictures, as an assistant director for Biograph, when the Titanic went down off the Newfoundland coast on her maiden trip, and he was a full-fledged director a few months later when District Attorney Charles S. Whitman (the Dewey of his day) sent Lieut. Charles Becker, Gyp the Blood, and Leftie Louie to the electric chair for the murder of Gambler Herman Rosenthal.

Throughout those crowded, colorful, and violent years Crisp was learning about the movies and preparing himself for the job of assistant director with David Wark Griffith. He directed the battle scenes for Griffith in "Birth of a Nation," in addition to playing the part of General Grant, and it was that experience that later fitted him for his direction of other pictures. Most notable of these were the three Douglas Fairbanks flickers he directed, "Mark of Zorro," "Don Q," and "Black Pirate." In those days the director not only directed his pictures but also cut them. When the movies started expandng to the point where directors became only cogs in the wheel Crisp quit and became an actor.

In "Dawn Patrol," revised version, Crisp's scene in the air headquarters office—when he starts thinking of the dog he left at home and is so swept away by the flood of memory that he calls to the dog and pretends to pat it—hurled itself at you from the screen. In "Jezebel" his portrait of the stern southern doctor rounded out the entire picture. In "Daughters Courageous" his embarrassed dignity when he comes face to face with the returned husband (Claude Rains), and in particular his scene with Rains outside the theater, when he tells Rains that he (Rains) must prove his love by going away, were memorable experiences in the movies.

I can't think back to a single performance by Donald Crisp that lacked sincerity, or artistic integrity, or fine taste.

Earthquakes may have been sounding when he arrived in America in 1906; bells should be ringing in his honor in 1939, because Hollywood and the world owe this fine practitioner in the art of artlessness a ringing vote of appreciation for the many grand hours of entertainment he has given us.

France Comes Back in Air!

Builds and Buys New Planes

By WAYNE THOMIS

A 285-mile-an-hour observation plane for the French army of the air. It is a Potez 63.

(Acme photos.)

THE FRENCH air forces, almost ruined by frequent and violent shifts in political control of its funds and policies, is making a come-back. While France today is considered to have the weakest air force of the big European powers, the nation is striving to build up its air fleets by insisting upon development of new types of fighting planes in its home factories and by purchasing certain types of single-seat fighting planes and multi-engined bombers from foreign factories.

From various sources this department has obtained specific information concerning performance of new planes being delivered to the French air squadrons. They will be described briefly here. All the machines are monoplanes and all save two are from French designs.

First there is the Potez 63.

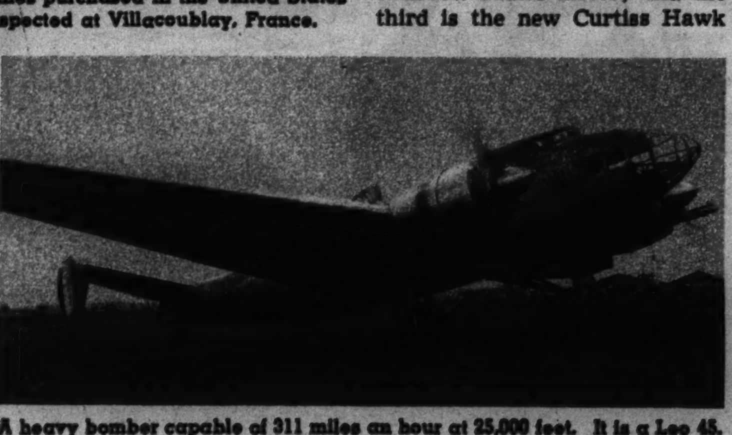
First of 200 Curtiss Hawk 75 pursuit planes purchased in the United States by the French government being inspected at Villacoublay, France.

This is a twin-motored plane with accommodations for two or three members of the crew, depending upon its uses. It is to be flown both as a multigun fighter and as a reconnaissance bomber. It has retractile landing gear, twin fins and rudders after the common American practice, and is built entirely of metal. The wings span 52½ feet, length 36 feet, gross weight 8,315 pounds.

The motors are Hispano-Suiza fourteen-cylinder twin-row radials developing 670 horsepower each at takeoff. The French plan to equip similar planes with twin-row Wasp Jr. motors developing 825 horsepower for takeoff, after they begin manufacturing this American engine in France under license. With the Hispano motors the plane has a top speed of 285 miles an hour. It takes off in 250 yards and has a ceiling of 32,800 feet.

The newest French bombers are 300-mile-an-hour machines, according to our information. Best of the lot is the Leo 45, constructed by Liore Olivier. Again the familiar all-metal monoplane with twin engines and twin fins and rudders is used. The radial motors are fourteen-cylinder two-row Hispano-Suizas, delivering 1,100 horsepower each. They are supposed to give the planes a top speed of 310 miles an hour.

The ship carries a crew of four—two pilots, a bomber-navigator, and rear gunner. It has tankage for 3,200 miles. Fully loaded the plane weighs 24,200 pounds. Its ceiling is 29,000 feet, and it cruises at 270 miles an hour at 16,400 feet. In the air it is a slick, streamlined fish, for the main landing wheels and tail wheel and the gunner's turret on the fuselage retract within the wings and the hull.



A heavy bomber capable of 311 miles an hour at 25,000 feet. It is a Leo 45.

The other machine of this general formula, upon which the French will depend for long-range reconnaissance, is the Breguet 690. It, too, is a twin-engined monoplane with twin fins and rudders and Hispano-Suiza fourteen-cylinder radial motors of 680 horsepower each. It weighs 9,900 pounds fully loaded, carries a crew of three (pilot, gunner, and observer), and has a range of 900 miles. Its speed at 16,400 feet is 298 miles an hour.

This plane is used for the same type of flying as the Potez 63.

For single-seat fighters to be used in the defense of Paris, or as escort ships for short-range bombing flights, the French will depend on three types of planes. One is the Morane-Saulnier, with a 960-horsepower V twelve Hispano-Suiza motor; another is the Dutch Koolhoven 58, with a 1,080-horsepower Hispano-Suiza twin-row radial motor; and the third is the new Curtiss Hawk 75, with a 1,100-horsepower twin-row Wasp motor, purchased in the United States.

The Morane fighter has a 20-mm. cannon incorporated in the engine and firing through the hub of the Ratier controlable-pitch propeller. The engine is cooled with a type of ethylene-glycol like Prestone. The plane weighs 5,000 pounds fully loaded, has a top speed of 311 miles an hour and a ceiling at 34,000 feet. The ship has flaps and lands at 76 miles an hour. It is fitted with oxygen, radio, and full navigating instruments.

The fighter from the Netherlands is a new plane with a top speed of 313 miles an hour. It has a span of 34 feet, length 30 feet, and weight of 5,000 pounds gross. Its manufacturers say it is the fastest fighter with a radial engine in the entire world. Its range is two hours of flying at a cruising speed of 240 miles an hour.

The Curtiss fighter is identical in all details with the 230 fighters bought by the United States army air corps. In our air force the machine is known as P-36. It has a twin-row Wasp motor of 1,200 horsepower and a top speed of 312 miles an hour. Its gross weight is 5,500 pounds, its wing span 35 feet and length 32 feet. The Curtiss plane is built entirely of metal, while both the Morane and the Koolhoven have metal stress-bearing structure but are covered with fabric on both wing and fuselage.

General Pershing

ON PAGE ONE of today's Picture Section is a portrait of Gen. John Joseph Pershing, painted especially for The Tribune by John Doctoroff. Doctoroff is a well known Chicago portrait painter who has done oil studies of a large number of prominent Americans.

General Pershing is the last survivor among the high commanders of the principal armies in the World war. Foch and Joffre of France, Haig and French of Great Britain, Von Hindenburg and Ludendorf of Germany, Diaz of Italy, and Grand Duke Nicholas of Russia—all have died.

John Doctoroff

Pershing will be 79 years old on Sept. 13. A year and a half ago he made a remarkable recovery from a critical illness. Within a few months he was able to make his 1938 annual tour of the American battle monuments in France, of which he is chairman.

Son of a section boss, Pershing was born in 1860 in a house on a siding of the Hannibal and St. Louis railroad, near what is now Meadville, Mo. Before he was 20 young John was teaching school. In 1882 he passed an examination for his district and was appointed to the United States military academy.

He was graduated in 1886 as president of his class, and from West Point he was assigned to Indian fighting on the western frontier. After the Sioux were suppressed he became military instructor at the University of Nebraska.

From there he went with the 10th cavalry, a colored regiment, into Montana, an incident which gave him his nickname. When he later returned to West Point as instructor the cadets dubbed him "Black Jack."

At the outbreak of the Spanish-American war Pershing went to Cuba with his regiment and was cited for gallantry in the battles of El Caney and San Juan. In 1899 he was sent to the Philippine Islands. His success in pacifying the Moros won him a captaincy on his return to the United States four years later. In 1906 President Theodore Roosevelt promoted him to brigadier general over the heads of 862 senior officers.

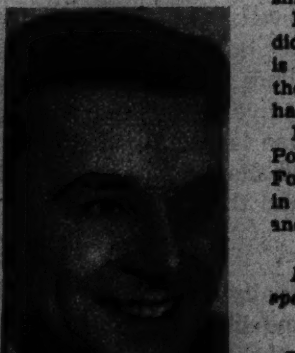
In 1915 his wife, Frances, the daughter of Senator Francis E. Warren of Wyoming, and three small daughters were burned to death in their San Francisco home. His son, Warren, was rescued by a nurse. A few months later General Pershing led the unsuccessful punitive expedition into Mexico to capture Pancho Villa.

His excellent record made him the choice for commander of the American expeditionary force when war was declared on Germany in 1917. On May 28 of that year he went to France, and in the next eighteen months organized an overseas army of more than two million men. After the war he inspired the passage of the defense act of 1920, aiming at military preparedness during peace time. He retired from active duty in 1924.

Voice of the Movie Fan

Letters published in this department should be written on one side of the paper. If you wish a personal reply please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Mae Tinée: I am glad to see George Brent given a rôle the kind he so much deserves. His work in "Dark Victory" is marvelous. It is good to see him discard his riding breeches and sombrero hat and get off the ranch for a while. He fits admirably into professional life. What do you think?



GEORGE BRENT
Role as professional man wins praise.

Tell me, please, where he was born, how old he is, etc. Yes, I am interested.

Thank you so much, and I shall hope to hear from you in The Sunday Tribune. Gratefully yours,

ANNABEL.

Editor's note: Here's where you hear. George Brent was born in Dublin, Ireland, March 15, 1904. He's 6 feet 1 inch tall, weighs 170 pounds, and has black hair and hazel eyes. Educated University of Dublin. Hobby is polo. You're welcome.

Dear Miss Tinée: I very much disagree, and so do other Powell fans, with a Mr. Stanley S. and his opinion of Dick Powell. Let me ask you, Mr. S., did you see "Shipmates Forever"? If you didn't see it, I hope it will come back to your theater so that you can see it. This picture is a good example of his acting and also his singing ability.

Probably the pictures you have seen didn't suit your taste. That is no sign he is a bad actor. Other people might like the pictures you didn't like, for we all have different tastes.

I know we fans would like to see Mr. Powell in more pictures like "Shipmates Forever," so let's all write to Miss Tinée in his favor and hope that he gets bigger and better pictures. Sincerely yours,

MISS VIRGINIA GREEN.

Editor's note: Ah! A Powell fan speaks right up in meeting.

Dear Miss Tinée: I am so glad my two favorite actors, Robert Taylor and Barbara Stanwyck, married. I wish them the best of everything. I would like to know the dates on which both were born and where I can write to Miss Stanwyck.

Is it possible to get a picture of the late Jean Harlow, and if so where do you write for one?

I wish you continued success. Thanks heaps. Sincerely,

CAROLYN HALL, Clinton, Tenn.

Editor's note: I know we all are wishing happiness for Barbara and Bob! Miss Stanwyck was born July 16, 1907, and Robert Taylor was born Aug. 5, 1911. You can address Barbara care of RKO-Radio studio, 780 Gower street, Hollywood, Cal., and Robert care of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio, Culver City, Cal. You may be able to obtain a photo of the late Jean Harlow by writing Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio.

Dear Miss Tinée: Would you be kind enough to print the answer to the following: Did Clark Gable or William Powell play opposite Myrna Loy in "Broadway Bill"? If neither, who was it? Thank you!

MRS. PHILIP KAPLAN.

Editor's note: Warner Baxter played opposite Myrna Loy in "Broadway Bill." You're welcome—and come again.

Dear Mae Tinée: I am writing this in answer to Marilyn Harrsch. No, Marilyn, you're not the only Martha Raye fan. I'm one, too, and I know quite a number of other people who are, too. I have always been a fan of Martha's, but when I really got very much interested in her was when I saw her in person on a personal appearance tour. After the show my sister and I went to the stage door to really get a good look at her, and really she is beautiful. Most people think that she is not nice looking on account of her mouth, but when you look at her her mouth is the least noticeable feature. Her eyes are what attract you most. I am keeping a scrapbook of Martha Raye pictures, and some day I hope to have Martha autograph it for me. I love to hear Martha sing and to hear her laugh. Her laugh makes every one laugh; and can she sing? O, boy!

MARTHA RAYE
An ardent fan praises her beautiful eyes.

Thank you very much for letting me say my little piece, Mae Tinée. I like your column, too. Best wishes.

ANN PETERSON.

Editor's note: You're welcome—and I'm glad you like us. Come again.

Dear Miss Tinée: I have just seen Laurence Olivier in "Wuthering Heights." It is the second time I have seen him, and I consider him one of the best actors I have ever seen. Although I am only 13 years old, I consider myself a pretty good critic. I thoroughly enjoyed the picture all the way through, and I hope we will be seeing Laurence Olivier soon again.

I would be very happy if you could tell me something about him and also tell me if "Wuthering Heights" was an American picture. Thanking you very much, I remain

CAROL ARDEN.

Editor's note: Good taste you display for one so young, my dear! Laurence Olivier was born in Dorking, England, May 22, 1907. He's 5 feet 10 inches tall and has brown hair and eyes. Married Jill Esmond, English actress. Appeared on the stage in London and New York before entering motion pictures. "Wuthering Heights" was produced in Hollywood by Samuel Goldwyn and released through United Artists studio, 1041 North Formosa avenue, Hollywood, Cal. You're welcome!

Death in the Trenches Before Cantigny!

An American Officer's Own War Story

Through Living Hell on Wits and Nerve

"For God's sake, James, take it, and I'll bet you a hundred francs you won't light it."

"I'll take the bet," he said, and he took the match and box, and as he did so a 155 landed in the further traverse of our bay. James struck the match the opposite way from the way I had tried, and it lit. Even as it lit there was the fierce noise of a very close 155, and the bay shuddered and heaved under the explosion. James kept the match lit. We looked each other in the eye and lit our cigarets. We crawled out. In the corner of the traverse crouched the sentry and the reliever, both unharmed. Eight feet or so up the bay, on the opposite side from where the match was lit, was the direct hit of the 155. We grinned at each other and crawled back in the hole, and I delivered the 100 francs. Somehow we both knew that eight feet was as close as we would come to cashing in that afternoon. The spell was broken, and we started to talk again. I have often wondered what would have happened had I not lost the bet.

II.

JACKSON*

On the afternoon of the 29th or 30th of April, 1918, I was sitting in the little trench on the extreme right of my platoon sector in front of Cantigny. It was a very small trench and lay in the northwest corner of the Bois de Cantigny. It was camouflaged under an old road leading through the bois to the town. The best part about that particular trench consisted of the fact that the Germans did not know of its existence. Otherwise it was not anything extraordinary for comfort, being about three and a half feet deep, and, as the ground was soft, one could not dig holes in the side to escape from the rain. It had rained each day for six days. It seemed to me it always rained whenever I was in that trench, and on that particular afternoon it was raining hard. When we slept in that trench we would scrape a place until it was dry as possible and then build small dams at both ends of the area to be occupied to keep the mud and water out. My main recollection of sleeping there is reaching down when I woke up to grab my breeches and pulling in order to bend my legs so that I could get up.

The 18th infantry marching up to the front in Ansauville sector of France.

A squad of six men occupied the trench. Corporal Shea's squad had moved in a couple of nights before. I was extremely fond of Shea. He was an exceedingly capable and courageous soldier, and I later made him sergeant. (As such he commanded for two days during the Argonne, where the company maintained its place in the front line of the advance for five days without an officer.) Shea was asleep on the bottom of the trench with the rain drenching him. His helmet was over his face. He was dreaming and moaning, but I could not hear what it was about. The rain had washed part of his dam away, and I fixed it and watched him sleep. There was the usual amount of artillery fire for that time in the afternoon.

Everything seemed unusually dreary, wet, and gloomy. There had been no food the night before on account of its being blown up, and I could only find some soaked and muddy hardtack. I began to wonder whether we wouldn't all get pneumonia—particularly Shea, who looked so thin and white and wet. I speculated on whether Olmstead would make a good corporal for the squad, and while thus engaged I saw some one coming along the path which led from my big trench. It was Sergeant James.

He got down into the west bay and came up to where I was in the east bay. He stepped around Shea without waking him up or hurting the dams and sat down. He looked depressed, but he produced a piece of dry hardtack which he had found and we divided it. I asked him what the news was in the other two trenches and he told me. It was obvious that nothing had happened to cause this visit, but it was equally obvious that something had happened which made him embarrassed and nervous. We discussed the prospects of food and clear weather. Finally James said, "Lieutenant, do you know Jackson?" "Yes," I said. "Isn't he the man who threw his arms around me about five nights ago, screaming that he had been killed, when that shell landed in my bay and wounded those two so badly? As a mattere of fact, the shell threw a stone at him which hit him in the cheek." James nodded and said, "Yes, that's the one." "Well, what about him?" I said. James looked at me and answered: "Well, lieutenant, every time there has been bombardment since then Jackson weeps and prays out loud." I was, to say the least, surprised and had no idea what to answer. It was impossible to say to James, "Well, James, it's a wonder to me sometimes that you and I don't weep and pray out loud." I am sure that James would have agreed, but it just wouldn't do to say it, for he and I never talked about our emotional reactions. I thought a while and looked at James and he at me. Both of us were puzzled. Finally I told him I didn't think that Jackson's actions were good reason for evacuating him. James blushed and finally said, "But, lieutenant, the others threaten to shoot him, and I am afraid they will some time when he does it." He was very worried. Then he added, "You can't really blame them, can you, lieutenant?" (It was the first and last time that James even so much as hinted that he felt or understood anything other than the physical side of war.) Of course, it was obvious that you couldn't blame them. The bombardment had been severe for seven days, and it had rained every day but one since we came into the line. Naturally you couldn't blame a person even if he did shoot a man who wept and prayed out loud.

It was clear from James' seriousness that something would have to be done about this man right away. If he couldn't be evacuated, which was impossible, there was only one thing to do, so I said, "Sergeant, the only thing I can think of is for Jackson to come over here with me and I will keep him unattached to any squad." James made no comment. I added: "I'm going back to the big trench in two or three days and will take him with me—we might use him for a runner!" The idea of his being a runner was so preposterous that we both laughed. James went off and in a short time came back with Jackson and left him.

It had been midnight when the stone hit Jackson in the cheek, and although I naturally remembered the incident and his actions at the time, I had been too busy since to think much about it, and I had never really observed him before. He still had a welt on his cheek. He was about 19 and stood five feet seven or eight. His face was freckled, sallow, and pale. He was quite thin and had washed-out blue eyes somewhat protruding and a rather unprepossessing face and figure. He looked scared and his hands shook. I told him to sit down beside me, and then I rather coldly informed him that he was to stay with me at all times except when I told him not to.

Shea woke up drenched, full of rheumatism, and coughing. He looked sharply at Jackson, but made no remark about his unexpected appearance, nor did I. I told Shea what news there was. He inquired about food, finally got up, and went to the further trench of the sector, ostensibly to find food, but probably to talk to James about Jackson on his way. It still rained hard. Shea came back grumbling, without any food. He left us and went to the next bay to talk to Olmstead. The gloominess and wetness were almost unbelievable. I sat and watched Jackson without talking to him and waited for the evening bombardment to commence. Was he completely down and out, I wondered, and if he was, what could one do? I feared the coming bombardment, which was as certain as the rain, but I was interested in seeing what Jackson would do. I knew enough to realize that here was a person who suffered terribly, with nothing to think about (he being a private) to take his mind off his suffering. What would he do and what could I do?

The German artillery commenced according to schedule. It generally lasted from three-quarters of an hour to two hours at that time of day. Jackson commenced to shake badly, and he showed his terror in his face more than anybody I had ever seen. Finally he lay flat on his stomach in the mud and water on the bottom of the trench and wept and wept. He shook all over. It was perfectly terrible, and I was at a complete loss as to what I should do. I waited and watched him I don't know how long, but finally I couldn't stand it any longer, and I reached down, grabbed him by the shoulder, and dragged him up beside me. He was covered with mud and the tears rolled down his face. I held his shoulder and said: "Now, Jackson, what the hell is the use in doing that? It only makes things much worse for you, and it makes me feel like lying down there in the mud and crying myself, and that would be a hell of a thing, wouldn't it?" He went on weeping and I hung on to his shoulder. I told him I was just as scared as he was, if not more so. (I think I probably was.) Finally I suppose it penetrated his mind that I had hold of his shoulder and was talking to him. I doubt if he had realized it before in his agony. He went on shaking, but he stopped crying. Finally he answered me, "O, lieutenant, I can't help it, I can't help it!" It was pitiful beyond words. I repeated what I had said before, but he merely moaned pathetically. The bombardment eased up at last and he shook less. That night I made him go the rounds with Shea and myself. I walked first and Shea last. Poor Jackson was frightened most of the time, and if a shell came within two hundred yards he was flat on the ground. It was still raining, and Shea was greatly annoyed after he had fallen over Jackson several times in the dark. We made the rounds a couple of times to each trench, and of course talked and whispered with the men. Shea loved to talk, and everybody liked him. Every one knew that he was probably making the rounds with me, and when Jackson came along I would hear a whisper, "That you, Shea?" and his answer, "No, it's Jackson," and then the reply, "Humph!" or "What the hell are you doing here?" I soon learned that he didn't have a friend (or at least a living friend) in the whole platoon.

The following morning we had quite a lot of shelling; Jackson shook like a leaf, but he was not crying. There was an unusual amount of shelling between us and the second platoon. He obviously wanted to move, but I knew the German's didn't know the location of the little trench and I wouldn't let him move. We had gotten some food that night, fortunately, and for that reason his nerves, or what was left of them, hung together longer. They broke when a 155 landed about twenty-five feet away toward the second platoon and brought down a tree. He was flat in the water crying. He went through the same performance as the day before, but I thought he stopped crying sooner. We didn't get much sleep during that day, and after the first round that night I left him sitting in the bay and went over to see James about wire. When I came back Jackson was lying in the water crying and asking God to help him. I couldn't see him and stepped on him. He was all alone in the bay. I pulled him up beside me and asked him what the hell had happened, as I knew that no shell had landed within a hundred yards of him. I couldn't get anything out of him. I knew, of course, he was tired to the point of death, like all the rest of us, and I also realized by then that he was lonelier than any of us, but I got no explanation from him.

We got food that night again, and the next day we were not bombarded until the afternoon. It was a great relief. Shea was in the bay with us when it started. Jackson seemed better and didn't get on his stomach, though he still had the palsy. I whispered to Shea if he didn't think Jackson acted better, but he only grunted and grinned, as if he didn't think it possible.

We moved back to the big trench that night. No one occupied the first bay, as it was too dangerous. After the second day I occupied the corner of the traverse at the western end of the second bay. The bay was not particularly safe, and I told Jackson he could use the other corner of the traverse. He was relieved, I guess, because he had been in the second bay when the stone hit him. It was also a relief to me not to have him there. At night when I wasn't busy I would hang a blanket over the entrance to my hole and light a candle and make him sit there with me. We would talk about anything. He was a very uninteresting person apart from his reactions and I don't remember any of our conversations. I do remember that he had given up weeping, and I no longer felt it incumbent upon me to take him on the rounds. The men, I imagine, remained skeptical, but nobody even mentioned his name to me. When any one came to the P. C., and Jackson was there, he was completely ignored except by James.

On the 10th or 11th of May we went into the reserve trenches, and I sent Jackson back to his squad. I was as nice as was possible to him and told him that he was all right. We were relieved on the 16th of May and returned to our front line sector on the 22d or 23d of May. I had a one-sided talk with Jackson the afternoon before we went up and told him he was going in with his squad and was going to stay with them and that he would be all right and that all he had to do was to realize that everybody else was as scared or more scared than he was. I had previously told the corporal that he was going back to the squad. The corporal did not seem pleased, but I heard no complaints, and Jackson did sentry duty and went on chow parties.

On the 28th of May, Cantigny was taken. We were in support, and on the afternoon of the 30th or 31st we were ordered to go over to Cantigny under the eyes of nine German balloons. (By the grace of God or sleeping Germans, we got over all right.) I went up through the trenches to tell the men we were going over to the town and came to Jackson's hole. I reached in and grabbed him and told him we were going over to Cantigny. His jaw dropped and his eyes bulged. He shook like a leaf again. I thought for a moment and said, "You follow me at eight paces and do just what I tell you to do." We went over and lay for hours in a little sunken road while 240s and larger shells pounded what was left of that poor little village. It was no damned ordinary bombardment, and I watched Jackson closely. It was impossible to talk to him for the noise. He shook, but, thank God, he didn't cry. Of course, he wasn't trapped in a trench, and to that extent he was better off; nevertheless I felt quite proud of him. We were relieved that night, but before we went out James and I agreed that Jackson was all right and that he had acted well that day. Thereafter he stayed with his squad.

On the afternoon of the 17th if July, near Compeigne, I told Jackson we were going to attack the following morning, that I was sorry he couldn't go along with me, but that I would be too busy and that he would go with his squad. I told him to stay by his corporal and that he would get along all right. We shook hands. Separately I told the corporal that Jackson must be within eight paces of him at all times. I did not think the latter and its implications were really necessary, as I was sure that Jackson would be all right. It seemed to me that his heart had been tried enough by that time.

On the morning of the 24th of July I called the roll of the company. Jackson was not present. His corporal told me with tears in his eyes that he had acted well.

The Return of PETER QUILL

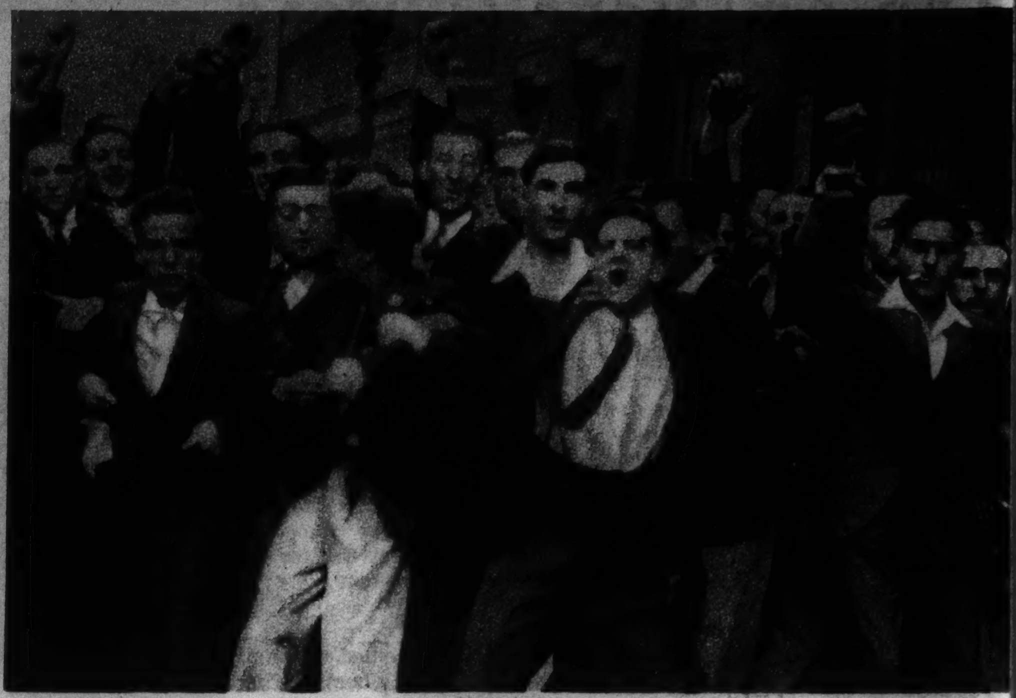
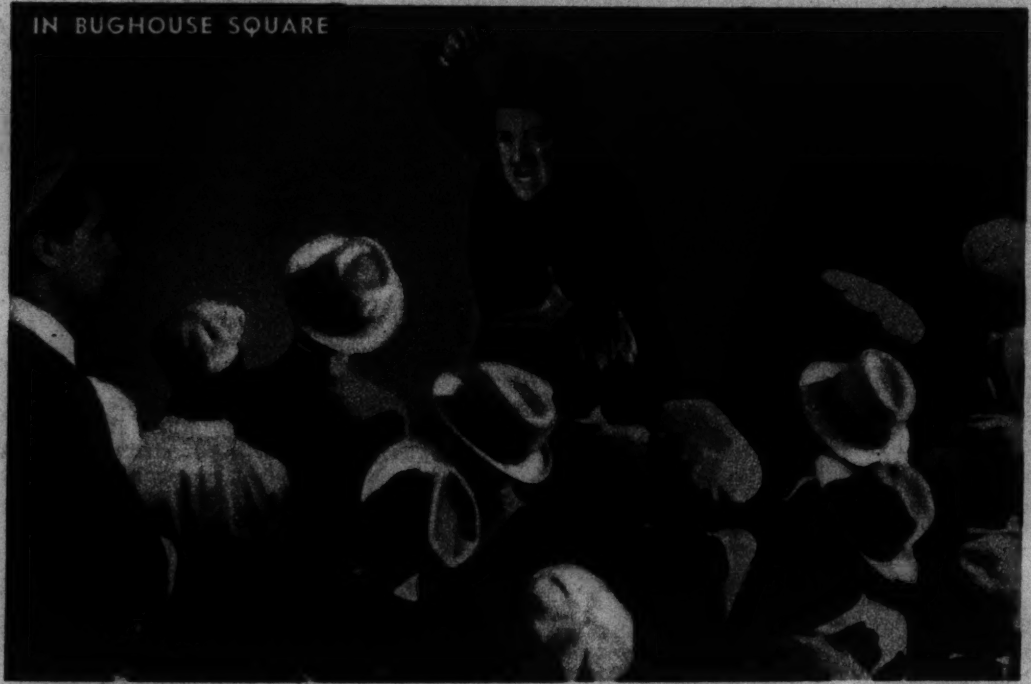
2 Waiting for a street car, Ted scans his morning paper. But his everyday round, thus routinely begun, is unexpectedly interrupted by the excited shouting of . . .



3 Marching men. They pour down the street, arms linked, their ranks filling pavement and sidewalk. Swept along with them, Ted is seized upon by clamoring youths: "Hi, comrades! Another new 'traveler' for the 'cause'!"



IN BUGHOUSE SQUARE

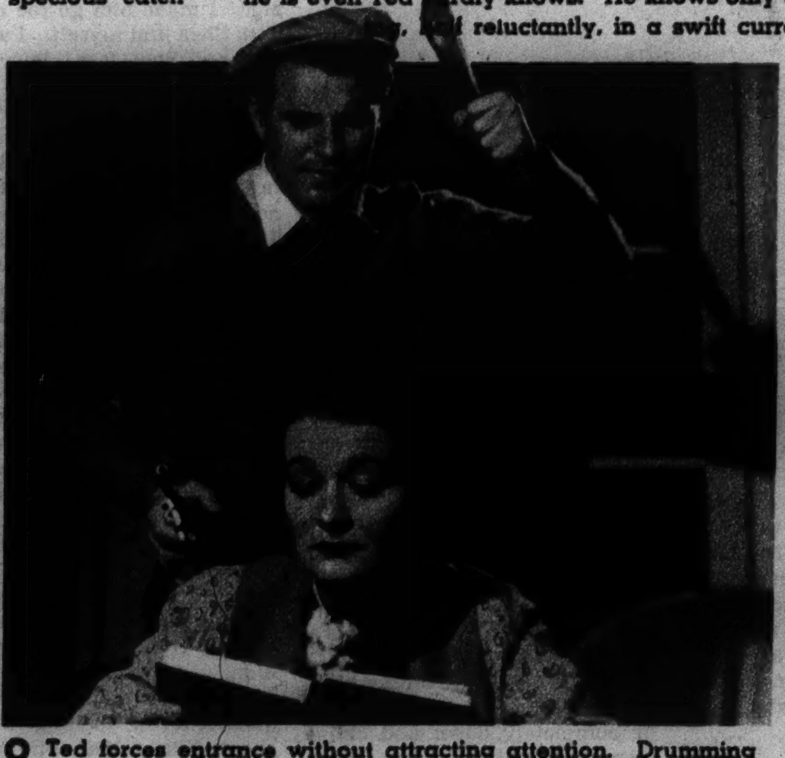
4 Such is Ted's chance introduction to the Red Circle. Moved by no grievance, but by curiosity and love of excitement, he comes to frequent Red Circle haunts. At length, to his own surprise, he finds himself a believer in the specious catch phrases mouthed by un-American extremists.

5 "You've changed, Ted," remarks his sweetheart, Elsie. "You're strange . . . and hard!" How much changed he is even Ted hardly knows. He knows only that he is drifting, half reluctantly, in a swift current.

IN THE RED CIRCLE

6 Eventually the Red Circle finds Ted ready to do its work; and Strang, the orator, instructs him in his first job: "Now, Leonard, this is war. If you're squeamish, you've got to get over it. Take this revolver; you may need it."

7 In a secret service desk, at which works Gail Carson, are certain chemical formulæ. The Red Circle wants them, and Recruit Leonard is bent on getting them . . . his first job.



8 Ted forces entrance without attracting attention. Drumming in his head is Strang's last order: "Slug or kill any one who may bar the way!" Death is near to Gail. The revolver descends, and . . .

9 Ted, wheeling at a slight noise, involuntarily pulls the trigger. He has fired point blank at Peter Quill, suddenly materialised as if from nowhere to safeguard the secrets of the nation. As suddenly . . .

10 A man-made bolt of lightning, loosed by Gail, fells Leonard. Peter Quill has not left his laboratory entirely unprotected, nor himself; he would not be alive now but for bullet-repellent garments of his own devising. The young chap upon the floor, sickened in a flash by the enormity of his crime, is . . .

11 Ready to take his punishment. But Peter Quill, his sympathies stirred by Ted's story, has a better way: "Go along. But don't forget the debt you owe to your country. It needs your loyalty, as it needs that of every young man."

12 His mind cleared by sounder counsel, Ted again finds his way to happiness. "There's a lesson in the case of Ted Leonard," says Peter Quill, "for every American, young or old. Subversion, whether it calls itself the Red Circle or any other name, will pull the nation down in ruins if it does its will. Be an American!"

All names used in "The Return of Peter Quill" are fictitious.

Treatment of Chicago's Sewage

By GUY MURCHIE JR.

THROUGH the 1920s the city's population continued to grow, passing the three million mark. The sanitary district's dilution system continued to function, too, but once again sewage disposal began to slip behind the amazing population rate. The sewers could convey all the sewage into the rivers and canals all right, but the amount of lake water needed to properly dilute the sewage after it got into the rivers and canals was increasing. Presently complaints began to come from other lake cities that Chicago was diverting so much water from the lake that the lake's water level was sinking. At the same time protests were heard from the river towns to the southwest that Chicago was flooding them with half-raw sewage.

The justice of either of these accusations was questionable, but the Supreme court in Washington decreed that by the end of 1938 Chicago must reduce her withdrawal of water from Lake Michigan to 1,500 cubic feet a second, or about one-fourth of what she needed for proper treatment of sewage by dilution.

And so the sanitary district's engineers got busy to find a way of complying with the order. As a matter of fact they had been busy right along, for they had foreseen this very problem and had been experimenting for years as to the best way to solve it. Obviously some system of sewage treatment must be adopted to largely purify the sewage before it reached the rivers and canals, because these waterways would no longer have enough current to do the job.

This artificial sewage treatment would have to be done in centrally located plants, the engineers decided, and therefore many miles of new big sewage tunnels would have to be dug along the river banks to intercept the sewers then emptying into the rivers and to convey the sewage to the plants. The digging of these new intercepting tunnels, some of them as much as twenty-four feet in diameter, or big enough to swallow a double-deck bus, with room for another double-deck bus on its top, has been going on for the last seven years and is now virtually complete. The district has built more than 166 miles of these intercepting sewers, and today they prevent all but a tiny portion of the city's sewage from reaching the rivers or canals until it has been treated.

Despite these intercepting sewers carrying the wastes of the city to treatment plants, the decreed reduction of water flow out of Lake Michigan has slowed up the river enough to make it semi-stagnant and to create an obnoxious odor even from the almost purified sewage that goes into it.

Of all the remarkable works of the sanitary district its four great modern treatment plants are undoubtedly the most remarkable. They are in effect sewage laundries, but, unlike other laundries, they cannot send their dirt down the drain. They are the drain. Their work of disposing of about 95 per cent of the city's sewage impurities may not impress the casual reader, but if he will consider how he would dispose of a gallon of sewage without throwing it away he can get a better appreciation of the district's task in disposing of about a billion gallons of sewage every day of the year.

Simplified diagram showing principle of operation of new southwest sewage treatment works.

There are seven minor treatment plants besides the four big ones operated by the sanitary district in different parts of the city, but let us inspect the main north side treatment plant to get an idea of just what happens to the 200,000,000 gallons of noxious liquid that that particular plant has to cope with daily. The working of the new southwest plant is described in the diagram above. When the sewage of the north side arrives at the treatment plant it is in a huge tunnel lined with concrete and about thirty feet underground. It first passes through a grating or coarse strainer which is designed to remove any boards or large objects which might injure the pumps it must go through later.

Then come the pumps, big centrifugal pumps which pump it up to the level necessary for letting it flow through the treatment processes by gravity. After this it passes through a screen of relatively fine mesh which serves to weed out the smaller jetsam. An attendant watches this screen to remove objects that collect there. His job may sound unappetizing, but actually it is one of the most exciting and glamorous jobs in the entire sanitary district. One night not long ago a hundred-dollar bill drifted along on the seamy tide to be picked off the grating by the wide-eyed watchman, and several times lesser bills have appeared, to say nothing of jewelry and other booty. If you are a prospector, however, please do not arrive at the plant with your pan and pick, because the district does not want to encourage the spirit of '49, and, anyway, you might have to wait years for your big strike.

After the stream of sewage passes the screen it enters the grit chamber for the next step in cleaning. Here the speed of flow of sewage water is slowed down, being kept at one foot a second, which is slow enough to allow such things as sand and cinders to settle to the bottom. Next the sewage enters the preliminary settling tanks. Here its flow is greatly slowed down, so that it moves only about a foot a minute, allowing a great part of the more solid sediment in it to settle gradually to the bottom, from which it is drawn off as a thick, soupy slime, sometimes called sludge.

Having got rid of the heaviest third of its impurities, the sewage now enters the heart of the plant, where the real cleansing work is done—the aeration tanks. These tanks are 420 feet long, and the liquid is slowed down so that it takes about five hours to pass through them. The bacteria now get their chance to disintegrate the sewage under the most favorable conditions. Bacteria are pumped in among the sewage in the form of half-disintegrated sludge, which is the solid matter that is separated from the sewage after the aeration process, and most of which matter is piped back and reintroduced at the entrance of the aeration tanks to prime the new sewage with plenty of bacteria. Thus the sludge keeps circulating in what some of the engineers call a merry-go-round, distributing bacteria to the new sewage each time around, until finally drawn off. As the bacteria-laden sewage mixed with sludge passes slowly through the aeration tanks it is given quantities of oxygen in order to stimulate the microbes to high activity. The oxygen rises up through the fifteen feet of liquid in the form of tiny bubbles, the aeration tank being equipped with porous plates at the bottom, through which compressed air is forced.

By the time the liquid sewage reaches the end of the aeration tank 92 per cent of its impurities have been separated from it or disintegrated by the bacteria, and the particles of sludge suspended in it are easily removed by settling or filtering, whereupon the relatively pure water is ready to overflow into the river. So little purification remains to be done that the river can safely accomplish it in a very few miles. Medical authorities say that there is no actual menace to health in the unpleasant odor caused by the river's present semi-stagnation.

As for the sludge, as fast as it is drawn off the tank bottoms it is pumped to the disposal plant along with the solid matter obtained in the preliminary settling tanks. Here it is dried and burned. But sludge disposal is not as simple as that sounds, for how are you going to dry a vast daily swamp of slimy sludge? How are you going to keep its odor from nauseating people for miles around? And how are you going to make it inflammable? These questions have been the most difficult the sanitary district has had to answer, and its answer is something new and revolutionary in sanitary engineering.

Briefly, the sludge disposal treatment consists of "coagulating the sludge with ferric chloride, dewatering on vacuum filters, drying in a closed-circuit vapor drying system, and burning in a special type of furnace as powdered coal is burned. No odors are allowed to escape, and the end product is an inert ash which may be used for filling low areas without developing a nuisance. Dust and fine ashes are taken out of the furnace gases by an electric precipitator."

The only one of the four large treatment plants that doesn't use the aeration tank or "activated sludge" method of sewage purification is the west side plant. There the sludge is separated from the liquid only by settling in a series of tanks, the final one of which is known as an Imhoff tank. Sludge disposal is accomplished by pouring it upon underdrained sand beds which are so designed that the liquid filters down through the deep sand and drains off, while the solid matter is allowed to dry, becoming oxidized through contact with the air. Once dry, it is carted away and dumped, or used as fertilizer by any farmers who are willing to come and get it. It is by this time an innocuous and almost odorless substance.

The latter method of sewage disposal is less efficient than the aeration-coagulation method used at the other plants, and it was originally undertaken as an experiment. In fact, all of the sanitary district's treatment processes have been worked out by experiments, largely in the district's own plants—for artificial sewage disposal on the scale required in Chicago is something new in the world, and the sanitary district has had few precedents to go by. The truth is that the bounty of Lake Michigan enables Chicago to use much more water, and therefore produce much more sewage, than any other city.

Perhaps you have wondered about the control works so conspicuously installed by the district last year at the mouth of the Chicago river, and seeming to block it. This is a navigation lock 600 feet long, through which ships can pass at any time, but which provides a water-tight gate to prevent the escape of any river water into the lake. It was made necessary by the Supreme court's decree (already mentioned) ordering the slowing up of the river's current and making it liable to reverse its flow after a hard rain.

The sanitary district's lock and dam at Lockport, Ill., also exercise control over the river's flow, and the dam provides power to work the district's pumping stations as well as to light some of the streets and parks of Chicago and suburbs.

Total cost of Chicago's artificial treatment system for sewage comes to about $162,697,000, or $34.75 for each person served, and the yearly operating cost will remain at about $1.17 a person. This is not very burdensome when you reflect that the scourge of typhoid fever has virtually disappeared from Chicago. From 5,600 deaths by typhoid per 100,000 people each year of the decade before 1855, the rate since 1930 has fallen to only one death per 100,000 people every three years.

This is the third and last article of a series on Chicago's system of sanitation.

Mostly About Dogs

By BOB BECKER

Fashions in Dogs Hard to Explain

ASSIGNING reasons for the popularity or the lack of favor of certain breeds of dogs is as difficult as explaining the rise and fall of miniature golf. Many of the breeds have gained wide favor because they have fallen into the hands of American celebrities who focused attention on them. On the other hand, many other breeds have been associated with certain well known people for many years and they're still not well known to the general public.

If you examine the history of certain breeds you'll find that they sort of skyrocketed to fame and popularity after they were recognized by the American Kennel club. As soon as they were given an official O. K. by the organization they started on the road to success. Others are in America for a long time, maybe twenty years or more, before they catch on with the public.

Wallace Beery is one of many dog lovers among the moving picture stars. He is shown here with one of his Irish setters.

The average dog owner is apt to be startled when he looks over the list of more than 100 breeds now recognized by the American Kennel club. He's startled because he can't believe there are that many! Years may go by before he is able to see in fairly good-sized dog shows just one representative of some of the breeds. And more years may go by before he finds any of these rare breeds kept as a pet in a home.

A good illustration of the way some of the old breeds recognized by the A. K. C. fade out of the picture is the Maltese. (It's a spaniel, not a terrier.) We saw one of these clever little dogs in Florida several years ago. It was the first pet dog of this breed that we ever saw anywhere in the United States. And we haven't seen one since then. Not even the 1939 Westminster show in New York had a Maltese entry. This is a very old breed of dog, smart, active, friendly, and not hard to keep. (It's been known for twenty-eight centuries.) It's ideal as a small companion dog. Yet the Maltese is unknown today, an almost forgotten breed.

One of the slowest movers in the race for popularity has been the Bedlington terrier. The first specimen of this breed was registered in America in 1886. In 1926, after forty years in this country, the yearly Bedlington registration was only ten dogs. (Compare this with the 1938 registration of 16,844 for the popular cocker spaniel.) After 1926 the Bedlington gained slowly. But it wasn't until about five years ago that this breed went into high gear. Last year 157 specimens were registered, and 1939 may see another big increase. The public is beginning to talk about "the dog that looks like a lamb" or "the dog with the sheep's head." If they keep on with this talk more people may buy Bedlingtons!

The boxer has been a slow starter in this country, but after doing little for years it's now going places. This breed came to the United States around 1904. In 1926 (after twenty-two years in this country) it could muster a yearly registration of only eighteen dogs! This figure alone tells the story of how this unusual looking breed failed to catch the eye of the dog fanciers. Then in 1933 the boxer got under way. Registrations jumped from twenty-one to seventy-four. Since then it has been moving at almost the same speed. Go to a dog show and you see handsome imported and American-bred boxers getting much attention. Some of them have been winning working group honors. Some have gone best in show. The public is getting more interested in them. Good kennels specializing in the breed have helped.

The bull terrier is a dog of great strength, agility, and courage. This head study is of Colmore Lady.

No better example of how a breed rises to the top and then fades can be cited than the pug dog. A great favorite in the gay nineties, when it was the dog, the pug went down hill fast. Kennels quit breeding them. Nobody wanted them for pets. For a while you saw few if any in dog shows. Now that smart little breed, after being threatened with oblivion, is beginning to come back. A handy size, hardy and intelligent, there is no reason why it shouldn't win more friends.

The Pembroke Welsh Corgi is an example of a new breed that came up fast. Only in this country five years, it had 135 A. K. C. registrations in 1938. The Corgi doubtless will get more attention in England, too. It's the mark of royal attention now that England's two little princesses are devoted to a Corgi, their favorite dog pet.

So there is no telling what may happen to a breed in America. The public is fickle. A breed that is king this year may be just an also-ran, unwanted, bringing no prices, and having little popularity, possibly within a decade. On the other hand, the Boston terrier enjoyed a long period of public favor and still is popular, although it has had to yield first place to the cocker spaniel.

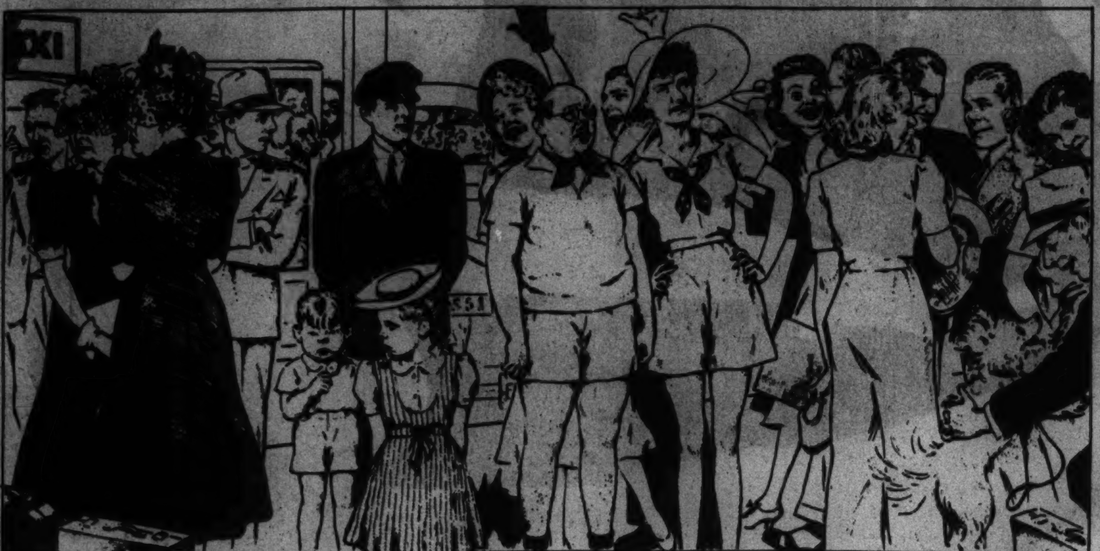
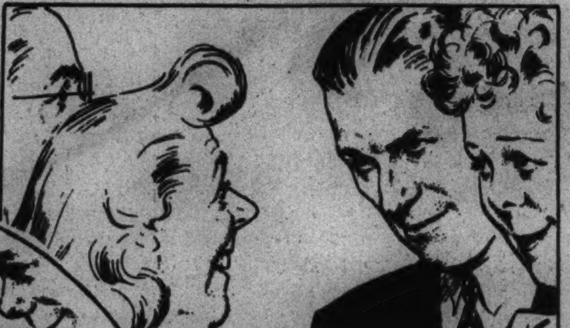
SUBURBAN WEEK END

By W. E. Hill

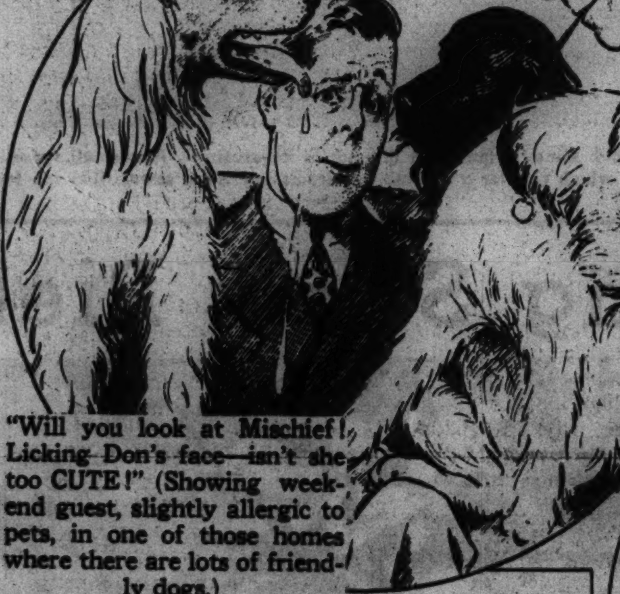
Copyright, 1939, by News Syndicate Co., Inc.



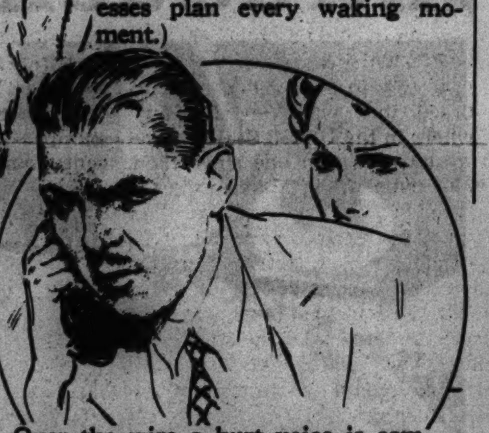
Suburban station platform on Saturday afternoon. Some have come on the train they said they would come on, some have come on the wrong train, which is to be expected, and some have failed to show up at all.



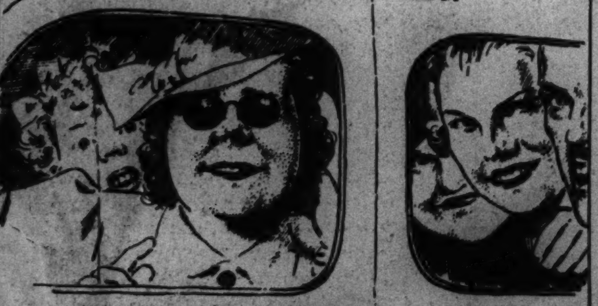
"We're taking you to the Cosy Tea Room for dinner, and then to see the Out House Players in 'Mr. Plaster of Paris,' and tomorrow we're going to a softball game between the married dentists and the unmarried doctors, and if you can stay till evening we're going to take you to the Reformed Lutheran Church picnic." (Suburban week-end hostesses plan every waking moment.)



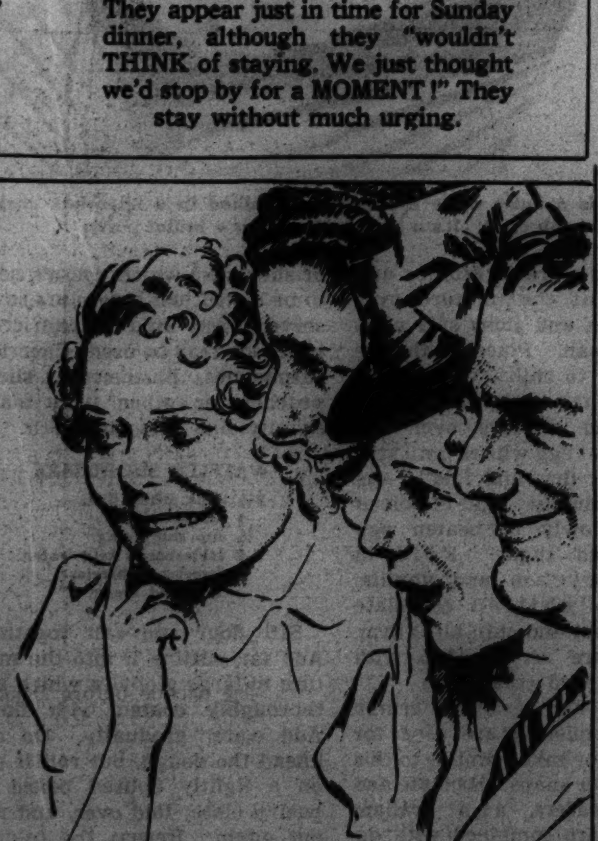
"Will you look at Mischief! Licking Don's face—isn't she too CUTE!" (Showing week-end guest, slightly allergic to pets, in one of those homes where there are lots of friendly dogs.)



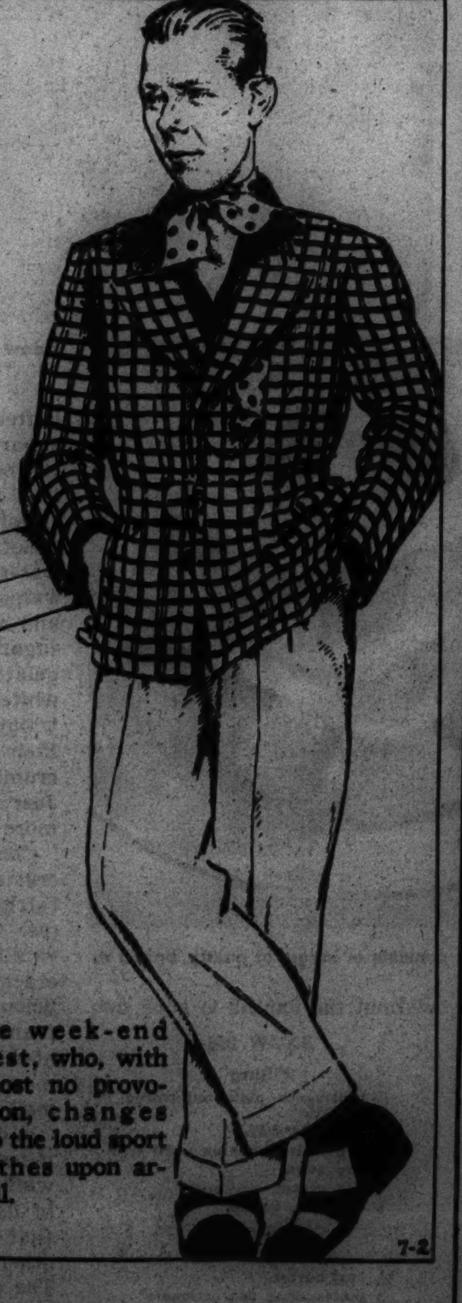
Over the wire a hurt voice is complaining, "We DID take Route 17, but we CAN'T find the white church you told us to look for. You'll HAVE to drive down and meet us!"



Jolly carload of uninvited relatives. They appear just in time for Sunday dinner, although they "wouldn't THINK of staying. We just thought we'd stop by for a MOMENT!" They stay without much urging.



On Sunday morning the guests get dragged around the garden. Everything has to be admired or feelings will be hurt. (These guests are screaming with delight, crying, "How WONNERFUL! How MARV'LOUS!" at a suburban asparagus bed.)



The week-end guest, who, with almost no provocation, changes into the loud sport clothes upon arrival.

Gems of American Eloquence

● American eloquence has played an important part in the history of our country. From a long list of famous speeches The Tribune is selecting gems of American eloquence which are to be presented in this, the Graphic Section, every Sunday. The content of these speeches is important both historically and politically. Men and boys learning to speak in public will find in them helpful lessons. Speakers and writers can learn a great deal from studying their style. This is the fourth of the series.

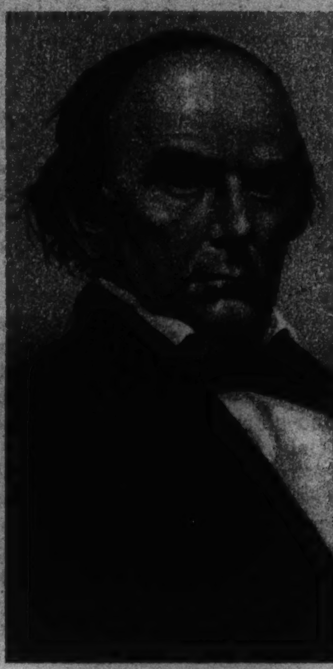
IN A LAND which has produced a great number of outstanding orators Daniel Webster, the famous lawyer and statesman from New Hampshire, in the opinion of many, ranks first. Among his numerous stirring orations were his celebrated reply to Robert Y. Hayne of South Carolina in the United States senate on Jan. 26, 1830, and his Bunker Hill address, delivered at the laying of the corner stone of Bunker Hill monument in Charlestown, Mass., June 17, 1825, just fifty years after the battle that was fought upon its site. Here, in the excerpt from the Bunker Hill address that follows, Webster was speaking directly to survivors of the war of independence, some of whom actually fought at Bunker Hill:

"Venerable men! You have come down to us from a former generation. Heaven has bounteously lengthened out your lives, that you might behold this joyous day. You are now where you stood fifty years ago, this very hour, with your brothers and your neighbors, shoulder to shoulder, in the strife for your country. Behold, how altered! The same heavens are indeed over your heads; the same ocean rolls at your feet; but all else how changed! You hear now no roar of hostile cannon, you see no mixed volumes of smoke and flame rising from burning Charlestown. The ground strewed with the dead and the dying; the impetuous charge; the steady and successful repulse; the loud call to repeated assault; the summoning of all that is manly to repeated resistance; a thousand bosoms freely and fearlessly bared in an instant of whatever of terror there may be in war and death;—all these you have witnessed, but you witness them no more. All is peace. The heights of yonder metropolis, its towers and roofs, which you then saw filled with wives and children and countrymen in distress and terror, and looking with unutterable emotions for the issue of the combat, have presented you today with the sight of its whole happy population, come out to welcome and greet you with a universal jubilee. Yonder proud ships, by a felicity of position appropriately lying at the foot of this mount, and seeming fondly to cling around it, are not means of annoyance to you, but your country's own means of distinction and defense. All is peace; and God has granted you this sight of your country's happiness ere you slumber in the grave. He has allowed you to behold and to partake the reward of your patriotic toils, and he has allowed us, your sons and countrymen, to meet you here in the name of the present generation, in the name of your country, in the name of liberty, to thank you!



DANIEL WEBSTER

"But, alas! you are not all here! Time and the sword have thinned your ranks. Prescott, Putnam, Stark, Brooks, Read, Pomeroy, Bridge! Our eyes seek for you in vain amid this broken band. You are gathered to your fathers, and live only to your country in her grateful remembrance and your own bright example. But let us not too much grieve that you have met the common fate of men. You lived at least long enough to know that your work had been nobly and successfully accomplished. You lived to see your country's independence established, and to sheathe your swords from war. On the light of liberty you saw arise the light of peace, like and the sky on which you closed your eyes was cloudless."

'another morn,
Risen on mid-noon';

If I were to make one comment about this speech, it would be this: don't imitate it! The vigorous type of speaking and the intense feeling which are so apparent in the passage you have just read are not to be copied by ninety-nine speakers in a hundred, or by the hundredth speaker in ninety-nine speeches out of a hundred.

A contemporary of Webster's commented: "It [this strong feeling] has made his eloquence a language of the heart; felt and understood over every portion of the land it consecrates. . . . He has done what no national poet has yet succeeded in doing—associated his own great genius with all in our country's history and scenery which makes us rejoice that we are Americans. He has made the dead past a living present."

Allowing for a certain exaggeration in the language, this comment is, by and large, true. We may appreciate Webster for the power of his ideas as expressed in his own emotionalized language, but seldom if ever in this present age should we try to go and do likewise.—Comment by Martin Maloney of Northwestern university school of speech.

Bending on a Board for Beauty and Health

Here's a Simple Apparatus That Serves for Many Types of Exercise

By ELEANOR NANGLE

A STRANGE looking six-foot board, slanted at about a thirty-degree angle, has long been part of the standard equipment of the progressive beauty salon operated on the theory that beauty and health go hand in hand. It's an exercise board known by various names in various establishments, and it serves an excellent purpose for many types of exercise, particularly those supervised gymnastics which call for a reversal of circulation.

Reversal of circulation, in case it sounds like salon jargon to you, is a trick of making the law of gravity a beauty aid instead of a beauty defeater. In using the slanting board the head is lower than the feet and gravity is used to send fresh, vitalizing blood to the head. These fresh reserves to the facial area help to nourish the skin of the face and scalp. They constitute a facial treatment by arousing a natural circulation and with no breakdown of tissue. Strange as it may seem, this has, under supervision, been found an excellent corrective for the sluggish complexion and the scrawny neck and face, for an active circulation is essential to a lovely complexion.

This same board, of course, is used for various other exercises, such as stretching and kicking and general limbering up. When the exerciser reclines on it with her head at the higher end it can be exceedingly useful for bust development exercise, the motions being much like dry-land swimming.

This board, usually called a balance board in the salons, has been very popular with the gymnasium directors in Hollywood, whose chore it is to see that all the little stars and starlets are figure-perfect. One of them, Dick Kline of Paramount, sees no reason why it shouldn't be in the home of every woman who believes in the beauty value of exercise. He's designed one for home use. So far we haven't seen this on the market, but you might be on the watch for it.

He calls it the Bend-to-Health board, and, as you can see from the photographs, there is nothing complicated about its structure. Almost all types of stretching exercises may be taken on it, which makes it a boon for the too-thin as well as the too-fat.

Stretching exercises are the great normalizers. If you ever wake up in the morning with the feeling that there isn't enough sleep to be had in the whole world, try some stretching exercises, pulling every muscle in your body. Stretching is natural to muscles, where jerky exercises are not. Consider the cat, the tiger, or any superbly graceful animal. Does it do physical jerks? It does not. But, with a coördination which we humans might envy, every muscle goes into perfect gear with every motion. It stretches naturally, sinuously—and it has the most admirable muscle tone in the world.

We must learn to make our gears mesh in this same smooth fashion. Stretching is the habit that does the trick.

The board is a great help in doing rhythmic exercises that flatten the abdomen. With the proper exercises you can develop a girdle, an inside girdle, of firm, healthy muscles that will subdue the flabby bulge permanently. You can lie on the board, feet tucked beneath the strap at the top, and pull yourself into a sitting position. It's rather fun to do over and over again—and every time you do it you're adding tone to those flaccid muscles that have been letting your abdomen accumulate flabby fat.

Betty Grable does her daily dozen on the "Bend-to-Health" board designed by Dick Kline, gymnasium director of Paramount. Almost all types of stretching exercises are done easily and pleasantly on this board, notably those which call for a reversal of circulation, head lower than the feet.

For the too-fat, for the too-slim, and for the pluperfect, like Miss Grable, the rhythmic kicking, stretching, and twisting that can be done on a slanting exercise board like this constitute wonderful figure insurance.

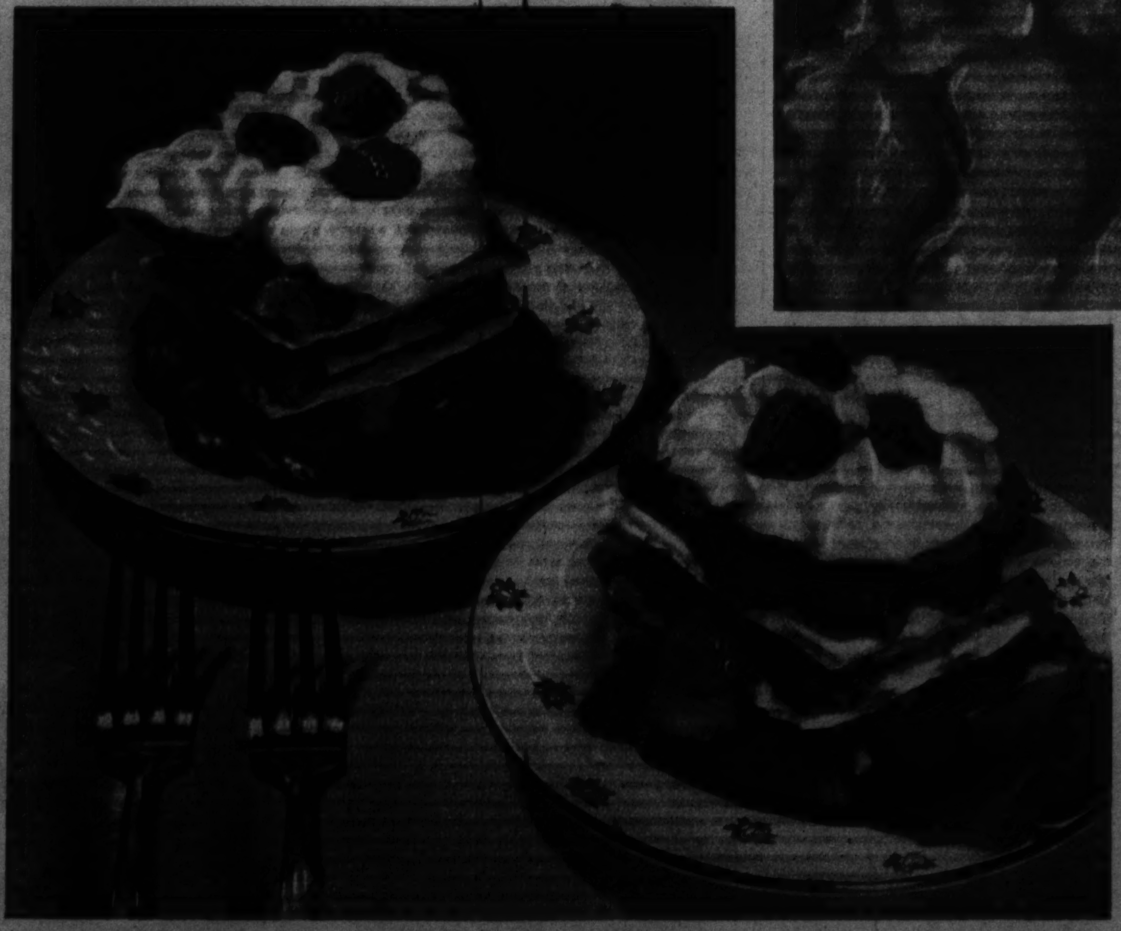
Introducing Snow Pie!

Snow pie is a fluffy white sponge filling chilled in a chocolate cookie crumb crust. It's a lovely dessert for a bridal party.



Here's a new version of strawberry shortcake. The cake part of this dessert consists of layers of pastry baked in a waffle iron.

By MARY MEADE

MOST OF the readers of this column, I believe, have made the acquaintance of our famous snow cake. Now let me introduce snow pie, just as beautifully white, light, and fluffy in a pielike manner as was the cake in its cakey way.

Snow pie is elegant enough to appear at a party for a summer's bride. High, spongy, and creamy, it contrasts in color and texture with its crust of chocolate cookie crumbs.

Vanilla wafers, ginger snaps, graham crackers, or corn flakes may be used in place of chocolate wafers for this crust. Graham crackers and corn flakes want a little more sugar—as much as a third cup.

Flavorings for the filling may be varied, though vanilla seems to be the best choice. A half teaspoonful of almond extract without the vanilla is good, too.

SNOW PIE

Filling

1 tablespoon plain unflavored gelatin
¼ cup cold water
3 egg whites, beaten until stiff
⅓ cup sugar
1 cup cream, whipped
1 teaspoon vanilla

Crust

1½ cups chocolate wafer crumbs
⅓ cup butter
3 tablespoons confectioners' sugar

Make the crust first. Cream butter and work in crumbs and sugar. Pat the mixture over the bottom and sides of a nine-inch pie pan. Place in the refrigerator to chill.

Soften the gelatin in cold water and dissolve over hot water. Beat egg whites until stiff and rather dry, and fold in the sugar gradually. Add dissolved gelatin slowly to beaten egg whites and sugar. Fold in whipped cream and vanilla. Pour into chilled chocolate crumb crust and chill until firm. Just before serving top with more whipped cream.

Cookie and cracker crumb crusts frequently are used for refrigerator cakes similar to this pie. Ginger snaps, chocolate and vanilla wafers, and graham crackers are combined with delicious fillings in the recipes found in "Thirty-three Refrigerator Cakes," a booklet which may be obtained through the mail for 5 cents in stamps.

A dessert equally scrumptious, if not quite so bridey looking, is waffled shortcake. Crisp layers of flaky pastry make shortcake that really is "short," or, in other words, long on shortening. The pastry is baked in a waffle iron and may be stored for later use if you like. This is one kind of shortcake which doesn't need to be baked just before it's to be served. Any kind of fresh fruit in season may be used. Cherries, raspberries, blueberries, sliced peaches, or other fruit make equally fine desserts.

WAFFLED SHORTCAKE

2½ cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon salt
⅔ cup shortening
5-6 tablespoons cold water
Sweetened berries
Whipped cream

Sift flour and salt together. Add fat, cutting it into the mixture in large globules which are thoroughly coated with flour. Add water gradually. Do not knead the dough, but roll it out on a lightly floured board or pastry cloth, fold over, and roll out again. Repeat the folding and rolling a third time. Roll about a fourth inch thick. Cut pastry into a round to fit well inside the waffle iron. After placing pastry in the iron mark it with a knife along the quarter section lines of the iron. This makes the pieces of pastry come apart easily after they've been baked. Put several sections of pastry together with a filling of sweetened strawberries or other fruit and top with whipped cream.

REALIZE YOUR DREAM OF THRILLING HAIR!

A remarkable new cleansing-agent now in Halo Shampoo, brings lovely sparkle and manageability to even dry hair, with no scalp irritation!

HAIR can do wonders for a woman if she gives it a chance. It can seem to make a round face take on lines of classic beauty. Give fullness and youth to faces that may be a trifle too angular. Yes, hair can reflect exotic over-tones in your eyes and your complexion.

But you see, old-style shampoos so often leave an unrinsable film of soap or oil to actually dull the hair and cover up its natural brilliance.

How lucky for all women that a scientist made this discovery now in Halo Shampoo—a way to make rich, creamy shampoo lather without the use of either soap or oil.

Here at last is the perfect shampoo for dry, oily or normal hair. One shampoo with Halo demonstrates perfectly how it removes all trace of dull film left by many old-style shampoos. How radiant and full of luster it leaves your hair, eliminating any need for lemon or vinegar rinse. How silky-soft and manageable it leaves even "wild" hair. How clean and fragrant your scalp, without irritation. In fact, even loose, flaky dandruff is safely removed.

So buy Halo Shampoo from any drug, department or ten-cent store in the 10¢, 50¢ or $1.00 size. It is tested and approved by Good Housekeeping Bureau. If a trial doesn't bring thrilling beauty to your hair, return the empty bottle to Colgate, Jersey City, N. J., and we will return every penny you paid for Halo.

REVEALS THE BEAUTY HIDING IN YOUR HAIR

"Excuse me for getting personal—but haven't you gone pretty far with this nose idea? Enough is enough, I always say. It's none of my business—but what's a nose like that for?"

"You don't tell me! . . . You fill it full of water on a hot day—yes, yes, go on...Then you throw it up over your head and give yourself a shower? Boy!...you've got something there!"

"Don't try to sell me one though! Nope—I've got my own system. A soft, cooling sprinkle of downy Johnson's Baby Powder...no prickly heat or chafing after that kind of shower!"

"He-he, I knew you'd like Johnson's! It's made of such fine talc, and no orris-root. You guess it must cost a lot? You guessed wrong, pal—it costs so little that every baby can have some!"

A-1 AT JUDGING TOBACCO

"Recent tobacco crops are the finest ever raised—and Luckies always buy the Cream," says Joseph Burnett, tobacco auctioneer, who has smoked Luckies for 10 years.

Have you tried a Lucky lately?

LUCKIES ARE BETTER THAN EVER! They are better than ever because new methods developed by the United States Government have helped farmers grow finer, lighter tobacco in recent years. As tobacco experts like Mr. Burnett point out, Luckies have always bought the cream of the crop. Aged from 2 to 4 years, thesefiner tobaccos are in Luckies today. And remember: Sworn records show that among independent tobacco experts—auctioneers, buyers and warehousemen—Luckies have twice as many exclusive smokers as have all other cigarettes combined. Try Luckies for a week and then you'll know why...
